Winter struck back at Washington yesterday with a 3-inch snowfall and gusty wind that caused one death, brought injuries to nine in the Washington area, filled the streets with slush and ice and tied up traffic.

The Capital City felt only the fringe of the snowstorm that swept through the Eastern States from Ohio to Virginia and as far north as Boston, setting an all-time record of 18 inches at Pittsburgh, Pa., and burying the northern Panhandle of West Virginia under 22 inches.

Tanker Sends SOS

From Baltimore to Boston, shipping was driven to refuge or held in harbors, while the Coast Guard was kept busy rushing aid to vessels in distress. Most ominous of these calls for help came from the tanker Aztec, which sent an SOS from 50 miles southeast of Sandy Hook: "Steering gear carried away; vessel helpless in full gale."

Capt. Ed Pruitt, of Tangier Island, fell dead while attempting to moor his oyster boat at Crisfield, Md., during gales that drove some small boats onto the marshes, the Associated Press reported.

Schools were closed in Washington at 2:30 p. m. and several Government offices closed early to permit employes to start home before the rush-hour. City Refuse Department trucks began scattering sand on main thoroughfares as soon as the snow started at 10 a. m., but the plows were not called out.

School Closing Considered

Schools here will open as usual today unless weather conditions become worse during the night, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, school board president, said. She said she would confer with Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, this morning and radio announcements would be made if schools are to be closed.

The one-story brick study of the Eckington Presbyterian Church, North Capital and Q streets, was damaged when a tree fell against it during the storm.

Police removed a tree which fell in the street at Third and A streets southeast, and a heavy limb which was blown to the ground in the 3500 block of N street northwest.

Scores of automobile crashes on slippery streets, which left a toll of damaged fenders and dislocated bumpers were reported.

Police were ordered last night to close all streets where icy hills made driving especially dangerous, and today a special squad will be ordered out to direct traffic at the danger spots.

Blinded, Steps Into Car

Injured in the Washington area were:

David Feldman, 54, of 2403 Benning road northeast, who was blinded by snow as he crossed the road in front of his house and stepped in front of a street car. He was taken to Casualty Hospital in a critical condition.

Lieut. Ellery C. Midgett, 25, of St. Petersburg, Fla., a Coast Guard officer, and Mrs. Midgett, 23, whose car skidded on the Baltimore boulevard near Beltsville, Md., and crashed over a concrete abutment into a small stream. Mrs. Midgett suffered a broken right leg and internal injuries, and cuts on her face, and Lieut. Midgett received scalp abrasions and internal injuries. Both were in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital.

Drive Pushed For Elective D. C. Council

Randolph Disagrees With Appointive Plan Of Commissioners

Chairman Randolph of the House District Committee yesterday indicated he will press his proposal for election rather than appointment of a District citizens' advisory council despite the refusal of the Commissioners to revise the Seal reorganization plan in accordance with his suggestion.

Question Up to Congress

Although an advocate of full suffrage rights for District residents, Randolph proposed the elective advisory council as a temporary alternative until Congress grants all franchise privileges.

The Commissioners' letter to Randolph, which placed the suffrage question on the doorstep of Congress, is expected to have repercussions when the Kennedy subcommittee on reorganization begins consideration of the Seal and Kennedy proposals for municipal reform next week.

"The board believes that the question of suffrage is a basic one which must be determined by the Congress," George E. Allen wrote on behalf of the Commissioners.

Appointment Is Favored

"It also believes that in the event suffrage is granted, some of the board's recommendations as to internal organization would necessarily be subject to amendment."

Allen's letter was mailed Tuesday night, a few hours after Randolph had written the District heads a second letter asking why his recom-

Thousands Play Cards, Aid Blood Bank

The same old St. Valentine's Day spirit which raised funds for establishment of the Children's Hospital blood bank a year ago came through again yesterday so the life-saving "bank" may be maintained and expanded.

In spite of inclement weather, thousands of Washingtonians and suburbanites flocked to clubs, hotels, church halls and private homes, their grand slams and full houses at bridge and poker dedicated this time to the protection of childhood.

At the Chevy Chase Club last night nearly 100 "bank boosters" played bridge. The two American Legion parties, George Washington, No. 1, and National Cathedral, No. 10, attracted good sized throngs and, at an afternoon benefit, 50 women helped the cause by attending the Ladies of Charity card party in St. Paul's Parish Hall.

Legion Post Turns in $70

Players at the party of George Washington Post, No. 1, American Legion, at 2108 Sixteenth street northwest, gathered around 14 tables. The benefit committee reported $70 turned in during the evening and "more expected."

But the great majority of yesterday's blood and serum bank card players made their bids, calls and raises in private homes from Bethesda to Anacostia and Alexandria to Brookland.

Since scores more parties are scheduled for the remainder of this month, as well as a few in March, final financial returns in The Post-WJSV blood bank campaign, which is nationally sponsored by the American Contract Bridge League,

Republicans Claim Farm Vote Is Theirs

Committeemen, Here For Meeting, Debate Length of Campaign

Republican National Committeemen, bent on deciding tomorrow once and for all whether this is to be a short or a long Presidential campaign, started arriving in Washington yesterday with glowing reports of G. O. P. prospects.

Farley Controls Democrat Date

Representatives of the politically-important Middle West claimed farm sentiment there is swinging definitely Republican. One Florida committeeman reported strong anti-third term sentiment in the South.

As the Republican committee prepared to meet tomorrow to select a convention time and place, members divided factionally over whether the convention should be in June or July or whether the convention city should be Chicago or Philadelphia.

Democrats last week choose Chicago, but left the date to the discretion of Chairman Farley, who will assure Democrats "last say" on both candidates and platform.

Garner Test Possible

Those Republicans professing doubt that Roosevelt will step down from any third term race urge a G. O. P. convention as early as June 18 and a long, vigorous campaign. Others adhere to mid-July convention proposals discussed when the Republican executive committee met here.

As a compromise, one important Republican figure suggested, the committee might be asked to desig-

Meeting Today to Push Bill on Baby Sales; Agent Says Aid Given Mothers Justifies Fees

Backers to Continue Drafting Measure; House Shows Interest

The draft of the proposed bill to curb commercialized placements of babies in the District will be pushed one step nearer completion today at a meeting of a group of social workers and citizens engaged in attacking the problem.

Progress in drafting the legislation will be reported to the House District Committee at its meeting Monday by Mrs. Herbert N. Budlong, chairman of the group, and Mrs. Olive W. Swinney, secretary of the child welfare division of the Council of Social Agencies.

The House committee has already shown interest in the situation by deciding to ask the Police Department to investigate commercialized placements as disclosed in The Washington Post's series on "Babies for Sale." The request has not been made to the Police Department, however.

Mrs. Budlong's group is a subcommittee of the legislative committee of the child welfare division of the Council of Social Agencies. It includes Sefton Darr, former president of the District Bar Association; Mrs. Spencer Gordon, member of the Board of Public Welfare; Miss Agnes Hanna, of the United States Children's Bureau; Dr. Loren

She takes problems off the hands of unmarried mothers "who tell me that they have nowhere else to go." Even with this source of supply, the demand for babies is so great that she has "a waiting list of 65 or 70 families."

This agent defended the charging of fees for the babies whom she places.

Finns Admit Soviet Gains, Call Reserves

Men of 42 to 43 Ordered Into Army; Russia Claims 100 Forts Taken in Week

Helsinki, Feb. 14 (AP).—Finland, calling more men to the colors, and still holding a bent but unbroken Mannerheim Line against the greatest assaults since the World War, has no choice but to fight on, regardless of how the battle goes, President Kyosti Kallio declared tonight.

"Everyone knows we are outnumbered 50 to 1," the veteran chief executive told news correspondents.

"But the issues at stake are clear. We appreciate the sympathy shown us by Americans in our struggle to be free—indeed to live at all—but we really hope our cause might stir onlookers abroad to offer us material help.

"For after all we are defending the interests common to all civilized peoples.

"If, however, such help does not arrive we cannot change our course. Regardless of the overwhelming odds we would still carry on our fight—if it must be alone.

"The alternative is extinction for our nation.

"If the world ignores us in our need, we have no choice but to fight to the last man."

Reds Claim 16 More

Before the President spoke to the newspapermen, Viipuri, Finland's Karelian city, was bombed repeatedly today by Soviet Russian planes, which also raided other Finnish civilian centers—Hamina, Lapeenranta, among them.

Numerous buildings were burned in all three towns.

Russian gains in the Karelian snows—tossed up into dirty red by the steady churning of concentrated Russian artillery fire and stained by the blood of thousands of soldiers—were conceded by a Finnish army communique today after 14 days of battle.

The communique said "a few foremost positions" had been captured Tuesday but that "at all other points enemy attacks were repulsed with heavy losses."

Men 42 and 43 Called

(The Soviet high command announced occupation Wednesday of 16 additional Finnish defensive fortifications, making a total of 100 positions claimed to have been captured in the last six days. The Finnish defenders were falling back and suffering "heavy losses," the Soviet communique said.)

There was no indication that the Russians were letting up in the terrific pressure they were exerting against the outnumbered Finns.

Tonight, asked how he had managed to remain so vigorous and fit, despite the tremendous strain of his office in a national crisis, the white-haired President, replied with eyes flashing:

"Our unity is my strength. Crisis often has been our lot—fighting against foreign domination for centuries has been our destiny—but never before have my countrymen shown more complete unity."

As if to emphasize the President's declaration that Finland will never give up, and will fight to the "last man," the Finnish government today called up older men to the colors.

Reds Face Supply Question

The class of 1897—men 42 and 43 years old—was the latest mustered to strengthen the nation's armed forces, admittedly fighting with their backs to the wall.

Finland's plight was worsened by the fourteenth day of concerted Russian battering on the isthmus front where the Finns likened fighting to the World War siege of Verdun and appealed anew for foreign aid against Russia.

Though advance posts on the Summa sector, a 10-mile stretch of shell-plowed terrain, fell to the Red army, further advances were checked before the Russians penetrated to the next Finnish fortifications.

"Thousands of [illegible] fallen and dozens of wrec[illegible] tanks were strewn before our lines," the Finnish communique said reporting Soviet thrusts on other fronts had been repulsed.

Russian tanks crawling across the ice at the east end of the Gulf of Finland, in an attempt to outflank the Mannerheim fortifications, were halted by artillery fire from Koivisto Island which blasted the ice to sink many of them.

Estimating that "many hundreds" of warplanes flew over Finnish soil, the communique reported 17 enemy aircraft had been shot down and said several civilians had been killed by the raiders.

While not minimizing the seriousness of their position, the Finns

Threat to U. S. Ships Visiting Control Ports Angers Congress

Nazis Claim Right To Destroy Vessels If Allies Examine Them for Contraband

By International News Service

Berlin, Feb. 14.—Germany tonight struck two blows at American neutrality policies, confronting American ships on the high seas with a new menace.

Coupled with a grim warning that American ships legally may be sunk if they halt or intend to halt at Allied ports, the German government announced it would not recognize the 300-mile Pan-American "neutrality zone" around North and South America.

U. S. Named Specifically

An official government spokesman, declaring the German Reich is determined to break the Allied blockade under any circumstances, emphasized that the ships of all neutrals, even the great American passenger liners operating to neutral Mediterranean ports, are liable to be sunk if their commanders plan a stop or have already been stopped at a British or French contraband control station.

Germany, it was officially claimed, is legally justified in this action even if the vessel carries cargo destined for neutral ports. A mere contemplated stopover at Gibraltar would bring the possibility of torpedoing within reach of an American ship, it was declared.

Prize Rules Cited

The German warning to neutral shipping actually was issued yesterday, but at that time it seemingly was not directly intended to make possible torpedo targets out of American vessels in view of the neutrality policy which forbids American ships from trading in a specified "war zone."

American ships were specifically mentioned, however, in today's reiteration of the German warning.

The German statement grew out of the sinking of the Dutch steamship Burgerdijk off the English coast by a Nazi U-boat last weekend. The Burgerdijk was en route to a contraband control station a few hours away when attacked by the submarine.

Official German sources based their contention on the possibility that cargoes, whether consigned to Germany through neutral ports or not, might fall into enemy hands by contraband examination.

Safety Belt Rejected

German justification was offered in paragraph 23 of the German prize court rules which, it was pointed out, are merely an adaption of British and French regulations.

The Reich's rejection of the 300-mile "neutrality zone" promulgated by the foreign ministers of the 21 American nations recently, was contained in an official reply to the proposal sent to Panama, headquarters of the international convention.

"Despite the readiness of the German government to accept the proposals of the American states," the note declared, "the German regime considers that the success or further observance of such a plan would be possible only if the known British and French viewpoints are fundamentally revised."

Both the Allies already have replied to the Pan-American plan by rejecting it on the ground that the "safety belt" could not be guarded sufficiently to force German warships from using it to their advantage. The plan also was branded "illegal" under international law by the British and French.

House Group Asks 43 Ships More for Navy

U. S. Faces Possible Coalition, Committee Says in Request

By John G. Norris

Post Staff Writer

The House Naval Affairs Committee brought a $654,902,270 fleet expansion bill to the floor yesterday with a warning the United States must face the "unpleasant fact" it has potential enemies who may combine against us.

Viewed in that light the present fleet and additions now authorized are "much too small," the committee said, and gave unanimous approval to authorization of some 21 additional warships, 22 auxiliary vessels and 1,011 warplanes.

"The defense of our home waters, the Monroe Doctrine, and our possessions and trade routes must be considered," it was stated. "We must consider these things as likely to occur not in one ocean, but in two, and perhaps simultaneously."

Coinciding with the committee's action and assertions in Berlin that American ships taken into Allied ports for cargo inspection are subject to submarine attack, President Roosevelt asked Congress to make immediately available a $15,000,000 appropriation proposed for purchasing strategic war materials next year.

Mr. Roosevelt, in a message to the Senate, said that commercial stocks of such materials—rubber,

Roosevelt Speeds South for Fishing In Florida Gulf

Aboard President Roosevelt's Train Heading South, Feb. 14 (AP).—President Roosevelt traveled southward out of a swirling snowstorm tonight toward the tarpon waters of the Gulf of Mexico on a 10-day vacation.

His immediate destination was Pensacola, where the cruiser Tuscaloosa and two destroyers, the Lang and Jouette, are waiting. With the President were his customary fishing cronies, Brig. Gen. E. M. Watson, his secretary and military aide, and Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, his physician. There still was no word as to where the President would cruise.

Shore Calm After Riots; Police Seek Killer in Swamps

By the Associated Press

Snow Hill, Md., Feb. 14.—State troopers searched a cold, blizzard-swept swamp today for another suspect wanted in a farmer's slaying after two colored women, rescued from an angry mob last night, had been placed in the safety of a jail at Bel Air.

A posse of about 75 officers and civilians reported the swamp surrounded and predicted the storm and fast-dropping temperature would drive the suspect from hiding. Visibility at times was reduced to 25 yards by the heavy snowfall, intermittently swirling and driving.

Under the alert watch of State police, this Eastern Shore area showed no signs of last night's disorder in which a mob estimated officially at 1,000 men smashed in the Worcester County Jail.

They took the women in a threatened avenging of the death Sunday of Harvey W. Pilhard, 61, and the wounding of his wife, Annie, at their home in nearby Stockton.

The women, from whom the mob sought to learn the identity and whereabouts of the slayers, were taken to the Harford County Jail in Bel Air on orders of Gov. O'Conor, who announced he was assuming "full responsibility" for their safe-

Pittman Terms Peril 'Inhuman,' But Says Britain Could Remove It

By Robert C. Albright

Post Staff Writer

Nazi assertions of the right to torpedo American vessels forced into British or French ports for cargo inspection yesterday roused Congressional indignation at both German and British treatment of neutral shipping.

Chairman Pittman, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, slapped at the Reich threat as "unjustifiable and inhuman" but declared:

Embargo Deferred

"Without regard to the violent and illegal threat of Germany, it is within the power of Great Britain, by ceasing the practice of forcing our ships into its ports, to remove this very grave danger."

A chorus of protests against the Reich statement spread through the Senate as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee deferred retaliatory embargo action against a third belligerent power—Japan.

For nearly an hour the committee discussed two bills aimed at embargoing exports to Japan unless American Nine Power treaty rights are respected in China, then adjourned without formal action.

Reynolds Blames Britain

This Government's demand that Great Britain cease forcing American ships into contraband control stations in belligerent waters meanwhile was discussed by Secretary of State Hull and Lord Lothian, British Ambassador, for more than an hour.

The State Department conference closely followed the Reich's latest submarine warning, but Lord Lothian on leaving said no final decisions were reached. Possibility of establishing a contraband control point for American neutral shipping at St. Johns, New Brunswick, was held out. The Ambassador said his government would discuss this proposal with Canada. Location of such a contraband station far removed from belligerent waters presumably would not subject American ships stopped for inspection to submarine risks.

Senator Glass Comments

Senate comment on the Reich's submarine threat ranged from the opinion of Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, that Neutrality Act passage persuaded Hitler to take this step, to a statement by Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, that Great Britain should be held responsible for any damage resulting.

On the House side, Representative Shanley (Democrat), of Connecticut, member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, held the British principally at fault. Declaring "it is time for action," he said a threat to close American ports to armed merchantmen "would force the British government to change its entire policy."

Senator Capper (Republican), of Kansas, questioned the right of Germany to take the position announced at Berlin.

Warring Justified

Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa said the German stand could hardly be criticized if American ships were forced into belligerent waters, while Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, charged England was trying "to drag us into the war." Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, said there was no justification in international law for the German warning, and said the threat demonstrated the value of the Neutrality Act war zone ban on American shipping.

Senator Pittman pointed to Neutrality Act prohibitions against any

PREVIEW OF CANDIDATES—II

You can cite plenty of arguments to prove that there are scores of Americans who can fill the Presidency acceptably—probably thousands, if we only knew!

Harlan Miller

Vice Presidents have made good Presidents when fate gave them the succession. Sometimes they were better than the originals.

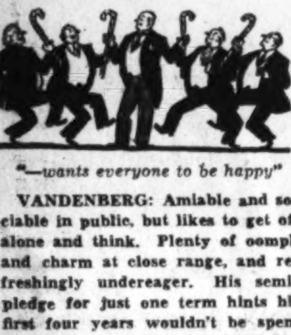
* * * *

Dark horses have turned out quite well in the White House—with one or two exceptions. Compromise candidates haven't done badly; the Republic hasn't foundered under 'em. Presidents without much oomph have been adequate. We have felt safe with mediocre Presidents.

Some of the other aspirants may seem a little anemic of taste like parsnips after Roosevelt. They may not seem inevitable enough. It takes election plus a year or so in the White House to put the mustard or mayonnaise on 'em. But let's go on with the previews of candidates and campaign bigshots I have known and observed at close range.

* * * *

FARLEY: Has had priceless experience at making everybody happy. That, after all, seems the true role of Presidents nowadays, as well as of successful politicians. His temperament fits him to carry out a program of sugar-coated transition with a minimum of rancor or alarm. Competent executive. Probably remembers the underprivileged one-third as constantly as the next guy. He'd have candy canes for the upper one-third, too. A Cleveland type.



"—wants everyone to be happy"

VANDENBERG: Amiable and sociable in public, but likes to get off alone and think. Plenty of oomph and charm at close range, and refreshingly undereager. His semi-pledge for just one term hints his first four years wouldn't be spent electioneering. An original thinker with a literary knack for vivid lingo. Champion of the worried middle-class. Lots of courage. Reminds me of McKinley.

* * * *

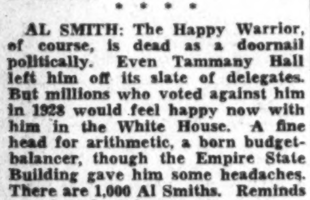
STANLEY REED: Most conservative of the New Deal justices on the Supreme Court. Highly available as a dark-horse compromise. He doesn't alarm Right Wingers and they don't alarm him. Would make a fine opposite number for Bob Taft in a campaign, but alongside Dewey he might remind voters of "Life with Father." That might not hurt him, either. A John Adams model.

* * * *

GARNER: Solid citizens were jittery about Garner in 1932. He was known as "that man"—you remember people saying "What, if something happened to Roosevelt and that man succeeded him?" He had just proposed a $5,000,000,000 pump-priming program. These same people could now sleep soundly without looking under the bed if he were President. This metamorphosis proves people can reconcile themselves to all sorts of Presidents.

* * * *

AL SMITH: The Happy Warrior, of course, is dead as a doornail politically. Even Tammany Hall left him off its slate of delegates. But millions who voted against him in 1928 would feel happy now with him in the White House. A fine head for arithmetic, a born budget-balancer, though the Empire State Building gave him some headaches. There are 1,000 Al Smiths. Reminds me of Andy Johnson.



"—The Justice is Lincolnesque"

DOUGLAS: There's a touch of the Railsplitter about the youngest Justice. In a campaign his personality would go across like a million. But in a transition era he's no sugar-coated appeaser. He feels the worried ones are just chronic worriers; let 'em worry. They would. No more a Leftist than Abe Lincoln, though. Great head for the intricacies of big business.

* * * *

WHEELER: A magnificent controversialist who got off-base a little at the end of the embargo debate. Conservatives remember he used to be sorta radical; liberals feel he isn't nearly so radical as he was. He and Senator George are called, probably unjustly, the laziest men in the Senate. That's putting 'em in front of stiff competition. But not a bad fault if you believe in a quiet White House. Good brain; now an appeaser. Van Buren type.

* * * *

HOOVER: It wasn't his fault, and he still thirsts for vindication. In moments of candid soul-searching, four bigshot Republicans out of five will tell you he's abler, better qualified and more experienced than any other G. O. P. aspirant. Off the record, they say that Hoover really is the logical 1940 candidate; he stands for everything the G. O. P. stands for, and he's the most effective critic of the New Deal. But logic apparently has little to do with it.

Bill Allows New President 1941 Budget

Its Preparation Is Up to Roosevelt Under Present Law

By Cecil B. Dickson.

International News Service Staff Writer

Congress yesterday moved to take out of President Roosevelt's hands authority to prepare next year's budget in the event a successor is elected in November.

Apparently in doubt whether Mr. Roosevelt will succeed himself, the Democratic leadership prepared to give legislative right of way to a bill that will give the new President complete control over the budget to be submitted to the next Congress.

The measure, sponsored by Representative Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, was reported unanimously by the House Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments. Special procedure to speed action on the measure is to be sought, Cochran said.

Under existing law the President is required to submit a budget to Congress at the opening of each regular session on January 3. Thus, with the next President to be inaugurated on January 20, 1941, President Roosevelt would be required to submit a budget that might be in conflict with the policies of his successor.

"With the transmission of the budget required on the first day of the regular session, January 3, and a new President taking office on January 20," Cochran said, "the situation arises of an outgoing President preparing completely and transmitting to Congress, a budget for the fiscal year which begins July 1 next following the taking of office by a new President.

"This bill will prevent the transmission of an outgoing President's budget to the new Congress and would give the next President 30 days after inauguration to submit his budget. Thus the new President will have an opportunity to reach such conclusions and make such changes in the budget that conform to his policies."

The elimination of the "lame duck" session of Congress early in the Roosevelt administration, which changed the Presidential inauguration from March 4 to January 30, and the meeting of Congress from the first Monday in December to January 3, each year, brought about the budget situation.

On Capitol Hill

Senator Sheppard, Texas Democrat and Dean of Congress, announced yesterday he would seek reelection in 1942 in the hope of breaking the "all-American record for length of service in Congress."

Sen. Sheppard

Sheppard first came to Congress in 1902 as a Representative and in 1913 was elected to the Senate. He is 65.

The only 5 who have exceeded his record of service, Sheppard said, were:

Representative Cannon (Republican), of Illinois, once Speaker of the House who served 46 years, but non-consecutively; Morrill of Vermont, who served 43 years and 7 months, consecutively, in the House and Senate; Frye of Maine, 40 years 4 months consecutively, in both Houses; Gillett, Massachusetts, 38 years consecutively in both Houses; Swanson, Virginia, 38 years non-consecutive service in both Houses. Swanson was a Democrat; the others Republicans.

Sheppard said that at the end of another complete term of service, he would have served consecutively 46 years and 2 months.

The Congressional economy wave eliminated two $500 gold medals which Congress previously had authorized in separate acts.

The Senate Appropriations Committee saved $1,200 in a $1,032,784,115 bill by failing to provide funds for medals to:

"Howard Hughes (noted flier) in advancing the science of aviation and thus bringing great credit to his country throughout the world."

"Rev. Francis X. Quinn, pastor of the Church of the Guardian Angel, New York City, who risked his life by entering a room where an armed desperado held two elderly persons as hostages, and who by successfully disarming this criminal and saving the lives of two innocent persons distinguished himself conspicuously by gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of his duty."

The quotations are from Congressional acts last year.

Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, was confined to his home yesterday by what aides said was a bad cold and sore throat.

14 Democrats In Ways Group For Hull Pacts

15th Member, Disney, Dissents, but Offers Excise Amendment

By the Associated Press

Fourteen of 15 Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee said in a report yesterday that "our highest national interests" require continuance of the reciprocal trade agreements program.

The report, approving a three-year extension of the program from next June 12, contended that abandonment would serve notice to the world that the United States had given up its position of leadership "as a peace-loving nation."

Up in House Next Week

The fifteenth member, Representative Disney (Democrat), of Oklahoma, filed a separate statement in which he advocated an amendment to prevent the State Department from treating as tariffs excise taxes on oil, coal, lumber and copper. When the committee reported the bill by a strict party vote of 14 Democrats to 10 Republicans, Disney voted "present."

Administration leaders have arranged to devote most of next week to House consideration of the extension legislation.

"In view of world conditions today," the committee report said, "failure to extend the trade agreements act at this time would not only deprive our Government of a prompt and effective means of promoting economic recovery and prosperity at home, it would also serve notice to the world that our country had abandoned its position of leadership as a peace-loving Nation in the effort to reestablish the basic and essential economic foundations of an enduring peace."

"Highly Beneficial"

The Democrats reported that the protracted hearings on the continuing legislation developed these facts:

The agreements for five and one-half years have been "highly beneficial" in reviving the United States' foreign commerce and in safeguarding it against discriminations abroad.

The program has, "directly or indirectly," contributed to restoration of profitable production throughout American agriculture and industry.

The act has been administered with "scrupulous" regard for the best interests of the Nation; the welfare of interested parties will be "safeguarded by the Democratic procedure and painstaking caution which has been adhered to throughout."

Teddy's Skipper Dies in Duluth

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 14 (AP).—Capt. William Norman, 89, former captain of President Theodore Roosevelt's yachts, Sylph and Mayflower, died last night in his home here. He had resided here since his retirement in 1924.

Capt. Norman was born in Sweden and was with the Roosevelts in 1907-08. When he retired as captain, President Roosevelt appointed him hull inspector at New York. During the World War he served in that capacity at Portland, Me.

'Moonshine' Says Farley On 3d Term

Assert People Hold The Only Mortgage On Party in Power

By the Associated Press

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 14.—James A. Farley termed "all moonshine" here tonight "constant talk of a regime to perpetuate itself" in the United States.

Without elaborating on whether he referred to a third term for President Roosevelt, the Postmaster General spoke on "Americanism" at a gathering under junior chamber of commerce auspices.

"After all, the only mortgage that the party in power has on the control of our national affairs is the confidence of the people," he said. "So long as the Administration gives good government, so long is it kept in power . . . No Administration can survive a majority disapproval."

The Democratic cabinet officer said the balance of power was held by "a group numbering perhaps 10,000,000 voters, who have either no party affiliation or whose allegiance is so slight and tenuous that it is shifted one way or the other as the conflicting policies and opposition candidates please or displease the individuals in this group."

Farley asserted empires and civilizations of the past all fell because they lacked "liberty."

We have grown into the most powerful of all nations," he said, by Americanism, which he defined as "tolerance."

"Down South they still refer to us Northerners as damyankees. We of the North flatter ourselves that we have the better of our Southern citizens in aggressive enterprise. Our Easterners cherish to themselves the comforting belief that they are superior to our Westerners in culture and polite arts. They in the West deign to assume that they have almost a monopoly of independence and breezy courage. Yet all of us, regardless of the points of the compass, are quite satisfied that even those at the opposite end of the country are of immensely better type than those unfortunate enough to be nationals of foreign states, which, after all, is a happy conceit."

Farley planned to leave tonight for a vacation in Miami, Fla.

Court Orders Review of Imbrie Expense Account

Disputed items in the expenses accounts of Maj. Robert W. Imbrie, totaling $1,366.11, which his widow claims he spent on secret missions in the Near East, yesterday were ordered reviewed by the District Court pretrial division with a view to a speedy trial.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts refused to enter a summary judgment against Mrs. Katherine Gillespie Imbrie, who was sued for the amount as executrix of her husband's estate. He ruled that Mrs. Imbrie was entitled to produce evidence of her husband's activities at a trial of the case.

Maj. Imbrie was a consular officer in the Near East for several years, served with an American high commission there and took part in the Lausanne conference. Later he was sent to Persia, where he was killed in a local disorder. The Persian government paid Mrs. Imbrie $60,000 indemnity and she received $30,000 from the United States for injuries she suffered at the same time.

Allen's Aid Sought On Symphony Labor Harmony

The good offices of Commissioner George E. Allen were invoked yesterday in an attempted break in the union-management deadlock which threatens to deprive Washington of the National Symphony Orchestra next year.

Commissioner Allen said he would "do everything in his power," when his assistance was sought by Mrs. Edwin Watson, wife of the President's military aide, and Dr. Glenn Dillard Gunn.

The campaign for the orchestra's sustaining fund was called off last month when the players demanded increased salaries and a longer season. The orchestra association declared they had no hope of raising a sufficient sum to meet the demands.

NLRB Economist Advocated Revolution, Toland Implies

Saposs Tells House Quiz He Merely Desired 'Changes'

By John B. Oakes

In an atmosphere somewhat reminiscent of the Dies Committee, Counsel Edmund M. Toland of the House inquiry into the Labor Board yesterday suggested that David Saposs, chief economist of the NLRB, had advocated "revolution and rebellion" in his writings.

Saposs, whose flowing white hair and metal-rimmed glasses bespoke the professor, denied Toland's implication, but agreed that he had urged fusion of the workers and middle class "to change a great many things in the present system."

After lengthy questioning designed to expose Saposs' alleged radical propensities, it was brought out that the witness had not been consulted by the board in any matters of policy other than those relating to his own division of economics.

Prior to Saposs' appearance on the witness stand, Board Chairman J. Warren Madden disclosed that the NLRB and RFC had entered into an arrangement aimed to withhold RFC loans from companies believed to have violated the Wagner Act.

In an exchange of letters last August between NLRB Secretary Nathan Witt and RFC Secretary George R. Cooksey, it was agreed that the RFC would keep the NLRB informed of loans authorized, while the Labor Board would recommend withholding disbursements in the case of companies against which complaints had been issued. If it was subsequently found that the company had not violated the Wagner Act, the Board would recommend resumption of the RFC loan. Madden said the RFC had originally proposed the arrangement.

When Toland told the committee that the Comptroller General had ruled that violation of the Wagner Act would not in itself prevent companies from receiving Government contracts, Representative Murdock (Democrat), of Utah, observed that "it is about time then that the Congress get busy on that question."

Madden suggested that "the Government ought not to be awarding its benefits to those who violate its laws." But, in view of the Comptroller General's ruling, he said "there is no stopping them."

Saposs, who said he had been a member of the Socialist Club while a student at the University of Wisconsin, was quizzed at length by Toland about an article he wrote in 1931 for the publication "Labor Age," containing statements such as: "The world cannot be saved by capitalist devices;" "it is not worth saving a democracy in which Socialist parties only collaborate with capitalism;" and

"If in the attempt to carry out such a program, political action fails, then the workers must unhesitatingly resort to organized force. The international must take the position that if another war occurs the workers will destroy capitalism."

However, Saposs insisted that all these statements were not his own, but merely indirect quotation of views that were presented at the International Socialist and Labor convention, held in Vienna in 1931, which he was visiting as an observer on a grant from the Social Science Research Council.

The 54-year-old Russian-born economist was queried by Toland about a letter he had written Katherine Bauer, a housing expert, suggesting that on a forthcoming trip to France she look up one of the Communist deputies, whom he described as "exceedingly well informed" and "surprisingly objective." Saposs explained that Miss Bauer had asked him to suggest the names of left-wing leaders, and pointed out that if she had asked for names of conservatives, he would have supplied those, too.

The witness said he did not "think" he had written articles advocating a Socialist form of government in this country, but he believed that "various types of industries should be owned by the Government."

Meanwhile, at a House Labor Committee hearing, Lee Pressman, general counsel of the C. I. O., testified that the C. I. O. opposed all Wagner Act amendments proposed by the A. F. of L. because they were responsible for the development of a "reactionary drive" to weaken the law.

Philippine Independence Called 'Murder'

It Is Not Established Economically, McNutt Tells Variety Club

It would be "economic murder" to grant independence to the Philippine Islands on July 4, 1946, as contemplated under the Tydings-McDuffy Act, Paul V. McNutt said yesterday.

The Social Security head and one-time Philippine high commissioner, spoke at a Valentine luncheon of the Washington Variety Club in the Willard Hotel. He told the theater men and their wives that the Philippine people could not survive under self-government.

"Not Yet Established"

"The Filipinos are not yet established economically to pay the bills which go with independence," said McNutt. Freed from U. S. protection and control, they would not be ready to carry on alone, he asserted. Lowered living standards under self-government would lead to internal strife and trouble, he added.

"Forty years ago," said McNutt, "we took over a poor, ignorant race. It is our fault they now clamor for independence—we taught them self-rule, we introduced them to politics, we made them the progressive people they are today. We told them when they were old enough, they could be free. I don't think they are old enough."

"Right to Stay"

McNutt said the United States should not remove its flag from the Philippine Islands, but should stay "where it has a right to stay"—to keep an "open door" to China, to preserve our freedom of the sea and air across the Pacific."

Touching on the Far East situation, McNutt contended the invading Japanese armies "will never to able to conquer China."

"The Japanese apparently forgot the Chinese ability to absorb punishment and still keep going," he said.

Red Skelton, currently appearing at the Earle Theater, was on yesterday's "ladies day" program of the club.

3 Scholarships Offered in Borah Memorial Contest

An essay contest whose three winners will be rewarded with William E. Borah memorial scholarships was announced yesterday by the National University School of Economics and Government.

Mrs. William E. Borah, widow of the Idaho Senator, has agreed to be one of the judges in the competition, which is open to high school seniors of the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia, said Eugene Carusi, dean of the school.

Entrants may choose from three topics: Freedom of the press, world peace, and democracy. The essays must not exceed 2,500 words and April 15 is the deadline for their transmission to National University, 818 Thirteenth street northwest.

Serving wtih Mrs. Borah will be Senator Glass; Charles Drayton, member of the Board of Education; B. M. McKelway, managing editor of the Evening Star; Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post; John O'Rourke, managing editor of the Washington Daily News; Frank Waldrop, editorial writer of the Times-Herald, and Dean Carusi.

Last Man Club Installs Officers Tonight

Woman's Death Held Natural; Five Released

Mrs. Black Hurt In Accident, Coroner Says After Autopsy

Four men and one women who were held for investigation into circumstances surrounding the injury and death of Mrs. Eugenie Black, 36, of 919 Kennedy street northwest, were discharged yesterday, after the coroner ruled that her death was due to natural causes.

Mrs. Black was admitted to Gallinger Hospital Friday, suffering from a fractured hip and burns of the face and legs. She was taken there in a private ambulance by her mother, Mrs. Maude Gates, of the same address. On Tuesday, as her daughter was near death, Mrs. Gates requested an investigation by the police.

Mrs. Gates reported that a child informed her last Friday that Mrs. Black was at 53 Terra Cotta lane northeast, with a broken leg. She at once procured an ambulance and had her daughter moved to the hospital.

Following Mrs. Black's death at the hospital yesterday, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald conducted an autopsy.

Detective Sergt. John Wise, of the homicide squad, reported that Mrs. Black was burned on January 29, when an old-fashioned cook stove at the Terra Cotta lane address was knocked from its foundation by Mrs. Norman Bonifant in a fall, and that it fell against Mrs. Black. Later, he said, Mrs. Black on February 7 fell down a flight of steps, and received no medical attention until Friday.

Those who were released from custody following the coroner's verdict, were all residents of the Terra Cotta lane house. They were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bonifant, Howard and Bud Bonifant, and Robert McChesney.

2 Hurt in Fall Are Recovering

Washington Sanitarium physicians last night reported the two roof repairmen who were injured Tuesday in a fall from a scaffold were "getting along all right."

The two men, Paul Price, 19, of 111 Maple avenue, and Jack Douglas, 31, of 103 Allegheny avenue, Takoma Park, were injured when a scaffold buckled and dropped them 30 feet.

Reich Attache to Speak To Delta Phi Epsilon

Ernst Ostermann von Roth, Second Secretary of the German Embassy, will discuss the present European situation, at a meeting of the Georgetown University Chapter of Delta Phi Epsilon, professional foreign service fraternity, at 8 p. m. today (Thursday), in Alpha House, 1555 Thirty-fifth street northwest. Arthur G. Horner, of Honolulu, chapter president, will be chairman.

Flying Declared Hazardous For Expectant Mothers

Women Pilots' Organization Contends Condition Makes for Better Aviation In Some Cases, But CAA Says No

Should expectant mothers fly airplanes?

The Civil Aeronautic Authority answers with an emphatic "No!" but Mrs. Betty H. Gillies, of Syosset, N. Y., president of the Ninety-Nines, an organization of women flyers, thinks otherswise.

Mother of three children and with a record of 1,000 flying hours, Mrs. Gillies petitioned the CAA to permit expectant mothers at the controls of airplanes. Opinions of five doctors accompanied the petition and Mrs. Gillies contended that pregnancy is not a "physical deficiency" nor "abnormality," as the CAA holds.

The CAA arrayed contrary medical opinions contending that flying during pregnancy might be unwise. In answer to this, the Ninety-Nines' doctors said:

"Thin, emaciated women would be much better pilots if they were four months pregnant!"

But the CAA, upholding its regulations preventing a woman from flying her own plane once she becomes pregnant, pointed out that expectant mothers are "subject to fainting spells, nausea and emotional distresses not conducive to safe flying."

The Ninety-Nines, according to Associated Press dispatches, are so named because they had that number of charter members.

Waiter Is Held On Girl's Charges

Abraham Bloom, 30-year-old waiter, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on charges of being the fourth member of a white slave ring which victimized a 16-year-old Waynesboro, Va., girl here last December.

Bloom was seized by Department of Justice agents. He was held to the grand jury in $2,000 bail.

Two men and a woman were arraigned Monday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage in connection with the case. They were James R. Piercy, 30, Sam Harris, 35, and Dorothy Dalton, 29, all held for the grand jury.

Dies Inquirer Reported Investigating Harvard Group

By the Associated Press

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 14.—A man representing himself to be a Dies Committee investigator was reported today by the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate publication, to have begun an inquiry into "Yankee American action," a group described by the student paper as Fascist and anti-Catholic.

University officials, Cambridge police and Boston headquarters of the F. B. I. all reported they had neither seen nor heard of the investigator, whom the paper named as George Hurley. Permission for the group to hold further meetings in a Harvard house was withdrawn yesterday by the Rev. W. L. Sperry, dean of the Harvard Divinity School.

British Claim 2 U-Boats Sunk, Toll 4 in 5 Days

40 Victories Since War, English Say; 5 More Ships Lost, 2 Danish

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 14.—Destruction of two more German U-boats, one of which had sunk a big, meat-laden freighter half an hour before, was stamped on the credit side of Britain's sea warfare ledger by the admiralty tonight.

With four submarines announced sunk within five days, the British claims now total more than 40 German submarines since the war started.

Three British ships—two tankers and the 12,306-ton freighter Sultan Star, bringing 6,000 tons of Argentine chilled beef for British dinner tables, went down along with their two undersea attackers.

Two Danish ships also were sunk, one of them, at least, by a German submarine. The two sinkings brought Denmark's total losses since the war's start to 17 vessels.

Announcing the new action, the admiralty said:

"Since the sinking of two U-boats by one British destroyer was announced February 9, three large British merchant ships, namely the Gretafield, 10,190 tons; the British Triumph, 8,501 tons, and the Sultan Star, 12,306 tons, have been sunk, but two of the U-boats concerned also have been destroyed," the admiralty statement said.

"In the case of the sinking of the Sultan Star, the U-boat only survived his victim by half an hour."

Churchill Reveals Caution

This announcement followed by a few hours disclosure by Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, that Germany's air power was keeping the British blockade at a distance from Germany's shores.

Answering a question as to whether the naval patrol was efficient, Churchill said:

"I think no one would expect us to be able to maintain a close patrol or a close blockade off the German coast having regard to the enormous development of shore base aircraft since the late war."

The sinking of four big merchant ships, three of them British, preceded Churchill's announcement to the effect that within a month or six weeks "a very great measure of protection will be afforded to our men," especially in the North Sea.

"It appears," he said, "that every vessel must be effectively armed to resist these murderous attacks."

This was taken to mean that every British vessel, large or small, soon would be equipped with anti-aircraft guns for defense against German bombers and machine-gunners which have attacked British and neutral freighters, trawlers, fishing boats and lightships recently in the North Sea.

Ship Sunk by Shellfire

The Danish ships lost were the 5,777-ton Chastine Maerks, sunk by a submarine's shell fire in the North Sea, and the 2,095-ton Martin Goldschmidt, reported by Reuters, British news agency, to have been sunk off the coast of Scotland with the loss of 15 of her crew of 20.

A Reuters dispatch from Oslo said the 1,503-ton Norwegian steamer Eika had been sunk while enroute from Spain to Norway. The Norwegian consulate at Hamburg, Germany, said a submarine landed two survivors at Wilhelmshaven. The Eika, carrying a crew of 18, had been unreported since Jan. 27.

The Sultan Star, was torpedoed 230 miles southwest of Land's End, England. The crew abandoned ship.

The British Triumph capsized and sank after an explosion in the North Sea. Five of the crew of 47 was missing.

The Gretafield was sunk off northern Scotland by "enemy action." She went down in flames with 13 crewmen missing.

Churchill Questioned

Col. Josiah Wedgwood, Laborite, asked Churchill whether he would consider refusing to send ships to rescue German airmen brought down on the sea after "murdering unarmed seamen."

Churchill replied amid cheers that "the ordinary instincts of humanity require rescue from the sea of drowning men or castaways should they be observed by His Majesty's ships in the course of their duties."

Churchill, asked how five German merchant ships now loading at Rotterdam had escaped detection by the British blockade, said the question was not in accord with his information but that in any case the house must be aware that the coasts of Germany and Holland are contiguous and that it is not because of a lack of British zeal or thought that any German ship had escaped.

Turkey Expects Allied Attack Aimed at Soviet Oil Fields

By Edward Kennedy,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Istanbul, Feb. 14.—The Turkish press turned sudden attention today to the strategic position of Russia's rich Caucasian oil fields, lying along the Turkish frontier, and openly discussed the possibility of war over them "by April."

One inspired newspaper, the usually well-informed Son Telegraf, suggested that Great Britain, France and Turkey, with combined Near Eastern forces of nearly 1,000,000 men, may be considering an attack on these fields.

Several newspapers featured reports that Germany was sending a large number of troops to the Caucasus to help Russia defend the oil supplies.

Italy Questions Allied Aims

At the same time the Italian press began to question British explanations that the Allied armies in the Near East are purely defensive, and the Italian supreme defense council, meeting for the seventh successive day, was reported considering the effect of possible action in that area on Italy's position.

All this coincided with reports that large forces of British Indian and Moslem troops had arrived in French-ruled Syria from Egyptian bases. This would free French troops now there, and was interpreted in foreign military quarters as meaning that the French Near Eastern army, already more than 500,000 strong, was being concentrated even closer to Turkey.

The press carried descriptions of Russia's new fortifications on the Caucasus frontier and said the Russians were fortifying Odessa and other Black Sea ports

Action in April Is Predicted

The Son Telegraf predicted: "Toward the end of March or the beginning of April events are going to precipitate themselves," and then said of the new Russian fortifications:

"We do not know whether the U. S. S. R. is proceeding with these fortifications with the object of placing her coast and petrolium regions in a state of defense or whether she figures on using the points as bases for attack.

"If complications develop between Russia and the Allies and the latter opens an offensive in the direction of Baku (one center of the Russian oil fields) then these fortifications might serve as bases for defense as well as points for attack.

"If Russia should be the first to declare war on the Allies then she naturally would use the new fortifications for an offensive."

Troop Movements Lauded

The arrival this week of more British troops in the Near East—30,000 Australian and New Zealand troops reached Suez Monday—was applauded as showing that "the Allies are ready for any eventuality in this region."

In carrying the reports that German troops were being sent into the Caucasus the papers also told of alleged German-Russian plans for "occupation and partition" of southeastern Europe.

Editorial statements declared Turkey would regard any German-Russian threat to Rumania, Iran, or Iraq—all having oil wells—as a threat to her own security, necessitating her immediate entry into the war.

The press carried dispatches from La Tribune of Rome headed "New British Pressure on Rumania."

"Britain again is looking with great attention toward Rumanian oil, which is a source of great worry for her," said the dispatch as printed here. "In London it is feared that Rumania is transporting a considerable amount of oil to Germany. The attitude of Rumania is causing suspicion in London.

Guarantee May Be Voided

"It appears that if Rumania does not promise to send only a minimum amount of oil to Germany, then Britain and France will withdraw the guarantee (of her independence) given her in April, 1939."

The British and Rumanian governments are discussing the Rumanian oil exports question in all its aspects, R. A. Butler, parliamentary undersecretary for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today in London.

(Butler said, however, that he was not yet in a position to make a statement on the situation, which concerns German demands for increased supplies of Rumanian oil, much of which is produced by British and French-owned companies.)

[The New York Times said: Rumania assured the British Minister to Bucharest that her exports of oil would not be affected by diplomatic pressure from Germany or any other country.—Editor's Note.]

Defensive Aims "Unconvincing"

"The so-called defensive aims of Weygand's army are not convincing," said a London dispatch to the Rome newspaper La Tribuna referring to Gen. Maxime Weygand, the French chieftain who apparently is slated to command Allied Near Eastern forces there.

Several other Italian papers commented in a similar tenor.

"The serious disturbance of Mediterranean equilibrium caused by these troops is is to be noted, and it is difficult to see how this disequilibrium can be reconciled with agreements made with Italy," La Tribuna said.

It was suggested one of Britain's projects might concern "the advisability of seizing Russian oil supplies to cut them off from Russia and Germany."

Germany Stabs At French Lines

Paris, Feb. 14 ½.—A section of German infantry made another stab at French lines west of the Saar River in sub-zero weather today but the French high command said the thrust crumpled before French counter-fire.

German patrol activity on the Western Front increased.

nevertheless indicated confidence that Soviet troops could not long continue to atack at their present pace, since problems of transportation and munitions and food supply through the Leningrad bottleneck are making it increasingly difficult to take care of the divisions on the Isthmus.

The Finns hoped that Russian reverses on other fronts might soon divert the Red army's main attention from the isthmus which has borne the brunt of Soviet attacks since the invasion started November 30.

In the Kuhmo sector in the north, Russia's Fifty-fourth Division was said to be in serious difficulties about 30 miles inside Finnish territory.

The communique said a Russian battalion had been destroyed and several enemy positions captured.

Military observers said that if Finns were able to drive eastward across the Russian frontier above Lake Ladoga, the Soviet high command might have to relax its pressure along the isthmus.

Lloyd George Says 'Weakest Flank' Is Food Supply

London, Feb. 14 (U.P.).—Britain's food supply is her "weakest flank" in the war, former Prime Minister David Lloyd George told Parliament tonight in an attack on the agriculture subsidy bill.

The World War prime minister declared the subsidy bill was "inadequate" and warned the government that the nation's war effort would collapse if the food supply broke down.

London, Feb. 14 (AP).—The board of trade journal reported today that wholesale prices generally in Britain have risen 27½ per cent since January, 1939. Food is up 33½ per cent, it said, and industrial materials and manufactures 24 per cent.

Earle Takes Oath As U. S. Minister To Bulgaria

By the Associated Press

George H. Earle, former Governor of Pennsylvania, was sworn in yesterday as Minister to Bulgaria.

The oath was administered by Edward Yardley, chief clerk of the State Department.

Germans Hint At Invasion Of Holland

Word Aimed Here Believed New Move In War of Nerves

By Frank L. Kluckhohn.
Copyright by New York Times

Nazi sources in Germany, it is understood here, are allowing word to reach Washington both directly and indirectly that the German army may be forced for strategic and trade reasons to attempt taking over Holland in the spring.

These reports have caused diplomatic sources in the Capital to consider the possible explanation. One is that this is just another move in the war of nerves. The other is that the Reich government is seeking to bring pressure in an effort to force peace.

Although the possibility of a Nazi thrust at Holland has loomed large, particularly in staff quarters in major countries, the feeling here is that it is most unlikely that the German regime would give advance notice of such a blow when surprise, at least as to the moment of execution, is regarded as vital to chances of success.

Word Directed Here

As far as the war of nerves is concerned, it is regarded as peculiar that the Nazis appear most anxious to have word of their threats reach Washington. The possibility is not discounted in diplomatic quarters that the reports are being passed along to encourage disorientation, but there are certain factors that do not fit in with this viewpoint.

The explanation that the Germans are bringing pressure for peace through diplomatic hints that if it cannot be arranged, the theater of war will change and millions will probably lose their lives is, therefore, regarded as the most logical one in diplomatic circles.

In this connection, it is noted that the reports of a probable Nazi drive against Holland have been intensified since the White House announced that Undersecretary of State Welles would visit Italy, France, Germany and Great Britain, to report on conditions to the President. Despite official disclaimers here from the start, foreign and domestic reaction to the announcement has indicated a widespread belief that Welles will sound out peace possibilities.

Easy to Deny

Because of the manner in which the reports about Holland have been circulated, they are capable of easy denial for diplomatic reasons in Berlin and elsewhere. It is a fact, however, that in the past few days Washington has received these hints direct, as well as through French and British sources which privately report their Nazi origin.

Whether the Nazis really want peace, and, if so, what kind of peace offers a conundrum for officials here. But that the Nazis are still talking in diplomatic quarters along these lines there appears little doubt.

Nazi Threat to Ships Stirs Congress Anger

American vessel entering British ports or combat zones in the vicinity of Britain or France.

"Great Britain," said Pittman, "assumes the right to take American vessels into British and French ports for the purpose of search for contraband. This is not with the consent of the American vessels' officers or the Government of the United States. In fact, it is against a protest of our Government. It is in violation of international law."

Pittman said Britain had the right under international law to stop our ships and search them for contraband but if no contraband is found the ship under international law is allowed to proceed on its course.

"Remember," he said, "that contraband consists of goods moving to the enemy. No American ship is permitted under the law to engage in commerce with any of the warring powers.

"Germany is evidently claiming to act under the law of retaliation, that is, she will violate international law on the grounds that it is necessary to protect herself against Great Britain illegally attempting to confiscate goods as contraband from American vessels taken into her ports. Germany knows that it is unlawful for American vessels to be armed, and that our vessels are not armed. Therefore, it is unjustifiable and inhuman that such vessels should be submarined without notice. It is also unjustifiable and inhuman for the German government to submarine a neutral vessel departing from the port of a belligerent country—especially an American vessel which Germany knows did not enter the port voluntarily and was forced to enter such port."

Pittman said the great majority of the American people were sympathetic to the Allies, pointing out that England itself could remove the submarine danger to American ships by ceasing its contraband seizures. If any cargoes moving in American vessels to neutral countries indirectly reach Germany, he said, it is "undoubtedly insignificant."

Informally the State Department was understood to be unwilling to recommend the Japanese embargo proposal now before the Foreign Relations Committee, pending outcome of talks that have proceeded off and on since America allowed its commercial treaty with Japan to expire.

"Go Slow" Is Sentiment

A "go slow" sentiment prevailed with some Senators requesting further time to study the embargo bills sponsored by Pittman and Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), of Washington. There was no vote on postponement, although the committee was reported sharply divided.

Pittman told reporters the delay definitely did not mean the bills would be pigeonholed. He predicted that ultimately a bill would be reported from his committee, and said discussions would be continued next week.

"We fired a few blanks and fell back," commented Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas.

Only Tuesday the Senate had recorded its feeling against both Japan and Russia by tacitly providing for loans up to $20,000,000 to both China and Finland in a bill increasing Export-Import Bank capital by $100,000,000.

An identical bill yesterday was introduced in the House by Chairman Steagall, of the House Banking Committee, who will expedite consideration of the Chinese-Finnish aid legislation in that chamber. Majority Leader Rayburn predicted the House would approve the measure by a large majority.

Japan Advises Gen. Chiang To Surrender

Hold Enough Land To Set Up New Order, Invaders Declare

By the Associated Press

Hongkong (Thursday), Feb. 15.—Japan's forces have addressed a proclamation to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek urging him to surrender because, they declared, the Japanese now have won "sufficient areas in China for establishment of the new order in East Asia."

As a result of Japanese "victories" in Kwangsi Province in South China during the past two weeks, "further resistance against Japan is futile," said the proclamation, issued by the Japanese south China command last night.

Chiang's Chungking government today indicated what its reply would be by adopting plans to float munitions and reconstruction loans. Bankers said the munitions issue would total about 500,000,000 Chinese dollars (about $35,000,000). It would be the first loan so named.

Japan's Proclamation

The proclamation elaborated as follows on its assertion that the time now was ripe for establishment of their desired "new order"—a China under Japanese control:

"The supply routes to Chunking have been cut and rapid progress is being made in formation of a new central government under Wang Ching-wei.

"Therefore in the future we will not expand our operations, but will await your offensive. In case you adopt this latter plan, we will resort to necessary tactics and add more pages to the war annals of the world."

Chinese Deny Claims

The latest South China operations on which last night's proclamation was based centered around Nanking, in Kwangsi province.

The Chinese denied the Japanese claims of victory and asserted the Japanese had withdrawn from this region in the past few days as a result of a Chinese counter offensive.

The Japanese said that 400,000 Chinese and 40,000 Japanese had taken part, at a cost to the Chinese of 200,000 killed and wounded and 100,000 deserting.

tivities of the scuttled warship Admiral Graf Spee off the South American coast, also was rejected by the German government. This protest, the Reich claimed, "has no basis."

The Nazi note declared the German position in regard to the Americas was not equal when compared with the other belligerents.

"Germany never pursued any territorial aims on the American continent while Britain and France have important possessions and bases on that continent and on nearby islands. Because of this exception from the Monroe Doctrine in favor of Britain and France, the desired effect of the security zone was impaired from the very beginning."

Point to Canada

The note further declared the resultant inequality could be removed to a certain extent if Britain and France would guarantee not to make these possessions and islands "starting points or bases for warlike actions."

"Even then," the reply added, "the fact would still exist that one belligerent, namely Canada, has borders directly upon the zone mentioned and would even be surrounded by the zone."

The German government, however, was not uncompromising in its note. It offered, "despite the above circumstances," to be ready for the beginning of an exchange of opinion which might, in the end, make the Panama neutrality declaration effective.

The note welcomed the desire of the American republics to maintain their neutrality in the present war, and alleged that the Franco-British rejections were evidence of "unwillingness" to respect the proposed security zone.

Germany charged Britain and France with "an utter lack of respect for the elementary principles of international law." The Allies, according to the German contention, have demanded that German warships be banned from the 300-mile zone while their own warships be given unrestricted rights to enter it.

Italy, Britain Suspend Trade Negotiations

Copyright by New York Times

London, Feb. 14.—Negotiations between British and Italian officials for a comprehensive trade agreement have been suspended, it was learned today, and members of the British mission in Rome are returning home. While it is expected they will return, the sudden interruption of the talks is interpreted here as a bad sign.

Great hopes had been entertained both here and in Paris for these talks. It was felt that if normal trade between the Allies on one hand and Italy on the other could be started up on a large scale it would lead eventually to more friendly political relations.

Mining Experts Agree America Is Deficient on Metals and Minerals

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 14.—Mining experts agreed here today that the United States is deficient in resources for seven essential war metals and two war minerals.

These reports were made to a symposium of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers. Some of these metals are so important, engineers declared, that their lack in some European countries and their control by others made the present European war inevitable, even omitting some of the other reasons for fighting.

The United States is not so badly off, but nevertheless China, which can be cut off at any time, is a main source for two of these war essentials, India a third, Asia Minor another, and Italy and Spain a fifth.

The seven metals are:

Tin—On which an army's canned food depends. The United States produces but 1 per cent of its tin and the source is the Far East.

Nickel—One-half of 1 per cent produced by the United States, with Canada the main supply source.

Manganese—United States production 5 to 10 per cent of its needs. Supply Russia, Cuba and Brazil.

Chromium—Home production 1 per cent. Sources, Turkish Asia Minor, and Rhodesia, the latter a British source already cut off from the United States.

Tungsten—Essential for tools to make munitions. United States production 40 to 50 per cent. China furnishes the rest.

Mercury—For fulminate caps for projectiles. United States supplies 50 to 60 per cent, and the rest comes from Italy and Spain.

Antimony—For bearings of mechanized Army and alloy for bullets. United States production 10 to 15 per cent. China, Mexico and Brazil the other sources.

The two minerals are mica, for electrical equipment and quartz for military radio. The United States supplies about 20 per cent of its own mica, with the rest coming from India and Brazil. America has virtually no quartz and gets its supply from Brazil.

J. W. Furness, chief of the Economics and Statistics Bureau, United States Bureau of Mines, said that as soon as one nation controls a lot of mineral resources, and limits their distribution under a highly nationalistic policy, war is inevitable.

D. F. Hewett, chief of metalliferous deposits of the United States Bureau of Mines, gave examples. Great Britain, he said, has prevented exploitation by foreign nations of manganese on the African Gold Coast and chromium in Rhodesia. They may only buy from Britain. He said America's Rhodesian supply has been cut off lately.

Other experts declared one reason Russia wants Finland is to place Russia almost on top of the Swedish iron mines, which supply 50 per cent of Germany's iron. The mines are in northern Sweden, are the richest iron ore in the world, and Germany gets this by rail across northern Norway and thence down Norway's coast.

At present, said the engineers, this rich cargo travels inside Norway's 3-mile territorial waters zone.

Nazi Baroness Won't Attend Her Spy Trial

French to Accuse Drawingroom Favorite Now in Germany

By the Associated Press

Paris, Feb. 14.—A senastional spy case involving the activities of a chic young German baroness in the period just preceding the present European war will come to trial here soon. But the baroness won't be here to face her accusers.

The Baroness Von Eineim, frequenter of some of the most elegant quarters of Paris and known as an exceptionally pretty and well dressed young woman, is accused in her absence of trying to get secret state information for the Nazis.

She escaped last July when the government, in greatest secrecy, investigated her activities and put several alleged assistants behind the bars, including two employes of Paris newspapers, a Senate stenographer and an Austrian named Leo Hirsch.

The Austrian is accused of being the baroness' principal aide in attempts to procure secret documents. One of the newspaper men, Julien Poirier, died in prison. The other, Alois Aubin, and the stenographer, Jean Gaston Amourelle, are accused of attempts to give intelligence to a now-enemy state.

If the charges are proved, the baroness faces a possible death sentence, if she ever falls into French hands. The others may get stiff prison sentences.

Military investigators who gathered the evidence in the case turned over their findings to the civil courts today.

The baroness was known as a drawing-room favorite, with social connections throughout Western Europe. She was described as a witty conversationalist, as much at home on the Champs Elysees and in Mayfair as in her native Germany.

In the tense days of last July, just before the war, France was stirred by reports of a great spy hunt after it became known Otto Abetz, described as a right hand man of German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop and a brilliant German propagandist, had been expelled from France.

Reports at that time said the French were investigating the activities of an Austrian countess and two German princesses.

Britain Gives Finn Recruits Its Approval

Suspends Prohibition Of Enlistments For Northern War

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 14.—Great Britain tonight put its approving seal on recruiting for Finland.

At the risk of a new strain on Anglo-Russian relations, already bad, the government officially disclosed that, in the spirit of December League of Nations resolutions calling for aid for the Finns, "general license has been granted to British subjects to enlist in the Finnish force and license has been granted to a recruiting organization which has been established in London."

The Finnish legation, which is behind the recruiting organization, reported the flow of volunteers here as totaling between 2,000 and 3,000. Five hundred "blue ribbon" fighting Englishmen are already receiving special training and 300 "deathshead" Hungarians, sworn to kill ten Russians apiece, are awaiting transportation to Finland. Most of those accepted will be trained in Finland.

Poison Gas Is Charged

A new appeal from the legation, asking "continuation of world-wide sympathy and all possible assistance" to Finland, coincided with the publication in Helsinki of a note to foreign powers charging the Russians with such practices as use of poison gas, explosive bullets, shielding of troops behind prisoners and civilians and misuse of the flag of truce.

The Brtish National Labor Council announced an immediate drive to raise funds for the Finnish people.

Ivan M. Maisky, the Soviet ambassador, was in the Commons' diplomatic gallery when the licensing decision was given to the press.

This regularization of existing Finnish recruiting was made necessary by an act of 1870, enforced by Britain during the Spanish civil war, forbidding enlistment or recruiting of persons to fight against a country "friendly" to Britain. Technically, Russia still is a "friendly" power.

Only those persons over 27 years of age, or exempt for other reasons from British conscription this year, may enlist for Finland.

Britain's attitude is that no added strain on British-Russian relations should result from the enlistment sanction, since the Soviet Union says she is not at war against Finland, only the "White Finns."

Finns Call for Aid

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, Feb. 14.—Observers here urge the imperative necessity for more aid for Finland.

The Summa battle is being compared with Verdun not only symbolically but tactically and it is considered possible that it may last several weeks at least.

It is recalled that at Verdun the Germans with the support of a considerable number of heavy guns often succeeded in taking strong points, villages, even forts such as Vaux, but French resistance continued because there was sufficient manpower to fill the gaps.

By analogy it is believed that the Finns can hold the Karelian Isthmus so long as they have reinforcements. In short, the view here is that the issue of the battle depends principally on the number of men on whom the Finns can count.

Million Graft In Hot Oil Laid To La. Mayor

U. S. Says Maestri, As State Officer, Let Proration Lapse

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Feb. 14.—A Department of Interior report made public here tonight states that Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans, while State commissioner of conservation, derived a profit of more than $1,000,000 by permitting an oil company in which he owned a half interest, to produce unauthorized excesses of petroleum.

Assistant Attorney General Rogge and United States District Attorney Viosca said in an accompanying statement that Mayor Maestri could not be prosecuted under the Connally (hot oil) Act because it is unrelated to the State conservation law regulating oil production.

They added that the Departments of Justice and Interior were continuing investigation—possible isolation—of other statutes.

Maestri is the dominant power in the State political machine and political ally of Gov. Earl K. Long, whom he is backing against Sam H. Jones, "reform candidate," in a Democratic gubernatorial runoff primary to be held nert Tuesday.

Maestri's office said the mayor had no comment to make on the report.

The Connally Act prohibits shipment in interstate or foreign commerce of any oil produced in excess of amounts authorized by the statutes, orders or regulations of States having conservation laws.

back of a chain store truck while on the way to rescue the Midgett couple. Roberts suffered injuries to his leg.

A few minutes before the truck was hit by the ambulance, it had been in collision with a small automobile, which it knocked 50 feet into a field. The drivers of the two vehicles, neither of whom was injured, were discussing the accident in the cab of the truck when the ambulance hit them.

Robert E. Reynolds, 15, of Arlington, Va., seriously injured while sledding at North Irving street and Wilson boulevard when an auto struck him.

Aubrey Toyman, 23, 1425 Fifth street northwest, knocked down by a car in the 700 block of Park road northwest.

Woman Is Struck

Mrs. Virginia Fisher, 42, of the Alban Towers Apartments, struck by an automobile on Twelfth street near Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Lucy Davis, 35, of Baltimore, struck by an automobile at Thirty-fourth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Solomon Freeman, 34, of Palestine, who suffered head and body injuries when the taxicab in which he was a passenger was in a collision in front of the Capitol.

Layhill Road Blocked

In nearby Virginia and Maryland, scores of automobiles skidded from icy highways and were abandoned for the time by their drivers. Arlington and Fairfax counties reported no casualties but numerous bent fenders and stalled automobiles.

Traffic over the Washington-Baltimore boulevard in Prince Georges County, Md., was stalled when Cattail Hill in College Park became impassable and dozens of automobiles piled up there. The bridge at Hyattsville also was bottled up by stalled cars.

Montgomery County police reported Layhill road, near Colesville pike at Silver Spring, impassable and traffic tied up. In both counties virtually all secondary roads were impassable.

Highways in the Valley of Virginia quickly became coated with ice and traffic came to a standstill. State road forces, called out immediately, managed to keep open roads in practically all other sections of the State. High winds, reaching 31 miles at Richmond, 63 at Langley Field, and 72 at Roanoke airport, endangered communications, authorities said, even more than the heavy snows of last month.

Fourteen children were marooned at midnight in a school bus near Midway, Del., and the State highway department reported its rescue trucks unable to reach them. The bus left the Lewes School at 3:30 p. m. and could only get through the snow to Midway, 5 miles away.

Gale winds piled 20-foot drifts in eastern Ohio, and the wind velocity atop New York's Empire State Building was estimated at 100 miles per hour. The wind measuring instruments were frozen and did not register.

A 47-mile-per-hour gust was registered at one moment in Washington, and wind force here was at 40 miles per hour much of the day. The Weather Bureau measured 3 inches of snow following a .35-inch rainfall, and estimated that if all the precipitation had been snow it would have fallen 6 or 7 inches deep.

Warm east and northeast winds from the sea during the morning saved Washington from the worst of the storm, but shifted to the northwest between 9 and 10 a. m. In that hour the temperature dropped eight degrees, from 42 to 34, and fell to 27 at 2 p. m.

A low of 22 degrees was expected before morning, with temperatures close to the freezing point today. Sunshine today will be followed by warmer weather tomorrow, the Weather Bureau forecast.

Yesterday's gale broke a 16-foot sailboat lose from its moorings at th foot of Seventh street southwest, but it was captured off Hains Point by Harbor Police. The boat was owned by H. S. Morton, of Forest Glen, Md.

Snow fell generally over western Maryland, and plows were sent into action against deep drifts on the highways. School buses began taking children home at noon before the roads became impassable.

Bus traffic from the West was running generally an hour behind schedule, and all planes were grounded at Washington airport.

Winds of gale force which swept snow and sleet across the Eastern United States yesterday tied up traffic on land, in the air and at sea, tore vessels loose from their moorings and piled up a formidable list of highway casualties.

A northeast blizzard howling across Boston harbor sent Coast Guardsmen to the aid of at least six vessels, the Associated Press reported, wind velocities reaching the highest point since the 1938 hurricane. For the first time in two years all scheduled sailings from the harbor were canceled, airplanes were grounded and motorists were warned to keep off icy highways.

The City of Boston's institution steamer Michael Perkins, loaded with 200 visitors to a hospital and jail on Harbor Island, tossed helpless for more than an hour, her steering gear fouled in mooring lines. She was towed to safety after narrowly missing being swept out to sea.

The storm brought to Philadelphia the year's heaviest snowfall, 5½ inches, and death to a Delaware River deckhand, crushed to death between a barge and a wharf. Wind reached 39 miles an hour there, the Philadelphia Transportation Co. discontinued more than a fourth of its trolley service, and State police warned motorists against using the highways.

All New England States put hundreds of extra men to work and ordered out all available equipment to clear highways. Near the Rhode Island-Massachusetts border power and telephone lines were down, poles lay across highways and State police rerouted motorists. Motorists were warned of conditions by radio.

Jackson Urges Public Defenders

By the Associated Press

Attorney General Jackson urged Congress yesterday to establish a system of public defenders in Federal district courts.

"It would be an important step in the improvement of the administration of criminal justice," Jackson wrote the Senate and House Judiciary Committees.

"Not only does it assure proper representation by counsel to an individual defendant, but it makes a considerable contribution in the direction of eliminating delays and technicalities."

O'Dunne to Aid In Utility Probe

By the Associated Press

Attorney General Jackson appointed Eugene O'Dunne yesterday to assist Hugh A. Fulton in a grand jury investigation into the Associated Gas & Electric Co., top unit in a $1,000,000,000 utility holding company system.

Fulton is executive assistant to the United States district attorney for the southern district of New York. The Associated Gas & Electric Co. and its immediate underlying holding unit, Associated Gas & Electric Corporation, applied for reorganization in the Federal courts on January 10.

Maas Introduces Bill To Create War Body

Representative Maas, of Minnesota, ranking minority member of the House Naval Affairs Committee, yesterday introduced legislation to set up a special Army-Navy war plans body, which in time of war would become a supreme military command.

Maas' bill would recruit members of the proposed "national defense staff corps" from among officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. Its chief would receive $15,000 a year and have the rank of a field marshal.

Pastor Calls Wars Abroad 'Crucifixion'

Dr. Lenski Preaches At Grace Lutheran In Lenten Services

Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski last night described the wars abroad as a "modern crucifixion."

"Great nations create crucifixions when they violate rights of defenseless minorities," he declared at his Grace Lutheran Church's midweek Lenten service, then reminded that "Americans do the same when they set self too high and others too low."

Wooden crosses are not necessary for a crucifixion, he said, but "just let greed, hate and selfishness have their own way and press the weak with all your power. Call Europe's tragedy by any name you please, it is still a crucifixion."

Ralph Loew Preaches

A plea for keeping "spiritual steeples" erect and alive in the "skyline" of life was voiced by the Rev. Ralph W. Loew, assistant pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church.

Speaker at the weekly union Lenten rites of the Washington Federation of Churches at Epiphany Church, the youthful cleric said the "steeples" are faith in a living God, the consciousness of belonging to His divine race, and a sturdy moral conscience.

He said the "sense of belonging" was the realization that all people are precious in the sight of God, then asked:

"What is the sense of getting excited about the Blue Plains or this war and bloodshed unless we belong to His race?"

Dr. Bonnell to Speak

Dr. John S. Bonnell, pastor of the historic Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, of New York, will address union Lenten services of Chevy Chase Protestant congregations tonight at 8 p. m. at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase Circle.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will speak at today's noonday Lenton rites of Southeast Washington Protestant churches at the Penn Theater, 650 Pennsylvania avenue southeast. Dr. Gove G. Johnson, pastor of National Baptist Memorial Church, preached yesterday.

Veteran Ends Life With Rifle In Maryland Home

George T. Williams, 63, veteran of the Philippine Insurrection, killed himself with a 22-caliber rifle at his home in South Cheverly, Md., early yesterday.

Williams was found by Mrs. H. A. Gordon, a neighbor. Police said he had been in ill health for some time and his wife had been in the Washington Sanitarium for a week.

Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County coroner, said Williams died of a bullet wound in his forehead. He said he apparently had discharged the rifle by looping a string around the trigger and pulling it with his foot. A certificate of suicide was issued.

Williams, who retired from the Army in 1911, had been employed by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. as a service man. Besides his wife, he leaves a daughter and three stepsons.

$500 in Recipe Prizes

Favorite recipes of residents of Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland will win $500 worth of prizes during the Parade of Progress Food Festival celebrating the tenth anniversary of the United Food Stores, officers of the festival announced yesterday. The contest is open now and will close February 21, and anyone is eligible. Recipes may be for any type of dish.

Watchmaker in Lincoln Era Smiles at March of Time

August Reher Began Apprenticeship During Gettysburg Address; Still Walks to His Work

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

August Reher already had begun his apprenticeship as a watchmaker when Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg address.

He was a skilled craftsman by the time of the Franco-Prussian War and a thriving immigrant diligently pursuing his trade in Pana, Ill., when Custer made his last stand at the Little Big Horn.

Yesterday, in a little shop at 722 Eleventh street northwest, he was still carrying on; one of the oldest—if not the oldest—horologers in America, both in age and length of continuous practice.

The interview interrupted a session he was having with a traveler's clock which lay, in its dozens of component pieces, on the work bench. It had been sent in for repairs. By now it should be keeping good time.

Mr. Reher noted the coincidence that the timepiece was made in Germany, the country of his birth on May 25, 1849. That puts him close to the 91-year mark but, as a friend said of him, "he looks and acts more like a man of 65."

"Clocks and watches today are better than they ever were," says the industrious monagenrian, who is not one to pine for "the good old days." "If I have any criticism at all, it is that ladies' wrist watches are becoming too tiny. When you put them down"—he laughed—"it's sometimes hard to find them."

Between the shop, of which his son, Charles A. Reher, is proprietor, and his home at 2106 F street northwest, the man who has followed the same trade for 76 years walks every day. Neither snow wind, rain nor ice is a deterrent.

One day last summer he hiked 58 blocks to an address in the distant Northwest section to regulate a clock which he had repaired.

"I made it in an hour an a half," said Mr. Reher.

Emigrating from Germany at the age of 21, he settled in Pana, a little town in south central Illinois, where he and his wife reared a family of nine children. Mrs. Reher died in 1922, and a decade later the widower moved here to be with his daughters and watchmaker son.

He still has the apprentice tools which broke him into the trade at the age of 14.

"They're just curios any more," he said. "We do things in an up-to-date way now."

4 Die as Auto DropsThrough Ice

Sandusky, Ohio, Feb. 14 (AP).—An automobile plunged through thin Lake Erie ice today carrying Dr. George J. Edan, 33, his wife and two small children to death in 30 feet of water off Middle Bass Island, 5 miles north of the Ohio mainland.

Dr. Edam, Put-in-Bay physician, was answering a call on Middle Mass Island, and was driving on the usual over-the-ice path between the two islands.

William P. Maloney Becomes SEC Counsel

Inventories' Value Shows Billion Gain

Noble Says Unfilled Orders 75 Per Cent Greater Than in 1938

By Felix Cotten.
Post Staff Writer

Undersecretary of Commerce Noble announced yesterday that the value of inventories of manufacturing corporations increased by nearly $1,000,000,000, or about 9 per cent, in the last half of 1939.

Unfilled orders of major industrial groups at the close of the year, meanwhile, he said, were about 75 per cent greater in value than at the end of 1938. This large backlog, he said, was built up by the "fall buying spurt" which followed the outbreak of the war. Unfilled orders had increased greatly during the year for each of the major industries.

At the same time, Noble explained, new orders, which in November were coming in at about the rate deliveries of goods were going out, were about 10 per cent below the value of shipments in December.

Shipments Cut

The basis for the present easing off in manufacturing activity, Noble said, is shown by the fact that shipments were cutting substantially into the backlog of unfilled orders as early as December.

The heavy wave of new orders, he pointed out, began to decline early in November. The trend of new orders, Commerce Department officials said, is still downward. Whether there will be an immediate stimulus, they feel, is in a large degree dependent on Allied war purchases.

Despite the decline in new orders, Noble explained, new business booked in December was about one-sixth above the December, 1938, level.

Some of the foremost Government economists continued to express confidence there would be no appreciable business recession. They said they looked for a continuation of the present moderate business slack until late spring or early summer and thereafter a resumption of the upswing.

Commerce Department officials, however, regard the increase in the value of manufacturing inventories as evidence of substantial inventory accumulations, although the Department's figures do not take into account price changes or seasonal variations. Noble pointed to a rise in value of inventories of 3 per cent in both November and December. This was regarded as a sharp monthly increase.

Cites 1937 Recession

The rise in value of inventories from August, 1936, to September, 1937, was pointed to by New Deal economists as a major cause of the 1937 recession. The recent increase in value, it is pointed out, by no means has been as great as the rise at that time.

Figures on inventories and new orders released by the Commerce Department are new data compiled by a monthly reporting service launched in December in cooperation with manufacturing concerns in all major lines of business.

mendation on January 29 had been ignored.

"Your letter dated January 29, 1940, and addressed to each Commissioner individually has been given most careful consideration by the board," Allen wrote.

"The reorganization plan of government of the District of Columbia as submitted by the Board of Commissioners is a plan for internal reorganization based on existing constitutional and legal requirements.

"As to the election of the members of the proposed advisory council the board believes that the members should be appointed. We know of no instance where purely advisory bodies are subject to election.

"As to the proposed advisory council reporting to Congress, you will note in the Commissioners' reorganization plan as submitted to Congress a provision making it mandatory upon the Commissioners to submit to the Congress any recommendations made by the advisory council.

"The Commissioners appreciate your letter and thank you for bringing your suggestion to their attention."

The Seal plan proposes that the advisory council consist of nine members who are to be consulted at least once monthly by the Commissioners on municipal policy matters.

The Commissioners will present their revised program to the District committee at its meeting next Monday.

Man Killed in Blast

Kingfisher, Okla., Feb. 14 (AP).—An explosion wrecked a five-story grain elevator header house late today, killing one man, injuring three and knocking 40 others from their feet. The blast, attributed to dust, caused damage estimated at more than $50,000.

is born. I see that they are supplied with fruit and green vegetables and other things they need.

"In nearly all cases I take the girl back and forth to the clinic before the baby is born. I see that she gets the necessary tests. I often look after the hospital bills. I supply clothes for the babies and medical attention for them.

"How could anybody do all that without a fee?" she asked, adding that she usually "allows $300 for each child.

"But do you ever investigate the possibilities of the mother's being able to keep the baby?" she was asked.

'These Girls Are Frightened to Death'

"Why, these girls are frightened to death that somebody will find out about it. There's no way for them to keep the babies. Why, some of the girls don't want even their own mothers, who are living elsewhere, to know about it.

"They say they wouldn't have known where to turn if it hadn't been for me. One girl told me: 'This is my last call for help, and if I don't get it from you, I'll jump in the river.'"

Her methods of investigation showed up in the next answers.

"But do you know enough about the baby's background to make sure that the foster parents are safe in taking the child?" she was asked.

"Why, yes, I ask the girl questions about the family for three generations."

"Do you take whatever the girl says at face value without further investigation?"

Child's Father Is Judged From Her Story

"Well, you can tell whether a girl is telling the truth or not, if you've learned to be observant and especially after you get the girl's confidence. I take these girls to lunch and take them driving, and they open up their confidences to me."

"But what about the baby's father? How much do you find out about him?"

"Of course I can't get so much information about him. I get whatever the girl will tell me about him. I judge the father by the type the girl is; because she won't go around much with a boy who is of a lower class than she is."

The agent herself admitted "it is difficult to get good babies."

"How much do you know about the families where you place the babies?"

References Are Required from Families

"Most of them are referred to me by persons already known to me, so they are not perfect strangers. I get information on their education, their income and other facts, also five references. I have a personal interview with them, and I see either the home or pictures of it."

She said she gets "wonderful letters" from families who are pleased with the babies she "lets them have."

This agent has a permit for a boarding home where she keeps the babies until placements are made. Usually the baby is a few days old when she takes it from the hospital, she said. She insisted that she never takes a baby that is not in good condition. She has it examined twice by a doctor before it leaves her hands, she said, and added that she never lets a baby go out younger than three weeks.

She sends most of the babies out of the District. She would not estimate the number she places in a year, but said it would probably total about 750 over some 15 years.

"Meeting a Need Not Being Met Otherwise"

"I am meeting a need that is not being met otherwise," this agent declared.

The social workers, questioned in this series, stressed that very fact—that lack of facilities here for handling the problems of unmarried mothers in a constructive way throws them on the mercy of commercial agents.

Mrs. Olive W. Swinney, secretary of the child welfare division of the Council of Social Agencies, pointed out: "It's true that some placements by commercial agents turn out well. But when they do, it is an accident and not the result of wise planning.

"In some homes which might seem suitable on the surface, the child may be used as a tool one foster parent uses against the other. The child may be subject to tensions between the parents in a detrimental way. Many persons adopt children for motives not to the best interests of the child.

"These are situations which a trained social worker would find out, but a commercial agent might not, especially since the latter is interested in trying to meet the demand for babies."

manganese, tin, and others—are now "considerably below normal" and that difficulties of supply, transportation and price are likely to be encountered "if the present war continues and increases in intensity."

"In the event of unlimited warfare on sea and in the air, possession of a reserve of these essential supplies might prove of vital importance," the President said, "not only in the national defense, but in strengthening the policy of neutrality."

The Naval Affairs Committee's approval of a future Navy building program, of ships which would be laid down in 1941 and 1942 and completed by 1945, came on the heels of sharp cuts made in the annual naval appropriation bill by an economy-bent House House Appropriations Committee.

Navy chiefs, headed by Admiral Harold R. Stark, met with members of the Naval Affairs Committee behind closed doors to ask support for restoring some of the $111,699,699 slashed from the measure.

Afterward, members said they had advised the Navy that in view of the present tenor of the House, efforts should be concentrated on preventing further reductions on the floor. An attempt will be made by Representatives Darden (Democrat), of Virginia, and Maas (Republican), of Minnesota, however, to put back funds for some of the 252 airplanes eliminated by the appropriations committee. About half of them are for the aircraft carrier Hornet, which is nearing completion.

Chairman Vinson said the curtailment of shipbuilding funds will mean the Navy will run about $75,000,000 short before the end of next year and will have to ask a deficiency appropriation next winter. He said he will ask amendment of the bill to permit transfer of money from one project to another to ease the effect of the cuts. Action in the House will come tomorrow.

Cost of the ship authorization bill would be spread over five years or more, the committee report pointed out, with but $19,100,000 scheduled for the next fiscal ear. Heaviest expenditures would come in 1943, when $210,936,019 would be required for the ships and planes provided.

Secretary Edison has indicated that a supplemental appropriation will be asked later in the session for the $19,100,000, if Congress approves the fleet boost.

The measure would add 167,000 tons of combat ships, and 75,000 tons of auxiliaries to the Navy and enlarge naval strength to 4,500 planes. Three aircraft carriers of about 26,500 tons each, some 14 submarines totaling 21,000 tons, and probably four cruisers aggregating 66,500 tons will be constructed, the testimony indicated. Four blimps are included.

Originally the Navy had asked for a long-range program, including 77 combatant ships, 30 auxiliaries and a plane strength of 6,000, to cost $1,300,000,000. The committee substituted the shorter program.

Meanwhile the Senate Appropriations Committee cut an appropriation for the purchase of 15 long-range Coast Guard planes for neutrality patrol, after two Senators criticized the patrol.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Rear Admiral R. R. Waesche, Coast Guard commandant, urged approval of a $2,199,000 item for the planes, but the committee voted only $500,000, the amount approved by the House.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, questioned the patroling of waters where the United States "has no authority" and Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, declared that if this Nation is going to patrol the oceans it ought to be done by the Navy.

Also in jail at Bel Air were two colored men, one of whom was removed from the Worcester jail just before the mob stormed it. The other had been held at Salisbury.

The women—Martha Blake, 31, and her daughter, Lillian Virginia, 14—walked out of the swamp and surrendered yesterday to men on guard. Police said they were companions of the suspect still being sought.

Funeral services for Pilchard were held this afternoon at the Girdle Tree Baptist Church.

In a Salisbury hospital, Mrs. Pilchard was reported "somewhat improved" from a pistol wound inflicted when she attempted to flee from three men she told police invaded their farm home and demanded money.

Sheriff J. William Hall said at least 40 members of the raiding party had been identified, but that "there has been no demand for action against the mob. We have no plan of action now."

The mob action was cited in Washington by supporters of anti-lynching legislation as strengthening their argument for a Federal law. Opponents responded that it still was a problem for the individual States and said the handling of the case by Maryland officers showed the States could look after such affairs.

One man was shot during the troopers' rescue of the women, but Gov. O'Conor said an investigation showed the shooting "was thoroughly justified and in self defense." He said the man shot was Frederick Hickman, 28-year-old oysterman, who was grazed on the thigh by a bullet.

Two troopers were clubbed, but neither was hurt seriously.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

So a Lark Breaks Out Where Only Actress Was

Estelle Taylor Still Is 'Pulling Fast One;' Mae West Continues Mistress of Innuendo; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

BELL

There was a time, not so long ago, when Estelle was one of the most effulgent of the younger beauties contributing their talents to the cinema. If your memory could be stretched as far back as Wesley Ruggles' picturization of Edna Ferber's "Cimarron," you would know what I mean. Irene Dunne made her screen debut in "Cimarron." Chief among her supporting players was Estelle Taylor, in a role that was just a mite on the shady side. Those who attended the premiere of this splendid picture at RKO-Keith's Theater, recall that when Estelle made her personal appearance, along with Mr. Ruggles, Richard Dix, star of the film, and a half dozen others, she voiced a strong plea for audience appreciation of Miss Dunne, adding, almost surreptitiously, "and I hope you'll like me a little bit, too." Everyone present liked Miss Taylor a great deal—both "in the flesh," as Maurice Chevalier always put it, and in her shadow image.

But that is not what we started out to say. What we had in mind was that Estelle Taylor always was looked upon as an actress and not as a musical comedy star, cantatrice or concert artiste. Until a certain day.

That day was when she made her first appearance on the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater, with her own accompanist and all of the other trappings of a young woman who was going to sing her way into a hit, or else.

Nobody, barring possibly herself and her voice coach, had ever looked upon Miss Taylor as one of the stage's eminent warblers up until then. Her vocal range wasn't too great on that first solo appearance, but what there was of it had been cultivated to a fare-thee-well and every note came out in rounded and exquisite fullness and beauty—all six of them! She was a hit. And has been, in this new field of endeavor, ever since.

Funny thing about Estelle's voice. It was exclusively her own secret for years. Even Jack Dempsey, her husband for some six years or so, never suspected that he had a thrush in the house until it was practically too late. While Jack had been having the Tex Rickards et al., about the ancestral menage—if that is what it was—Estelle had been having the Andre de Sigurolas and the like. And that is the way it went. Jack was still busy with the uppercut while Estelle was concerning herself with the upper register.

So remembering Mr. Coe's abjuration, we went to RKO-Keith's Tuesday night to see Mae West and W. C. Fields in "My Little Chickadee." Maybe we weren't feeling too well. Maybe that oyster stew had curdled. Maybe there wasn't a laugh left in us. Anyhow, Miss West and the bulbous Bill seemed something less than inspired in this much-vaunted vehicle for all their fabulous talents. What honors there are, it seems to me, go to the mildly lunatic Mr. Fields. Miss West merely confirms our long-standing view that she could make the multiplication table seem obscene by the mere manner of her reading. And when "The End" is flashed upon the screen it is placed where it will do the most good! Or it may be that "good" is not the word.

Just as Tallulah Bankhead happened upon her first hit in years in "The Little Foxes," so did Katharine Hepburn recatapult herself into the first flight of dramatic stars in "The Philadelphia Story," by Philip Barry and produced under the auspices of the Theater Guild. "The Philadelphia Story" becomes one year old tomorrow. A long life on the stage as it is constituted today.

Turning-Back-the-Calendar Note

Remember that "flareback" when William Howard Taft was inaugurated President of the United States, back in 1909? Well, how did yesterday strike you?

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Feb. 14.

Paulette Goddard, as you know, is playing the halfbreed in "Northwest Mounted Police." Had to have her name changed from "Loupette" to "Louvette"—the latter is female gender. Paulette is also working on "The Ghost Breakers" and is busy practicing her knife-throwing act, which is just too bad for the poor cameraman. Remarked a grip: "And Dictator Chaplin had better look out, too." But another war is being waged over her hair. Producer Hornblow insists it should be short for "The Ghost Breakers;" DeMille says the "little wolf" role demands long hair. So Paulette took her troubles to Chaplin. It remains as is! The dictator settled the argument . . . While this was taking place, Bob Hope stood by silently, which as he said, was the first time he ever did that in Hollywood or any place else! Said Bob: "I'm only the other half of her starring team."

The city of Niagara Falls has decided to open a national campaign for tourists and the honeymoon trade for the opening of "Too Many Husbands." Mayor Ernest Mirrington is huddling with Director Wesley Ruggles and they've whipped out the following slogan: "Too many husbands neglect too many wives. So take another honeymoon in Niagara Falls." They've offered to play host to Hollywood's next film couple, all expenses paid, no strings attached. Can you imagine our movie boys and girls traveling that far? Why, most of them don't stand still long enough to have rice thrown at them.

Jimmie Gleason isn't sure whether his 7-year-old nephew is a budding genius or a critic. Jimmie's been giving him Bible lessons and decided to check up on how much the lad had absorbed. "Now, about Job—what was his condition at the end of his life?" "Dead," was the boy's reply.

Conversation overheard at Brown Derby between two movie actresses. "Oh, my dear, Harry says I'm the only girl he ever loved." Her pal replied: "And doesn't he say it beautifully!"

Wesley Ruggles' 7-year-old son in New York was having his lessons. "What," asked his teacher, "is a collision?" The youngster didn't know. "It's when two things come together," she explained. "Oh, sure, like twins," was his answer.

Actress Turned Concert Artiste

erstwhile leading woman of the films—and an extremely capable one—who returns to the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater tomorrow to headline the vaudeville portion of the program as a singer of the first rank. Miss Taylor's vocal capabilities came as a complete surprise to the Capital when they were revealed here a few years ago. They even surprised her!

Surf Battle Pits Gable vs. Dekker

An advantage of Clark Gable's background as oil worker, lumberjack and surveyor has been the fact that he has been able to perform his own "rough stuff" in pictures without benefit of double, and with great benefit to the authenticity of the picture.

Audiences who see the fight between Gable and Albert Dekker in "Strange Cargo," on the beach and in the surf, ending with each man trying to drown the other, can be sure that it was Gable actually rolling in that icy water and bringing up punches from his shoetops to stop Dekker, who was no mean antagonist, at 6-foot-3 and 235 pounds. There are five fights in this picture in which Gable engages, and it's really Gable every time. "That's still less punishment than some of the other jobs I've held down," he laughs. "Why, it was harder trying to learn to operate an adding machine in the Portland telephone office."

Gable's Dog

Clark Gable has added to his rapidly growing kennels a Labrador retriever presented to him by Nick Taylor of Minneapolis.

Homespun Woolen New Filmdom Fad

Since returning from her personal appearance trip to Atlanta, Ga., Ann Rutherford has discarded her hobby for knitting. She learned to weave at the Biltmore Homespun factory in the South and is now starting the vogue for homespun woolens among the younger set in Hollywood.

Louella O. Parsons' Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Feb. 14 (INS).—I wonder no one thought of it before—Bette Davis as Anna Christie! A natural, I'd say. Well, a swapping deal is now in progress whereby, in exchange for property owned by Warners they will probably get the famous Eugene O'Neil play. M.-G.-M. are smart indeed to make a deal, for there's no one on their lot that could do the Greta Garbo role as well as Bette.

LOUELLA PARSONS

"Anna Christie" did much as any picture to further Greta Garbo's career—and Marie Dressler's, too. Marie played the drunken girl friend of Anna's father and what marvelous performances Marie and Greta gave. I understand the prize Metro asked in exchange was "The Desert Song," but Warners had already planned to make it so another play will have to be substituted.

I've heard everything now. And I think you'll agree when you hear how an unknown 16-year-old Arkansas girl, named Joanne Benedict, sold a story, "Joan of the Ark," to Columbia. Joanne, if you please, sent her manuscript to Frank Capra, fastened with a safety pin, and Frank, who does not usually read these unsolicited contributions, happened to pick it up and was so fascinated that before he knew it he finished the entire fifty pages. Frank's schedule won't permit him to make it himself, but he called Sam Marx at Columbia and raved. Sam was equally surprised and wired an offer of $1,500 to the young author who promptly wired back: "Oh, my goodness."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The Jimmie Fidlers plan to adopt a baby boy; Nancy Kelly and Lee Bowman a new dancing twosome; Natalie Draper out stepping with Reginald Gardiner, Randy's close friend, while Randy is in the East; rumor is strong that Randy will get his divorce on this trip and wed Natalie; Joan Crawford and Cesar Romero as good as any professional dancers, rhumbaing to the delight of Paramount's seventeen visitors at Ciro's. These girls brought on from seventeen cities, had the time of their lives getting autographs. Jackie Cooper was in their party and so were sixteen other dancing lads. Joan and Cesar came on from the "Man Who Came to Dinner" premiere. Just about everyone in town was at the opening.

Saw Florence Eldridge and Freddie March, Jimmie Cagney, the Sam Goldwyns, Hunt Strombergs, the Marx boys and their wives in front seats, Margot Stevenson with Garson Kanin. Sally Eilers looked the prettiest in an all-white creation and Fannie Brice the most unusual with a trick hair-do.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Miss Cornell's Latest Hit at Nat'l Monday

Celebrated Star Plays 'No Time for Comedy;' Other New Programs

"NO TIME FOR COMEDY." Katharine Cornell returns to the National Theater Monday evening for a week's engagement in the S. N. Behrman comedy, which has been one of the past season's most successful plays. The actress-manager is presenting the comedy in association with The Playwrights' Company and under the directorial guidance of her husband, Guthrie McClintic. Mr. Behrman's story concerns an actress and her playwright husband, a man noted for his light successes but who, at the behest of another woman, decides that ours is no time for comedy. Francis Lederer returns to the stage after a lengthy Hollywood sojourn as Miss Cornell's leading man. The supporting company includes Margalo Gillmore, John Williams, Tom Helmore, Larry Fletcher and Gee Gee James. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Capitol

"I TAKE THIS WOMAN." Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr appear as the stars of the long-awaited film which finds the exotic actress playing her first American role. The story concerns a social butterfly who, when her romance crashes, finds sanctuary and true love by the side of an earnest scientist. New York's nightclubs, salons and tenements are the backgrounds of the screen-play. Verree Teasdale, Kent Taylor, Laraine Day, Mona Barrie, Paul Cavanagh, Louis Calhern, Frances Drake and Dalies Frantz are the principals. Estelle Taylor headlines the new stage revue, "Crazy Show," the second in an annual series inaugurated last year by manager Gene Ford. Last year's master-of-ceremonies, Lew Parker, returns and brings with him his own supporting company. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"HE MARRIED HIS WIFE." Joel McCrea and Nancy Kelly costar in this story of an ex-husband who wants to find a husband for his wife so he can stop paying alimony. The plot thickens when the erstwhile husband balks at his wife's preference for a mate over his own colorless choice. Roland Young, Mary Boland, Sesac Romero, Mary Healy and Lyle Talbot are in the cast. Eddy Duchin brings his noted orchestra to the Earle stage for the first six days of the new fifilm's engagement only, closing next Wednesday evening. The supporting artists in the Duchin group include Lew Sherwood, singing trumpeter; Stanley Worth, song stylist; Johnny McAfee, vocalist; Roy Davis and his "phunny-graff;" June Robbins; Ruth and Billy Ambrose, and Ray and Trent. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"MY LITTLE CHICKADEE." The Mae Dest-W. C. Fields costarring vehicle continues into its second week at the Fifteenth street film house. The two funsters have roles well adapted to their respective needs in a story of the wild and woolly frontier days of the 1880's. Dick Foran, Donald Meek, Margaret Hamilton and John Carradine have the supporting roles.

Palace

"GONE WITH THE WIND." The most talked-of film of the year continues into a fourth week at the Palace Theater, maintaining the policy which has made the first three so successful. Unreserved seats and continuous showings prevail during the day, while in the evening there is but one showing and the seats are all reserved.

Metropolitan

"THE FIGHTING 69TH" continues its repeat engagement through Wednesday, February 21. On Washington's Birthday the bill will be changed with "Geronimo," a story of the Indian wars, the item of chief interest. The supplementary bill is held over with "The Fighting 69th," one of the prize action-dramas of the year.

An Empress

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER as she appears in the third scene of her una-drama of "The Empress Eugenie," to be repeated soon at a Saturday matinee performance in the National Theater

Columbia

"THE SHOP AROUND THE CORNER." James Stewart and Margaret Sullavan costar in Ernst Lubitsch's latest screen play. The film recently played a week at the Capitol. From the satire of "Ninotchka," the noted director, has gone to simple realism for the theme of this film, which features in its supporting cast Frank Morgan and Joseph Schildkraut. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"SECRET AGENT." From the novel "Ashenden," by W. Somerset Maugham, this story of international espionage was directed by Alfred Hitchcock, who performed a similar office for "The 39 Steps" and "The Lady Vanishes." John Gielgud, Madeleine Carroll, Robert Young and Peter Lorre are the stars. Also continuing on the Little screen are three Walt Disney short subjects.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Feb. 14.

GRETA GARBO, who left Palm Beach last week-end because she was annoyed at the curiosity of the winter residents, might have been able to remain there, undiscovered, if she hadn't been too wary of a camera . . . Jerome Zerbe, the photographer, had stopped at the Alibi Bar, and placed his camera on the seat next to him, while he sipped his drink. A waiter brought him a message: "The young lady asks would you please be a gentleman, and not take her picture" . . . "Which young lady?" asked Zerbe, looking in the direction indicated—and there was Garbo.

JOHN ROGGE is going to New Orleans, to prosecute the Gov. Leche case there . . . Boris Lovet-Lorski, the Russian sculptor who is exhibiting his works in N. Y. C., has invited Helen Keller to send a group of the blind to "feel" his exhibit . . . Prof. Otto Marburg, the noted Viennese neuropathologist who fled from the University of Vienna, now is continuing his research work in a converted storeroom at Montefiore Hospital. "It really makes no difference," Prof. Marburg tells his friends. "Freedom has nothing to do with the amount of space at your disposal." . . . Lee Strasberg, who is directing the Theater Guild's new Hemingway play, told one of the verbose actors: "Listen—just for the sake of argument, shut up."

CHARLES FARRELL, who became one of America's best known stars when he appeared in "Seventh Heaven," now owns and operates the Racquet Club, in Palm Springs . . . Farrell has no financial worries. He is happily married. He owns this beautiful estate, complete with lakes, tennis courts and stables. His guests include the foremost people in this country. But still he's not content, for he cannot down the urge to become an actor again . . . And so there, in Palm Springs, Charles Farrell is building a winter theater—and will appear in performances as a minor player.

J. EDGAR HOOVER is set to announce another front-page story. His staff in N. Y. is working overtime on it . . . 20 couples will be married at the Golden Gate Ballroom in Harlem, in a mass ceremony, for $50 each plus house-furnishings . . . Hanns Eisler, who composed the incidental music to Clifford's Odets' new show, "Night Music," received one opening-night wire which read: "Hals und Beinbruck." It means "May you break your neck and bone"—the traditional good-wish wire of the German theater . . . After the annual convention, the presidency of the American Newspaper Guild will be made a full-time salaried job.

JOE FRISCO is telling his Hollywood friends that he had a terrible dream—that he was in a card game with eight tough men, lost $1,000, and couldn't pay off. Just as they were closing in on him, Joe was awakened by a telephone call—from a lady who invited him to dinner. Frisco, relieved at this awakening, accepted. "Then waddya think h-h-happened?" said Joe. "I h-h-hung up, fell asleep—and don't you th-th-think I went f-f-for $750 more?"

MOSS HART, who has spent a fortune being treated by psychoanalysts, will get it all back with his new play. It's about a girl being treated by psychoanalysts . . . Hart, who outraged the Los Angeles citizens last week by telling interviewers: "Los Angeles is 'a town of irresistible charm and that he couldn't wait to get out of it,'" merely was quoting from one of Sheridan Whiteside's speeches in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" . . . Vernon Duke, the composer, now is writing theme songs, in Palm Beach, for Helena Rubinstein's perfumes . . . Matty Malneck, whose orchestra contributes so much to the success of the new Beachcombers, is organizing a 16-piece danceband. His current unit will remain, as specialists.

TOMMY MANVILLE came to Lindy's Monday night, and saw Milton Berle, who is featured in "See My Lawyer," the play which burlesques Manville's antics . . . "I want to thank you, Tommy," Berle told him, "for giving a steady job to my brother" . . . "A steady job? Your brother?" Manville repeated. "What do you mean?" . . . "He's a process-server now," Berle explained, "—against you."

ALFRED LUNT and Lynn Fontanne raised more than $25,000 for the Finnish Relief Fund, when they and their entire company—including the office staff—contributed their services free, for a week's run of "The Taming of the Shrew."

Trans-Lux

"THE REPUBLIC OF FINLAND." The latest issue of the "March of Time" is the incoming featured short subject at the newsreel house. Detailing a description and commentary of the little republic, the issue stresses its defenses against Russia. A California ranch exemplifies large-scale farming in "Acres of Plenty" and "The Happytots' Expedition" is the color cartoon. Opens tomorrow morning.

Atlas

"THE THREE STOOGES." Moe, Larry and Curley, the Hollywood zanies, noted for their comedies as "The Three Stooges," are the headliners of the new stage bill at the Northeast theater, opening Sunday. Other acts and a double-feature screen bill will complete the program.

Howard

TEDDY WILSON, often labeled the "Sepia Phenomenon of the Piano," brings his sizzling syncopators to the Howard Theater to headline the stage portion of the entertainment charted for the week beginning Friday. Songstress Avis Andrews and a long list of colored stars will augment the living half of the program. The screen feature will be "Scandal Sheet," featuring Otto Kruger and Ona Munson, the Belle Watling of "Gone With hte Wind."

So a Lark Breaks Out Where Only Actress Was

BELL

There was a time, not so long ago, when Estelle was one of the most effulgent of the younger beauties contributing their talents to the cinema. If your memory could be stretched as far back as Wesley Ruggles' picturization of Edna Ferber's "Cimarron," you would know what I mean. Irene Dunne made her screen debut in "Cimarron." Chief among her supporting players was Estelle Taylor, in a role that was just a mite on the shady side. Those who attended the premiere of this splendid picture at RKO-Keith's Theater, recall that when Estelle made her personal appearance, along with Mr. Ruggles, Richard Dix, star of the film, and a half dozen others, she voiced a strong plea for audience appreciation of Miss Dunne, adding, almost surreptitiously, "and I hope you'll like me a little bit, too." Everyone present liked Miss Taylor a great deal—both "in the flesh," as Maurice Chevalier always put it, and in her shadow image.

But that is not what we started out to say. What we had in mind was that Estelle Taylor always was looked upon as an actress and not as a musical comedy star, cantatrice or concert artiste. Until a certain day.

That day was when she made her first appearance on the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater, with her own accompanist and all of the other trappings of a young woman who was going to sing her way into a hit, or else.

Nobody, barring possibly herself and her voice coach, had ever looked upon Miss Taylor as one of the stage's eminent warblers up until then. Her vocal range wasn't too great on that first solo appearance, but what there was of it had been cultivated to a fare-thee-well and every note came out in rounded and exquisite fullness and beauty—all six of them! She was a hit. And has been, in this new field of endeavor, ever since.

Funny thing about Estelle's voice. It was exclusively her own secret for years. Even Jack Dempsey, her husband for some six years or so, never suspected that he had a thrush in the house until it was practically too late. While Jack had been having the Tex Rickards et al., about the ancestral menage—if that is what it was—Estelle had been having the Andre de Sigurolas and the like. And that is the way it went. Jack was still busy with the uppercut while Estelle was concerning herself with the upper register.

So remembering Mr. Coe's abjuration, we went to RKO-Keith's Tuesday night to see Mae West and W. C. Fields in "My Little Chickadee." Maybe we weren't feeling too well. Maybe that oyster stew had curdled. Maybe there wasn't a laugh left in us. Anyhow, Miss West and the bulbous Bill seemed something less than inspired in this much-vaunted vehicle for all their fabulous talents. What honors there are, it seems to me, go to the mildly lunatic Mr. Fields. Miss West merely confirms our long-standing view that she could make the multiplication table seem obscene by the mere manner of her reading. And when "The End" is flashed upon the screen it is placed where it will do the most good! Or it may be that "good" is not the word.

Just as Tallulah Bankhead happened upon her first hit in years in "The Little Foxes," so did Katharine Hepburn recatapult herself into the first flight of dramatic stars in "The Philadelphia Story," by Philip Barry and produced under the auspices of the Theater Guild. "The Philadelphia Story" becomes one year old tomorrow. A long life on the stage as it is constituted today.

Turning-Back-the-Calendar Note

Remember that "flareback" when William Howard Taft was inaugurated President of the United States, back in 1909? Well, how did yesterday strike you?

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Feb. 14.

Paulette Goddard, as you know, is playing the half-breed in "Northwest Mounted Police." Had to have her name changed from "Loupette" to "Louvette"—the latter is female gender. Paulette is also working on "The Ghost Breakers" and is busy practicing her knife-throwing act, which is just too bad for the poor cameraman. Remarked a grip: "And Dictator Chaplin had better look out, too." But another war is being waged over her hair. Producer Hornblow insists it should be short for "The Ghost Breakers;" DeMille says the "little wolf" role demands long hair. So Paulette took her troubles to Chaplin. It remains as is! The dictator settled the argument . . . While this was taking place, Bob Hope stood by silently, which as he said, was the first time he ever did that in Hollywood or any place else! Said Bob: "I'm only the other half of her starring team."

HOPPER

The city of Niagara Falls has decided to open a national campaign for tourists and the honeymoon trade for the opening of "Too Many Husbands." Mayor Ernest Mirrington is huddling with Director Wesley Ruggles and they've whipped out the following slogan: "Too many husbands neglect too many wives. So take another honeymoon in Niagara Falls." They've offered to play host to Hollywood's next film couple, all expenses paid, no strings attached. Can you imagine our movie boys and girls traveling that far? Why, most of them don't stand still long enough to have rice thrown at them.

Jimmie Gleason isn't sure whether his 7-year-old nephew is a budding genius or a critic. Jimmie's been giving him Bible lessons and decided to check up on how much the lad had absorbed. "Now, about Job—what was his condition at the end of his life?" "Dead," was the boy's reply.

Conversation overheard at Brown Derby between two movie actresses. "Oh, my dear, Harry says I'm the only girl he ever loved." Her pal replied: "And doesn't he say it beautifully!"

Wesley Ruggles' 7-year-old son in New York was having his lessons. "What," asked his teacher, "is a collision?" The youngster didn't know. "It's when two things come together," she explained. "Oh, sure, like twins," was his answer.

Actress Turned Concert Artiste

ESTELLE TAYLOR, erstwhile leading woman of the films—and an extremely capable one—who returns to the stage of Loew's Capitol Theater tomorrow to headline the vaudeville portion of the program as a singer of the first rank. Miss Taylor's vocal capabilities came as a complete surprise to the Capital when they were revealed here a few years ago. They even surprised her!

Surf Battle Pits Gable vs. Dekker

An advantage of Clark Gable's background as oil worker, lumberjack and surveyor has been the fact that he has been able to perform his own "rough stuff" in pictures without benefit of double, and with great benefit to the authenticity of the picture.

Audiences who see the fight between Gable and Albert Dekker in "Strange Cargo," on the beach and in the surf, ending with each man trying to drown the other, can be sure that it was Gable actually rolling in that icy water and bringing up punches from his shoetops to stop Dekker, who was no mean antagonist, at 6-foot-3 and 235 pounds. There are five fights in this picture in which Gable engages, and it's really Gable every time. "That's still less punishment than some of the other jobs I've held down," he laughs. "Why, it was harder trying to learn to operate an adding machine in the Portland telephone office."

Gable's Dog

Homespun Woolen New Filmdom Fad

Since returning from her personal appearance trip to Atlanta, Ga., Ann Rutherford has discarded her hobby for knitting. She learned to weave at the Biltmore Homespun factory in the South and is now starting the vogue for homespun woolens among the younger set in Hollywood.

Louella O. Parsons' Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Feb. 14 (INS).—I wonder no one thought of it before—Bette Davis as Anna Christie! A natural, I'd say. Well, a swapping deal is now in progress whereby, in exchange for property owned by Warners they will probably get the famous Eugene O'Neil play. M.-G.-M. are smart indeed to make a deal, for there's no one on their lot that could do the Greta Garbo role as well as Bette.

LOUELLA PARSONS

"Anna Christie" did much as any picture to further Greta Garbo's career—and Marie Dressler's, too. Marie played the drunken girl friend of Anna's father and what marvelous performances Marie and Greta gave. I understand the prize Metro asked in exchange was "The Desert Song," but Warners had already planned to make it so another play will have to be substituted.

I've heard everything now. And I think you'll agree when you hear how an unknown 16-year-old Arkansas girl, named Joanne Benedict, sold a story, "Joan of the Ark," to Columbia. Joanne, if you please, sent her manuscript to Frank Capra, fastened with a safety pin, and Frank, who does not usually read these unsolicited contributions, happened to pick it up and was so fascinated that before he knew it he finished the entire fifty pages. Frank's schedule won't permit him to make it himself, but he called Sam Marx at Columbia and raved. Sam was equally surprised and wired an offer of $1,500 to the young author who promptly wired back: "Oh, my goodness."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The Jimmie Fidlers plan to adopt a baby boy; Nancy Kelly and Lee Bowman a new dancing twosome; Natalie Draper out stepping with Reginald Gardiner, Randy's close friend, while Randy is in the East; rumor is strong that Randy will get his divorce on this trip and wed Natalie; Joan Crawford and Cesar Romero as good as any professional dancers, rhumbaing to the delight of Paramount's seventeen visitors at Ciro's. These girls brought on from seventeen cities, had the time of their lives getting autographs. Jackie Cooper was in their party and so were sixteen other dancing lads. Joan and Cesar came on from the "Man Who Came to Dinner" premiere. Just about everyone in town was at the opening.

Saw Florence Eldridge and Freddie March, Jimmie Cagney, the Sam Goldwyns, Hunt Strombergs, the Marx boys and their wives in front seats, Margot Stevenson with Garson Kanin. Sally Eilers looked the prettiest in an all-white creation and Fannie Brice the most unusual with a trick hair-do.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Miss Cornell's Latest Hit at Nat'l Monday

Celebrated Star Plays 'No Time for Comedy;' Other New Programs

"NO TIME FOR COMEDY." Katharine Cornell returns to the National Theater Monday evening for a week's engagement in the S. N. Behrman comedy, which has been one of the past season's most successful plays. The actress-manager is presenting the comedy in association with The Playwrights' Company and under the directorial guidance of her husband, Guthrie McClintic. Mr. Behrman's story concerns an actress and her playwright husband, a man noted for his light successes but who, at the behest of another woman, decides that ours is no time for comedy. Francis Lederer returns to the stage after a lengthy Hollywood sojourn as Miss Cornell's leading man. The supporting company includes Margalo Gillmore, John Williams, Tom Helmore, Larry Fletcher and Gee Gee James. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Capitol

"I TAKE THIS WOMAN." Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr appear as the stars of the long-awaited film which finds the exotic actress playing her first American role. The story concerns a social butterfly who, when her romance crashes, finds sanctuary and true love by the side of an earnest scientist. New York's nightclubs, salons and tenements are the backgrounds of the screen-play. Verree Teasdale, Kent Taylor, Laraine Day, Mona Barrie, Paul Cavanagh, Louis Calhern, Frances Drake and Dalies Frantz are the principals. Estelle Taylor headlines the new stage revue, "Crazy Show," the second in an annual series inaugurated last year by manager Gene Ford. Last year's master-of-ceremonies, Lew Parker, returns and brings with him his own supporting company. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"HE MARRIED HIS WIFE." Joel McCrea and Nancy Kelly costar in this story of an ex-husband who wants to find a husband for his wife so he can stop paying alimony. The plot thickens when the erstwhile husband balks at his wife's preference for a mate over his own colorless choice. Roland Young, Mary Boland, Sesac Romero, Mary Healy and Lyle Talbot are in the cast. Eddy Duchin brings his noted orchestra to the Earle stage for the first six days of the new fifilm's engagement only, closing next Wednesday evening. The supporting artists in the Duchin group include Lew Sherwood, singing trumpeter; Stanley Worth, song stylist; Johnny McAfee, vocalist; Roy Davis and his "phunny-graff;" June Robbins; Ruth and Billy Ambrose, and Ray and Trent. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"MY LITTLE CHICKADEE." The Mae Dest-W. C. Fields costarring vehicle continues into its second week at the Fifteenth street film house. The two funsters have roles well adapted to their respective needs in a story of the wild and woolly frontier days of the 1880's. Dick Foran, Donald Meek, Margaret Hamilton and John Carradine have the supporting roles.

Palace

"GONE WITH THE WIND." The most talked-of film of the year continues into a fourth week at the Palace Theater, maintaining the policy which has made the first three so successful. Unreserved seats and continuous showings prevail during the day, while in the evening there is but one showing and the seats are all reserved.

Metropolitan

"THE FIGHTING 69TH" continues its repeat engagement through Wednesday, February 21. On Washington's Birthday the bill will be changed with "Geronimo," a story of the Indian wars, the item of chief interest. The supplementary bill is held over with "The Fighting 69th," one of the prize action-dramas of the year.

An Empress

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER as she appears in the third scene of her una-drama of "The Empress Eugenie," to be repeated soon at a Saturday matinee performance in the National Theater

Columbia

"THE SHOP AROUND THE CORNER." James Stewart and Margaret Sullavan costar in Ernst Lubitsch's latest screen play. The film recently played a week at the Capitol. From the satire of "Ninotchka," the noted director, has gone to simple realism for the theme of this film, which features in its supporting cast Frank Morgan and Joseph Schildkraut. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"SECRET AGENT." From the novel "Ashenden," by W. Somerset Maugham, this story of international espionage was directed by Alfred Hitchcock, who performed a similar office for "The 39 Steps" and "The Lady Vanishes." John Gielgud, Madeleine Carroll, Robert Young and Peter Lorre are the stars. Also continuing on the Little screen are three Walt Disney short subjects.

Film Table

Earle—"His Girl Friday," at 11 a. m., 1:40, 4:25, 7:10 and 10 p. m. Stage shows at 12:40, 3:25, 6:15 and 9 p. m.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Feb. 14.

GRETA GARBO, who left Palm Beach last week-end because she was annoyed at the curiosity of the winter residents, might have been able to remain there, undiscovered, if she hadn't been too wary of a camera . . . Jerome Zerbe, the photographer, had stopped at the Alibi Bar, and placed his camera on the seat next to him, while he sipped his drink. A waiter brought him a message: "The young lady asks would you please be a gentleman, and not take her picture" . . . "Which young lady?" asked Zerbe, looking in the direction indicated—and there was Garbo.

JOHN ROGGE is going to New Orleans, to prosecute the Gov. Leche case there . . . Boris Lovet-Lorski, the Russian sculptor who is exhibiting his works in N. Y. C., has invited Helen Keller to send a group of the blind to "feel" his exhibit . . . Prof. Otto Marburg, the noted Viennese neuropathologist who fled from the University of Vienna, now is continuing his research work in a converted storeroom at Montefiore Hospital. "It really makes no difference," Prof. Marburg tells his friends. "Freedom has nothing to do with the amount of space at your disposal." . . . Lee Strasberg, who is directing the Theater Guild's new Hemingway play, told one of the verbose actors: "Listen—just for the sake of argument, shut up."

CHARLES FARRELL, who became one of America's best known stars when he appeared in "Seventh Heaven," now owns and operates the Racquet Club, in Palm Springs . . . Farrell has no financial worries. He is happily married. He owns this beautiful estate, complete with lakes, tennis courts and stables. His guests include the foremost people in this country. But still he's not content, for he cannot down the urge to become an actor again . . . And so there, in Palm Springs, Charles Farrell is building a winter theater—and will appear in performances as a minor player.

J. EDGAR HOOVER is set to announce another front-page story. His staff in N. Y. is working overtime on it . . . 20 couples will be married at the Golden Gate Ballroom in Harlem, in a mass ceremony, for $50 each plus house-furnishings . . . Hanns Eisler, who composed the incidental music to Clifford's Odets' new show, "Night Music," received one opening-night wire which read: "Hals und Beinbruck." It means "May you break your neck and bone"—the traditional good-wish wire of the German theater . . . After the annual convention, the presidency of the American Newspaper Guild will be made a full-time salaried job.

JOE FRISCO is telling his Hollywood friends that he had a terrible dream—that he was in a card game with eight tough men, lost $1,000, and couldn't pay off. Just as they were closing in on him, Joe was awakened by a telephone call—from a lady who invited him to dinner. Frisco, relieved at this awakening, accepted. "Then waddya think h-h-happened?" said Joe. "I h-h-hung up, fell asleep—and don't you th-th-think I went f-f-for $750 more?"

MOSS HART, who has spent a fortune being treated by psychoanalysts, will get it all back with his new play. It's about a girl being treated by psychoanalysts . . . Hart, who outraged the Los Angeles citizens last week by telling interviewers: "Los Angeles is 'a town of irresistible charm and that he couldn't wait to get out of it,'" merely was quoting from one of Sheridan Whiteside's speeches in "The Man Who Came to Dinner" . . . Vernon Duke, the composer, now is writing theme songs, in Palm Beach, for Helena Rubinstein's perfumes . . . Matty Malneck, whose orchestra contributes so much to the success of the new Beachcombers, is organizing a 16-piece danceband. His current unit will remain, as specialists.

TOMMY MANVILLE came to Lindy's Monday night, and saw Milton Berle, who is featured in "See My Lawyer," the play which burlesques Manville's antics . . . "I want to thank you, Tommy," Berle told him, "for giving a steady job to my brother" . . . "A steady job? Your brother?" Manville repeated. "What do you mean?" . . . "He's a process-server now," Berle explained, "—against you."

ALFRED LUNT and Lynn Fontanne raised more than $25,000 for the Finnish Relief Fund, when they and their entire company—including the office staff—contributed their services free, for a week's run of "The Taming of the Shrew."

Trans-Lux

"THE REPUBLIC OF FINLAND." The latest issue of the "March of Time" is the incoming featured short subject at the newsreel house. Detailing a description and commentary of the little republic, the issue stresses its defenses against Russia. A California ranch exemplifies large-scale farming in "Acres of Plenty" and "The Happytots' Expedition" is the color cartoon. Opens tomorrow morning.

Atlas

"THE THREE STOOGES." Moe, Larry and Curley, the Hollywood zanies, noted for their comedies as "The Three Stooges," are the headliners of the new stage bill at the Northeast theater, opening Sunday. Other acts and a double-feature screen bill will complete the program.

Howard

TEDDY WILSON, often labeled the "Sepia Phenomenon of the Piano," brings his sizzling syncopators to the Howard Theater to headline the stage portion of the entertainment charted for the week beginning Friday. Songstress Avis Andrews and a long list of colored stars will augment the living half of the program. The screen feature will be "Scandal Sheet," featuring Otto Kruger and Ona Munson, the Belle Watling of "Gone With hte Wind."

Ominous Announcement

The torpedoing of the Dutch liner Burgerdijk has aroused particular indignation in Holland because the ship was proceeding from the United States direct to the Netherlands, with no intent of touching at a British port, or unloading supplies for British use. The German government, however, has justified the sinking of this ship on the grounds that it was, or would have been, subject to the British contraband control.

This new development of policy in Germany's attempt to blockade Great Britain is obviously of the greatest significance to all neutrals. And it was announced at Berlin yesterday that any American ship taken into Gibraltar or other British ports for contraband examination would be, from a legal point of view, a "fair victim" for a German submarine.

While this announcement is obviously intended primarily to intimidate neutral shippers, it cannot be allowed to pass unchallenged. There are real and legitimate grievances connected with the operation of the British system of contraband control. But these cannot obscure the complete illegality of any attempt to sink a neutral vessel subject to such restrictions. Such an action, under the terms of international law, would be pure piracy.

It is to be hoped that this new development in German naval policy is being made one of the subjects of the discussions which, as the President announced last week, are now going forward between the United States and other neutral powers.

Two Trade Agreements

On Monday a new German-Russian trade agreement was signed at Moscow, an event proclaimed in banner headlines in the Berlin press. That same day the British government announced that a new trade pact with Turkey would go into effect on February 19.

Both of these pacts are clearly far more political than commercial in their nature. Great Britain is anxious to bolster the economy of its ally, Turkey, a large percentage of whose trade during recent years has been with the Reich. Germany and Russia, for their part, also regard it as essential to expand the commercial relations that exist between them, or at least make a dramatic gesture in that direction.

Of the two pacts, however, the Anglo-Turkish pact has the greater chance of fulfilling expectations. If shipping is available, there is no reason why Great Britain cannot increase its purchases from Turkey far beyond the $12,000,000 level reached in 1938. The British are also in a position to provide Turkey with a very large part of the manufactured products which the latter formerly purchased in Germany.

In the case of the Russo-German agreement, however, the will for greatly expanded commercial dealings is probably stronger than the capacity to achieve that goal. Theoretically, Russia can supply Germany with many products from which the Reich has been cut off by the blockade. Theoretically, Germany can, through her superior manufacturing capacity and technical skill, take care of Russia's tremendous potential demand for machines, factory installations, technicians. Actually, however, many difficulties stand in the way of any rapid large-scale expansion of German exports to Russia, or of Russian exports to Germany.

In other words, the latest Russo-German agreement may be partly designed to cheer the German people, hard-pressed as they are by increasingly serious shortages of food and raw materials. It is certainly interesting that while the amount of goods to be exchanged is being kept a mystery, rumors are being covertly floated in Berlin that under the new treaty the Russo-German trade during the coming year will amount to more than 1,000,000,000 marks.

Even if that should prove to be the case, which is highly problematical, it would solve neither the problem of German shortages or that of Russian disorganization.

Official Lobbying

The act forbidding Federal officials to spend public money to influence national legislation was passed in 1919. But during the two decades in which it has been the law of the land it appears to have been a dead letter. At least, officials of the Department of Justice can recall no cases that have been prosecuted under it.

This record of inactivity in applying the law probably explains the caution of the Smith committee in dealing with various officials of the National Labor Relations Board who have engaged in lobbying activities. Chairman Smith of the investigating committee pointed out that many governmental agencies are known to engage in lobbying when their appropriations are in danger of being cut. Members of the committee were not in agreement as to the precise meaning of the statute. In these circumstances they followed a reasonable and proper course in calling for an opinion from the Attorney General.

Lobbying to secure ample funds from Congress appears to have been a routine activity on the part of the NLRB. Edwin S. Smith, a member of the board, went so far as to telephone a subordinate in Seattle, asking him to communicate with labor leaders and others in regard to a possible cut in the board's appropriation. "Oh, yes," Mr. Smith replied when he was asked if the telephone message was paid for by the Government.

That sort of lobbying on the part of Government officials is obviously pernicious. Executive officials and members of quasi-judicial boards may properly explain their needs to Congress. But the use of taxpayers' money to arouse popular support and thus bring pressure upon Congress represents bureaucracy at its worst.

It is a pity that the anti-lobbying statute aimed at such misuse of public funds has been permitted to lie dormant. That act is clear-cut and sweeping in its terms. It provides that "no part of the money appropriated by any act shall, in the absence of express authorization by Congress, be used directly or indirectly to pay for any personal service, advertisement, telegram, telephone, letter, printed or written matter, or other device, intended or designed to influence in any manner a member of Congress, to favor or oppose, by vote or otherwise, any legislation or appropriation . . ."

Attorneys General serving during the last 20 years could best explain why this law has not been enforced. The Smith committee has rendered a real public service by calling the attention of the recently appointed Attorney General, Robert H. Jackson, to this statute and to lobbying activities within the NLRB. That should be an effective means of reviving the act, or, if it should prove to be defective, of referring the matter once more to Congress for the enactment of a proper measure against lobbying by Federal officeholders.

Of course, NLRB lobbyists should not be singled out for special criticism or prosecution. The law should be impartially enforced against all agents of the Government believed to be spending public money to influence Congress. With Congress struggling to reduce the perennial deficit, the time is particularly ripe to safeguard legislators from artificial pressure incited by spending agencies.

Grim Irony

There is grim irony in the circumstance that the Senate passed the Export-Import Bank bill, making possible a $20,000,000 loan to Finland for the purchase of nonmilitary supplies, at the very moment when Russian pressure on the Finnish lines was really beginning to tell.

For ten weeks the Finns have given the world a truly remarkable demonstration of courage and fighting ability. They belied the general belief that their little nation would speedily be overrun by the Red steam roller. Inflicting terrific losses on the invaders, they have held out against what appear to be hopeless odds. But, unlike their oversanguine friends and certain of their well-wishers, they have never been under the illusion that they could continue to do so indefinitely without prompt and large-scale assistance.

Some aid has reached the Finns from other Scandinavian countries and more recently from Great Britain and France. More appears to be on the way, although it is an open question whether that aid will reach Finland in time or will be sufficient in volume to keep the endless waves of Red military man power from breaking down the Finnish defenses and sweeping over the land.

In the meantime, the Administration and Congress have been considering the question of what aid the United States should give Finland. Precious weeks have been consumed in endless discussion and now, with action in sight, it may be too late. Fighting with her back to the wall, Finland has little need for those nonmilitary supplies she will be able to purchase in this country by means of an Export-Import Bank credit. Even if she could resell such supplies to a third party and with the proceeds buy the airplanes and munitions she so desperately needs, the time it would take to complete such transactions might hamper their usefulness.

The Senate's action in passing the Export-Import Bank bill this week thus resolves itself into little more than a gesture, all the more sardonic in its implications because it was so well-intentioned in purpose.

A Cautious Naval Policy

In reporting out the Navy supply bill, the House Appropriations Committee advocated a cautious policy of building up our first line of defense, just as the Naval Affairs Committee has done. The latter group has approved a two-year building program, instead of the ambitious six-year plan sponsored by the Administration. It takes the position that naval construction should go forward as rapidly as possible in the immediate future, but that judgment should be reserved as to defense needs from two to six years hence.

The Appropriations Committee, too, is convinced that a large-scale construction program should continue. Its bill now before the House would provide the largest naval appropriations in our peacetime history. Nevertheless, the committee managed to trim more than $111,000,000 from the immense fund which the Administration requested for the Navy in the fiscal year 1941.

There is no assurance that this sum will be saved, as Secretary Edison has indicated that he will submit a supplemental estimate to Congress later in the year. That request, of course, will have to be considered on its own merits after it is made. For the present it appears that the committee has done a careful job of trimming, while at the same time making allowance for a substantial increase in the strength of the Navy.

A Congress that is struggling to bring Government expenditures into line with revenue cannot consistently lay aside its economy ax when national defense bills are being passed. It must balance the pressing need for curtailment of expenditures with the necessity of reinforcing our strength on the seas in this critical period. If adjustments are made with the same care which the House committee appears to have given to the Navy supply bill, there will be little ground for complaint.

A Tax Dilemma?

There is good reason for members of the House to be perturbed over the prospect that some Government employes living in the District may be taxed three times on their income. Such a piling up of taxes would work an obvious injustice on Government employes. But that would not justify amendment of the District income tax law so as to transfer the injustice to other Washington residents.

Corporation Counsel Seal has interpreted the District income tax act reasonably and fairly. It would be utterly illogical to assume that Congress intended to exempt from its provisions approximately 42,000 local residents who happen to maintain voting privileges in the States. These Government workers require police and fire protection just as do other Washingtonians. They send their children to District schools, drive their automobiles over District streets and bridges, and rely upon the local government to safeguard their health as well as to provide a vast number of other municipal services.

It would be grossly unfair to exempt these District residents from the responsibility of helping to support the community in which they live. Whatever action is taken by Congress ought to recognize this fact.

Two possible remedies seem to be available. Arrangements might be made to permit District residents who vote in the States to offset their State taxes against the District tax. Or, if Congress is willing to attack the problem at its roots, it can vote to extend the rights of citizenship to residents of the District. That would probably eliminate the demand of Government workers for maintenance of voting rights in the States. Probably few would insist upon returning to their previous place of residence on election day if they could cast ballots for public officials in the city where they now live.

So it cannot be said that there is no satisfactory solution for the problem to which the District income tax has given rise. It can easily be solved if Congress is willing to face the issue. But the outright exemption of a large group of local residents from a tax designed for general application would be indefensible.

A Texas cowgirl has a perplexing problem on her hands. Several times she has shot at her husband, but missed him each time because anger causes her hand to tremble. And when she's not angry with him, she doesn't feel like shooting him.

Don't let your affairs become so involved that when opportunity does knock at the door you'll think it's the sheriff and sneak out the back way.

Letters To The Editor

"Hoover's Speeches"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me to thank you for your presentation of Mark Sullivan's article, "Hoover's Speeches," beautifully centered on the page, so that it commanded instant attention. Mr. Sullivan's articles always command my attention but this was a masterly presentation of a topic that all thinking citizens should read and ponder. He wrote:

"For any careful stock-taking of causes, we were too angry. We just wanted something, some human being, to throw stones at . . . We suffered a disagreeable experience. At the time we suffered it, Mr. Hoover was President. Therefore——"

Therefore, the "Smear Hoover" campaign was just what many people were looking for and eagerly believed. And this belief was reflected in the stupid, stubborn Congress that fought Mr. Hoover for political reasons, "played politics with human misery." One of Mr. Hoover's drawbacks was that he had not come to the Presidency by the usual legislative route and perhaps was not so adept in dealing with legislators. But I doubt if any Republican President would have fared any better with that Congress.

I take this opportunity to express my admiration for The Post, as now constituted, especially for its able and varied corps of editorial writers and commentators, ranging from the ponderous pronouncements of Dorothy Thompson to the satire of H. I. Phillips. While I "read at" all of them, I find myself looking most eagerly for the carefully-thought-out and tersely expressed views of Walter Lippmann and Mark Sullivan and the foreign analyses of Barnet Nover.

Last but not least, your editorial page is a joy to me, not only for your stimulating editorials but for Mr. Elderman's cartoons. Will I ever forget the one of Mr. Roosevelt taking Congress to the woodshed for a paddling and coming out the paddled instead of the paddler?

The Racial Question

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of your correspondents recently spoke of the discrimination against colored people in Washington's downtown theaters. As a native-born Southerner, I probably have the usual inclination to be prejudiced upon the question of admitting colored people to "white" theaters. However, it seems to me that the time has come to look this question in the face.

Not far from where I live in Arlington, the colored people have a volunteer fire department which is praised for its good work by the white fire companies with whom they come in contact at fires. In that same community, the colored people are rebuilding and enlarging their church to create a highly creditable edifice. When people thus discharge the duties of good citizenship they deserve the help and encouragement of their neighbors.

Places of public amusement in Washington are freely open to Chinese, Japanese, Filipinos and, in fact, all races except the Negro race. While the very large colored population of Washington creates problems not present with respect to other dark-skinned races, these problems are not of sufficient magnitude to outweigh the fundamental requirements of fair play.

Unless the white people of Washington are prepared to give the colored people equal rights in public places, they should close their churches and stop giving lip service to Christianity.

All Of Us Are Special Pleaders

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Miss Dorothy Thompson, in her column of February 9, refers to the recent innovations in journalism, such as the news letter entitled "Uncensored," as "propaganda sheets aiming to influence public opinion and pleading for special groups."

The individual columnist, herself among them, "is a different breed of cat. He (or she) is personally and solely responsible," she writes. "We rely on what is available to all who can read, on our background as reporters, and on such personal connections as we choose openly to cultivate . . . Our justification or ruin will depend, in the long run, upon the degree of accuracy with which we have judged events and the results of the policies that we have supported or opposed."

Before I comment on Miss Thompson's remarks, may I say that I have never seen a copy of "Uncensored." I have read some of H. E. Barnes' books and some writings of the others who are on its editorial staff. My knowing or not knowing these individuals is quite irrelevant, I think, to the point that I want to bring out—namely, that the editors of "Uncensored" are no more pleaders than Miss Thompson is in her public utterances.

Miss Thompson admits that in writing her column she has to use her judgment. Judgment is opinion. The editors of "Uncensored" use their judgments, too. They also express a particular opinion.

Miss Thompson is clearly a product of certain psychological and sociological factors. Psychologically, she is an individual whose reactions to ideas and problems are peculiar to herself. Her experiences in life are not the same as the next person's or the next columnist's. Because of this psychological uniqueness, she inescapably selects, in the discussion or interpretation of any situation or policy, those aspects which fit in her particular emotional and individual make-up.

This means that she is not spoonfed with pure truth and objectivity. She speaks from her specific frame of reference and, to the extent that she does this, broadly speaking, she pleads for her own particular ideas. The persons who write the "Uncensored," etc., are under the same psychological influence. So am I and so are you, the reader. We cannot escape this initial emotional bias and experience upon which most, if not all, of our ideas and aspirations are based.

Neither Miss Thompson nor "Uncensored" are exceptions to the rule. Unless we are endowed with supernatural powers we are all pleading, arguing and persuading others in behalf of our own ideas and what we stand for. Whether we are writers, preachers, college professors or members of any other group, the human equation plays its inevitable part.

Realization of this fact should reduce some of the prevailing misconception in the minds of those who call "propaganda" the ideas to which they do not subscribe and "education" those that they advocate or approve of. It should also afford a greater measure of humility to those of us who do not see the degree to which our conduct is influenced by our "backgrounds" and "connections."

Dislikes John L. Lewis

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The American public, or any other public, is easily fooled into accepting and following a man who promises to rid them of strife and struggling.

John L. Lewis heads the C. I. O., but John L. Lewis is no more a symbol of that union than Adolf Hitler is a symbol of democracy. The union known as the C. I. O. is as good a union as any other. Yet this union is frowned upon by the general public. It is not that this union does not stand for fair and impartial labor practices. This union has been and is being disgraced by its leader.

John L. Lewis apparently wants to be feared by the members of the union, not admired as a great humanitarian striving to adjust and improve labor standards. With John L. Lewis as its leader, the C. I. O. will become even more unpopular as an American labor union.

Lewis gets little applause when he speaks. No man deserves respect who doesn't respect the ideals and principles of another. For the future success of the C. I. O., I sincerely recommend that his speeches be strictly censored. To allow a man of his type the opportunity of slandering our Vice President and other respected leaders is a disgrace to us Americans.

Washington, Feb. 9.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Collectors who specialize in rare exhibits of chicanery and bluster should clip in full and paste up the address which John L. Lewis gave to the National Youth Congress. In his sneers at Roosevelt, Lewis appears to be agitated by the illusion that he is omniscient and that the C. I. O. is free from sin. He says, by implication, that finding jobs for the jobless is as simple as a card trick and that he knows the trick.

The truth, however, must be plain to any reasonable man, that the unemployment situation is an imposing mountain range pushed up by post-war dislocations. Such an upheaval can't be leveled by any panacea. In his ridicule of Roosevelt, Lewis talks like a zealot, demanding that a world which is round be flattened out overnight.

Amend The Murray Bill

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congress is being urged to appropriate $500,0[illegible] for the vocational training, education, etc. of "youth." One way to test the sincerity of those back of this new attempt to tap the public treasury is to ask them to accept an amendment to the bill along the following lines:

"It shall be unlawful for any official of a labor union to deny union membership to any person given vocational training under this act in the craft or industry to which such union relates."

The point is that the Government can spend $500,000,000 or $50,000,000,000 in the vocational training of youth, but if the unions deny membership to these youths upon the plea that the quota of apprentices is already filled, and if the unions resist their attempts to work nonunion, then the money spent in their training will be wasted.

If Congress passes the Murray bill without some such amendment as above outlined, it will be just one more example of the fact that our national weakness is the belief that the mere appropriation of a few hundred more millions of public funds will take the place of a two-fisted, hard-boiled handling of rotten conditions.

Castaways

The little company scrambled up the bank from the river and halted, facing a rimless plain. They stood close, looking at one another as if, sailors, they had suddenly become nearsighted; and uneasy smiles flickered over their faces. Looming at the back of all their minds was the gigantic hull of the cruiser that had cut their boat in half.

Wordless memory of the thing that had appeared out of the fog weighed on them, towering above them still, silent and terrible. They didn't remember it as a ship; didn't call to mind that fishermen had to fish in spite of wars and fogs and speeding vessels in the North Sea. They were simply here with a recollection of smooth-sided black destruction over them.

Jameson, cousin to the captain, stamped the ground restlessly. It was crackly under his feet as if covered with paper, and the stunted trees along the embankment looked wrapped up as if their real branches had shrunk away from the paper bark outside. Overhead it was yellowish—without sunshine or perceptible clouds. There was no color anywhere. Only, occasionally, though no breeze blew, wisps of dead black stuff like smoke become rags of chiffon floated very close and disappeared. He had the sensation that there was a great deal more around that he would see when he became accustomed. "It's like being born again, backward," he thought suddenly.

Something was lacking to the little band, some one shape, someone who was extremely important. Jameson went over them all, the skipper and the cook and the six crew. The lack of the one bothered him and he recalled another face and body that wasn't there and the word brother. Where was his younger brother who had shipped in his protection? He glanced down at the river to see if he had got left behind, then looked back at the others to make sure that in the obscurity he hadn't missed him.

He started to ask the skipper and saw that he and the rest were seeing differently from himself. Their eyes had assumed the far focus, the vague wise look of young babies and they were unaware of him. Turning their gaze, Jameson regarded thick spots in the atmosphere until they resolved into groups of people.

In ones or twos, everday citizens went by, then a ship's company, the captain at its head. Jameson noticed his medal ribbons and made a motion of respect, falling back a little as if he could disturb the officer. The naval contingent held together away from the crew of a merchantman; but it seemed to be more by habit than intent, for all were looking far in front of them with the same vague, wise expression of the fishermen. As his sight widened, he understood that an impression of movement of which he had been aware for a long time came from a vast army that marched across the plain.

He had never been much for reading newspapers, but he understood the flags and uniforms. And it wasn't just a part of an army he could see. He was not limited to a regiment or a battalion, even. Without perspective, he knew that he could see all, all the millions at once, like a platoon just over the way.

He shut his eyes quickly. He didn't want to go just yet. He stayed still and held on to the thought of his brother whom he must find. It was a precise thought, alien to this atmosphere and difficult to retain. He looked carefully on the forms of his comrades. They didn't speak, but he understood that they were leaving. He stiffened himself to remain still while they composed themselves in a formal group, the skipper at the head though hitherto he had been simply one of them. In step, who had never marched before, they joined the stream, humbly at a distance from the officers and crew of a naval destroyer yet near them as seamen and separate from the armies and citizens. Jameson noted that two fliers joined them and then he couldn't distinguish their group from the rest.

He grasped the paper limb of a tree as if to hold himself in place and tried to recall an image of the brother. Only the word remained, giving him a feeling of intense loneliness among these abstracted figures. He wondered, for his own sight was going queer, if he would recognize the boy; but knew that something would speak, some personal direct accord would be struck at his appearance. It must; for he was waiting, holding himself here, making himself stay definite and palpable so that the boy would not be lost on his arrival, would not have to come alone from the memory of terror.

It was difficult to stay with that immense stream passing before him, gently sucking at his strength. They all looked blindly and certainly ahead as if already they were where they were going, as if miles and years of this crackling plain were underfoot already, and now were then. Even the children marched that way, even the babies casually held in strange arms seemed to see without looking, to be aware in a moment of no present future or past.

Jameson looked at the tree to make sure that he was still holding to it because he could feel nothing any more. He kicked at a rock by him and it gave a little, dented like cardboard. One of the ragged clouds closed round his legs, then floated on. The focus of his sight lengthened still and he couldn't remember what it was that had been so important. His eyes wandered with the marchers and he slowly let go of the tree and was caught in the current. A boy of about 10 was walking by himself and Jameson moved over to the line and reached for his hand and the child acquiesced without moving his head or changing pace.

Into his heart, for he had long been unconscious of hearing, there struck a cry. "Bill, brother Bill—here I am. Don't leave me." Sadness and loneliness and love tore at him to make him stop and turn. With an agonizing effort of identity he lifted one hand in a vague gesture of answer and farewell and went on with the silent armies.

Fair Enough

Trojan Hobby Horse

THE FACT REMAINS after the shrill clamor of the so-called Youth Congress and the soft shush of dissenters striking the pavement outside that this organization defiantly harbors groups which are not merely disloyal to the United States but actively loyal to Josef Stalin, whose dictatorship is, in the words of President Roosevelt, "as absolute as any other dictatorship in the world." Mr. Roosevelt is not the first to notice this interesting peculiarity of the Moscow government, but his remark, hurled unexpectedly at the mass of precocious pets of Mrs. R., had the political effect of that lewd note known as the raspberry.

IN ALMOST EVERY other family this would have been sure to call for private discussion running far into the night, and, the Roosevelts being human, Mr. Big's impolite salute to his Lady's friends may have been the subject of a continued discussion in private. If so, the public may yet be permitted to know how the argument came out, for the White House is a regular port of call on the night club beat nowadays and is rapidly pulling up toward evens with the Stork Club, and Mrs. Roosevelt's own lack of reticence is both charming and famous.

Earl Browder's testimony before the Dies Committee contained an admission that to a member of the Communist Party of America, Josef Stalin is infallible in matters of foreign policy up to and including war and not excepting war against the United States. The position which he stated was not one of divided allegiance to the Moscow government. As head man in this country of an organization which places absolute authority in its head man and his appointed deputies he lays down the law for American Communists.

Thus, plainly, the Communists in the Youth Congress, to say nothing of the Fellow Travelers who are only pledges, so to speak, with the right to renege, are not mere critics but opponents of the American form of government and prospective enemies of the Nation. Mrs. Roosevelt has been seen feeding sugar to this Trojan steed—which is not a dashing charger, however, but a sway-backed plug. Her error is not as grave as it may seem, for the congress as a whole is not Communistic.

TO CHANGE the metaphor and employ a bit of roguishness which would have seemed dreadfully daring a few seasons ago, the Youth Congress is only a leetle bit communistic. As to whether it must become more so in the natural course of events before it becomes less so, nobody can say. The condition could be cured abruptly, but the best constitutional minds in and around the congress hold that this would require an illegal operation.

They insist that it would be a violation of American principle to kick out the Young Communists because of their beliefs, and it appears that nobody raised the more vital question of their allegiance. It is not easy but it is possible to tolerate offensive beliefs in a congress of Americans. But it is no offense against the most liberal Americanism to cancel the credentials of those who have chosen to un-Americanize or foreignize themselves to the extent of membership in the Communist Party.

This one clumsy mistake does not entirely revoke Mrs. Roosevelt's reputation as a smart politician operating in the guise of an enthusiastic novice, but if this were parchesi instead of politics at least one of her markers would be set back to scratch. She whooped up the congress and had barely eased out the last ham of the Hollywood internationals before the kiddies began to slide down the banisters and write letters home on the White House stationery.

The congress was her show and she placed herself in the status of chief lobbyist for a $500,000,000 appropriation just in time to hear the President pronounce a hex on lobbyists and funny-money subsidies. The adventure soon got out of hand with pestiferous hundred percenters pressing for adoption of inopportune declarations of American principle for no reason but to embarrass the patroness and with cops diving into the crowd to pluck those muckers out.

STUBBORNNESS and overconfidence were Mrs. Roosevelt's faults here. She was in wrong from the start, because even the most generous Americanism does not call for executive hospitality to anti-Americans, even incidentally. No question of tolerance was involved. Mrs. Roosevelt, nevertheless, chose to risk her personal and official prestige and, for the first time, lost.

No New Suit

Rep. Rankin Loses Power Dispute

Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, yesterday issued a press release announcing he had lost a suit of clothes in a dispute on District electric rates with Representative Rich (Republican), of Pennsylvania.

Rich offered to buy Rankin a suit if the latter could prove a statement made on the House floor that the Potomac Electric Power Co. earned 70 per cent on its common stock in 1939. Rankin made no counter offer.

"I regret to admit that I lost the suit of clothes by 6 per cent," said Rankin. "The record shows that the Potomac Electric Power Co. made only 64 per cent on its common stock last year. It made 74.9 per cent in 1937.

"All this was paid by the electric light consumers of the District, who were overcharged more than $3,000,000 last year," Rankin added.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

An Island Tale

NELSON HAYES' first novel, "Dildo Cay" (Houghton, Mifflin, $2.50), has a perposterous plot but is an impressive yarn.

For 11 generations, Mr. Hayes tells us, the Ainsworths have lived and made salt on their little West Indian cay, the only white family among 200 blacks. From father to son the tradition is handed down: "Don't marry for love; don't be a fool; marry a woman who will bear you sons." So, except for Adrian's unfortunate grandfather, the male Ainsworths had always gone off to Bermuda or the Bahamas, or to Grand Turk Island, and brought back healthy wives; but in the loneliness, Adrian's mother was slowly going mad. She was sure that the blacks had murdered her husband; she insisted that Adrian take on a white superintendent, and she told this newcomer that Adrian's mistake was that, like his father, he pampered and spoiled and trusted blacks. "You've got to be firm," she said.

Now Delbridge, the superintendent, had brought with him his daughter from Bermuda, a hard-bitten girl with painted fingernails, and when Adrian's wife went away to have her baby, and the superintendent left on business, Adrian was left alone on the island with Carol and the blacks . . . So much of the plot is all too obvious

But the salt winds sweep in on Dildo Cay, and the hot sun burns down, and the slow tension of Caribbean life creeps through the pages of the book, and gives it startling, authentic life. Dildo Cay was Adrian's home; he loved it—even the dead casuarina tree, he had tried to grow, and the cacti, the salt beds, the endless winds, the rush of the surf, fishing off the reef, and the tired, familiar eyes of old black Morales, his foreman. He felt about the sea the way Bermuda-born Carol did about flowers. And that love of the sea, that island sense, takes hold of this novel and, despite its carpentered plot, gives it eerie power. Even the conflict between Carol and Adrian takes on an island authenticity. Carol's motto for their relationship—"Never look ahead when you think about us"—becomes something more than a stale recipe for offtime love affairs; it seems to be a part of the trade wind . . . Make no mistake about it; Mr. Hayes knows islands, and islanders.

EDNA LEE BOOKER went to Shanghai in her young twenties, back in 1922, to "cover China" for Mr. Hearst's International News Service; she married a substantial American business man in Shanghai but continued her intermittent correspondence until 1938. In the early '20s she wrangled interviews with war lords, interviewed Sun Yat-sen, and played tennis with Mayling Soong, now wife of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. In the '30s she went up the Yangtze gorges as the guest of the president of a steamship company, had tiffin with Mr. and Mrs. John Gunther as the guest of Judge Franklin, was bombed on the way to Hankow via Canton, and interviewed the President and his wife. All this, and more, she tells in "News Is My Job" (Macmillian, $3).

It is swift-moving, colorful, adventurous, written in fluent journalese. It gives a fair picture of the cinematic course of Chinese politics through almost two decades, chiefly as seen by the more intelligent old hands in that unique cosmopolitan fortress, Shanghai. It is all high lights; reading it, I was constantly reminded of the low lights in Graham Peck's "Through China's Wall," reviewed in this column on January 31. Mr. Peck saw none of the war lords, and probably he understands less Chinese than Miss Booker; yet the unassuming story of his artist's odyssey through China—avoiding Shanghai—is almost the only genuinely distinguished book of the first weeks of 1940.

Gadget on Car Aims To Help Pedestrian

Stephen C. Pace, of 600 F street northwest, is a friend of the pedestrian. He obtained a patent yesterday on a special gadget for motorists who insist on yielding the right-of-way to walkers.

His invention is a special "walk" light attached to the back of rear-view mirrors on automobiles. When a driver is overcome by the urge to say "You first," he presses a button on the steering rod and the light flashes "walk" to the startled pedestrian.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Democratic Nomination

ALL SPECULATION about the Democratic Party is bound to revolve around the question of Mr. Roosevelt's attitude towards a third term. I have met no one who knows what his attitude is but the chances are ten to one, I should suppose, that Mr. Roosevelt has not finally made up his mind. And for reasons which, now at least, seem compelling, it is improbable that his position will be settled finally until the Democratic convention is ready to vote.

IT IS CORRECT, I believe, to say that the question of a third term has been a practical issue only four times in a hundred years, that is since Andrew Jackson. All the Presidents from Van Buren to Buchanan had only one term each. Lincoln was assassinated near the beginning of his second term. Among his successors only Grant was seriously in the running for a third term, and he, of course, failed. But in our own time there have been three Presidents who have had a good chance to obtain a third nomination. They were Theodore Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge; and now there is Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The cases of T. R. and of Coolidge throw some light on the present discussion. The first Roosevelt made the renunciation which the second Roosevelt is now being asked to make. Did people believe that the renunciation was final and conclusive? They did believe it. Why did they believe it? Because Theodore Roosevelt not only renounced the nomination for himself but picked his successor, namely William Howard Taft, and actively organized the convention for Taft.

Now consider the case of Coolidge. He also renounced a third term, though in language so cryptic that no one was ever quite certain what the statement meant. As a matter of fact, it is now known that while Coolidge did not choose to run for a third term, he hoped to be drafted, and was rather sadly disappointed when he wasn't. Coolidge, unlike Theodore Roosevelt, never gave his active support to his successor. That is why Mr. Hoover's managers nearly had a nervous breakdown worrying over the danger of a stampede to draft Coolidge.

THESE TWO EXAMPLES are the only two practical examples we have in our time. They seem to show that when a President is popular at the end of his second term, the only conclusive way to renounce a third term is for him to pick his successor and then to supply him with a majority of pledged delegates. I wonder whether there is any other practical way of settling the question conclusively until the President has come to some definite agreement with his party on the choice of his successor. The guarantee against a third term is the selection of a successor. Is this not what settled the question in the case of Jefferson who selected his Secretary of State Madison, and of Jackson who selected Van Buren, and of Theodore Roosevelt who selected Taft? I know that there is supposed to be a verbal formula which would settle the matter: the President is to say in the language of Gen. Sherman that if nominated, he will not accept; if elected, he will not serve. But that was said by a man who did not wish to be President, even for one term, not by a man who was President, much less by a President who was being considered for a third term. No President has ever used the formula though all two-term Presidents have been urged to use it.

There must be a reason for this, and it is plain enough what the reason is. A President who conclusively renounced a third term, without selecting his successor, would precipitate a struggle for the succession among his followers, in his own party, even in his own Cabinet. This would paralyze his influence. It would mean that in the last year of his second term, his political power would disintegrate. He could neither insure the continuation of his policies, which every President must desire, nor successfully round out his own term of office.

That, I think, is why no President finally renounces a third term except by selecting his successor.

THUS THERE IS no way of smoking out Mr. Roosevelt until he is committed definitely to some particular man who is to succeed him. Without this no one will believe him, neither his opponents nor his ardent supporters. As long as the succession is open, a man can always be drafted regardless of what he says. And until his successor is chosen, no President will, without abdicating his influence, make so definite a pledge that it is impossible to draft him. He will not make such a pledge either because he would like to be drafted or he will not make it because he wants at the very least to hold his power until he retires, and to have the deciding voice in naming his successor.

For these reasons the answer to the third term riddle is not to be found in the secret recesses of Mr. Roosevelt's mind but in the political condition of the Democratic Party. If, as now appears to be the fact, there is not as yet an obvious successor who can muster the full Democratic voting strength, then Mr. Roosevelt will continue until the convention to be a potential candidate.

THE TALK about a third term will be continued as long as an inspection of the available successors shows no one who can surely unite the many factions of which the Democratic Party is composed. Can Mr. Hull unite the party? Can Mr. Jackson unite it? Can Mr. Garner unite it? Can Mr. Farley? Can Mr. McNutt? The fact that no one can confidently say yes to any one of these questions is the reason, the practical political reason, why Mr. Roosevelt will continue to be talked about for a third term.

That does not mean that he is going to be nominated for a third term, nor even that he is likely to be nominated. Unless conditions in the summer are very different from what they are now, Mr. Roosevelt cannot be renominated by acclamation, and any other kind of nomination would be disastrous to him and to his party.

What is indicated, I think, is a period from now until the convention in which the Roosevelt riddle will act as a damper and a deflater on any candidacy which threatens to take control of the convention. As a result, when the time comes to make the choice, it will either be Mr. Roosevelt by acclamation or, by something like common consent among the delegates, a successor whom he approves.

F. B. I. Takes 241,041 Prints in January

Director J. Edgar Hoover, of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced yesterday that his identification division had established the following records during January:

A total of 241,041 fingerprint cards were classified and filed, more than in any other month of the identification division's history.

A total of 60,592 fingerprint records of individuals seeking employment as special officers and in other positions of trust were received.

Identification men searched 174,625 fingerprint cards through the files; identified 71.5 per cent of all criminal fingerprint cards received with previous records in the FBI files; and prepared 218,940 index cards—all new records.

The FBI had 12,086,951 fingerprint records, including 9,066,384 criminal records, at the end of January.

New Electrical Devices To Be on Exhibition

New electrical appliances, including wiring devices and signal apparatus, will be displayed at 10 p. m. today in the closing session of the seventh annual exhibition of the Electrical Manufacturers Representatives Association at Wardman Park Hotel.

Heading the show committee are E. A. Lesser, chairman; Leo T. McCourt, T. E. Cornell, William Pindell and C. O. Walther.

Parking Meters Stolen Off Hagerstown Curbs

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 14.—Someone has been stealing Hagerstown's parking meters. Albert Gruber, superintendent in charge of the meters, informed the board of street commissioners that six of the meters have been broken off their steel standards and two have been stolen. The meters cost about $65.

The London Theater

THE FIRST WEEKS of war were marked by a complete blackout of all entertainment. Not only was every theater and cinema closed, but racing, boxing, football and every other sport shut down. Even radio was reduced to a single program, consisting mainly of repetitions of the same news bulletins, interspersed with endless gramophone records. There were, of course, excellent reasons for these drastic measures. The essential aim of air-raid precautions is to prevent crowds coming together, and radio programs are of incalculable value to aircraft in direction finding.

Since late September, however, public amusements have been steadily recuperating. Provincial theaters were closed only for 11 days, and London ones were soon allowed to open on a "staggered" plan, which insured that audiences left adjoining cinemas at different times. Even this restriction has now been virtually abandoned. Football, racing and other sports are now in swing again, with limitations on "the gate," which usually keep it down to something below 10,000.

THE THEATER has been slowest to recover from the war shock. London theaters do not close down in the summer, so at the beginning of September a score of established successes were playing in the West End. During the fall these companies made the best of a bad business by going on tour, and the provinces were suddenly treated to a plethora of talent. Actors and actresses who had not played outside London for years made the rounds of the Midlands and the North. Now they are all back in London, whilst that hoary English institution, the pantomime, has a three-month reign in every provincial theater. But absent still are some of the brightest stars, who are perpetually "somewhere in France" or "somewhere in England" entertaining the troops. Chief of these is that best-known and best-loved of all English entertainers—Gracie Fields.

The first of the London shows to reopen, and the most consistently successful, is "The Little Revue," now in its third edition. This gorgeously witty entertainment is best known for the song, "Even Hitler Had a Mother," an innocuous affair which was inexplicably banned by the lord chamberlain until long after we were at war. Close behind in popularity are "The Gate Revue" and "All Clear," in which latter Beatrice Lillie (back with us after too long an absence in New York) is starring at the Queens.

The big successes are all musical, and include "Me and My Girl" (the Lambeth Walk and "Washing on the Siegfried Line" show), which is now in its third year at the Victoria Palace. Other old favorites drawing the town are Jack Hulbert and Cicely Courtneidge in "Under Your Hat," Vic Oliver in "Black Velvet," Max Miller, the inimitably vulgar cockney in the topically named "Haw-Haw," and the Crazy Gang in "The Little Dog Laughed" at the Palladium, where the high light is a "leaflet raid" over the entire auditorium.

The most riotous entertainment has been the revival of "Young England" at the Holborn Empire. When this play was first put on, the critics agreed that it was the worst show London had seen in twenty years, and wouldn't run a week. It ran to packed houses over a year. Written in all sincerity, it is a patriotic fantasy of Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, V. C. heroes, conscientious objector villains, and all the machinery of a Victorian melodrama.

Word went round that here was a supreme subject for barracking, and soon the audiences were playing a more active part than the cast; indeed the audiences are so noisy that often when the players are seen on the stage gesticulating and moving their lips, not a sound can be heard.

Those who have seen the play try to beat the actors to their lines whilst the actors attempt to come back with an alternative. Thus the villain will enter, and members of the audience will cry "Foiled," "Frustrated," "Stymied," "Checked," "Outwitted," etc., until he is quick enough to get in a variant of his own. Apart from this diversion, the parts are played straight. A high light is the camp song, "Boy Scouts, Boy Scouts, Keep the Party Clean."

It is encouraging that jingoism and flag-waving should get such a derisory reception at a low-brow theater in the first months of a war; one wonders if this could happen in any other country.

Serious plays are few and far between, although "The Corn Is Green," with Emlyn Williams and Sybil Thorndike, is still London's longest run. Priestley's experimental "Music at Night" has had a good run, Elmer Rice's dramatization of the "Reichstag trial," "Judgment Day," has been successfully resurrected, there are brilliant revivals of "The Importance of Being Earnest" and "Design for Living," but Denis Johnston's "The Golden Cuckoo" has been a noble failure, and it is too soon yet to say anything of O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms." But every one of the plays is at a pocket theater. The dearth of big successes is emphasized by the plan to revive that perennial favorite of the last war, "Chu Chin Chow."

At the movies the success of the moment is "The Stars Look Down," the film made from A. J. Cromin's novel of the mine fields. "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and "Babes in Arms," which have only reached London, are strong favorites, but as much cannot be said of "The Old Maid," which is also new here. Among foreign films the leaders are "Accord Final" and Sacha Guitry's wittily improper "Remontons les Champs-Elysees."

Mobilizing The Unborn

The bleeding intended for us by the others must never affect us to such an extent as to put into question our capacity for regeneration, and here, everybody, especially the bearers of tested inheritance, must consciously help.

If the Fieldmarshal of the Great Frederick, Count Schwerin, had died before Prague without heirs, a Fuhrer generation would have died out. Such irreplaceable losses, however, have been caused by the death of a Weddigen, a Richthofen, a Horst Wessel and many thousand others.

For every fighter in the field, therefore, the racial successor should already lie in the cradle. That would be the right kind of fresh recruit!

Causes Of Distrust

By Mark Sullivan

Some Impressive Witnesses

THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE of the American Federation of Labor, meeting at Miami, Fla., passed a resolution that goes deep. In part, it reads:

"At this time there are not enough jobs in private industry to go around. This is largely due, in our opinion, to the fact that lack of confidence has stunted business growth and expansion. . . . We urge that all Government actions that tend unnecessarily to discourage business expansion cease . . ."

Just what is it in the present Administration that makes business recovery difficult or impossible? In the judgment of this column, a large part of the answer is to be found in the following comments, expressed over some two years past, by several observers and news sources having various points of view. If the reader will follow the thread that runs through these quotations, he will have got a clue to a condition that is extremely important, and ominous.

THE FIRST GROUP of comments has to do with a so-called "blue card" incident. Early in 1939, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was eager for business recovery. He had a way of saying, in answer to suggestions made to him, "Will it contribute to recovery?" This impressed Undersecretary John W. Hanes, also eager for business recovery. He thought the phrase would make a good slogan. He had it printed on blue cards, which were distributed to Government officials.

This, as reported by columnists Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner, "irritated the . . . New Dealers to a near-frenzy." As reported by Mr. Arthur Krock, of the New York Times, some New Dealers "represented the blue cards to Mr. Roosevelt as disloyalty to him." The result was reported in News-Week April 3, 1939: "The cards are now being gracefully forgotten."

On another occasion, an episode at the White House is reported by Mr. Krock: "It is heartening to report that at a recent White House council, adherence was duly sworn to the capitalistic system when its future usefulness was called into question. This correspondent has reliably heard that when two conferees expressed doubt captitalism was worth giving another chance, or could be saved thereby, Harry L. Hopkins warmly denounced the viewpoint, and the President showed the firmest sort of agreement [with Mr. Hopkins]."

On yet another occasion Mr. Krock reported another battle in the running war between two groups of President Roosevelt's advisers—one group working for recovery of the American industrial system, the other believing in what Mr. Krock describes as "an undefined but different system." It was after Mr. Harry Hopkins had been appointed Secretary of Commerce and seemed to wish to bring about business revival. This wish appeared to anger some of Mr. Hopkins' former associates in the inner circle, who apparently regarded him as a deserter. Mr. Krock reported, March 11, 1939: "The White House hearth-rug battle has grown extremely bitter in the past week, with Mr. Hopkins getting the brunt of the attack from his former brethren, and Mr. Morgenthau and Undersecretary Hanes coming in for the second volleys."

THE SITUATION is commonly described as a war between two groups of the President's inner circle, with the President acting as arbiter, yet himself favoring retention of the system of private enterprise. A carefully stated picture of the President's attitude is in the words of Mr. Walter Lippmann. Mr. Lippmann, May 19, 1938, was describing the controversy between Mr. Roosevelt and the business world:

> Though it is a fact that very few businessmen really like any of the major reforms; though it is a fact, I believe, that the President and his favorite advisers dislike the system of private enterprise and distrust most of the individuals who operate it, it does not seem to me that doctrinal differences are the determining factor.

Possibly the phrase, "dislike the system of private enterprise" was too strong (as applied to the President, though not too strong as applied to the President's advisers). Mr. Lippmann put it in milder words on another occasion, January 20, 1938: "I rather think that the President, insofar as he considers these matters, is of the opinion that the capitalist order has reached a phase where it can be kept going only by Government assistance; and that it is not worth while to try for a true revival of private enterprise if the price is the modification of his social reforms."

Yet another observer, Gen. Hugh Johnson, said, February 27, 1938: "I have seen the gradual growth of the bunch of advisers in the Administration who do not believe in the capitalist system."

WHEN SO MANY observers, with differing points of view, agree so completely, the sum of their judgments is convincing. How ominous this is, hardly needs saying.

Yet the hopeful fact is that during recent months, we have increased business recovery. Necessarily this must be based on the expectation that the condition pictured above will cease to exist. It is the expectation that as a result of the political events of the present year, there will be in Washington an Administration with a changed point of view, an Administration loyal to the American system of free enterprise. Such an Administration could be either conservative Democratic or Republican. If this expectation has stimulated the degree of business recovery we have already had, the reality, after next January, should bring about a recovery which will absorb all our unemployment. For such a recovery, the conditions exist, excepting that lack of confidence which the A. F. L. mentions.

Pot Roast as Good As Porterhouse Steak Any Day in the Week

SOME of the most nutritious foods are to be found at the bottom of the butcher's price list! Attention was called recently to this group by The Market Basket, a guide to both economy and good nutrition, published by the United States Department of Agriculture.

From the nutritionist's standpoint, a pot roast is as good as porterhouse steak any day in the week. And, strangely enough, beef liver, which costs much less than calves' liver, is nutritionally more valuable.

It does not seem to matter which part of the cow the cut comes from. The part that is exercised is, of course, the toughest. But it can be cooked longer . . . and the extra cost of fuel for longer cooking is slight in comparison with the saving on the grocery bill.

Meat Organs Inexpensive

Except for calves' liver, the meat organs are inexpensive. Moreover, the heart, kidneys, brains and liver, which are so much richer in vitamins than some of the muscle meats, are excellent sources of protein.

If you lack experience in marketing for these meats, there are a few rules by which the quality may be judged. The kidneys, heart and liver should be bright in color. Fresh brains are a pinkish gray. You should avoid flat kidneys, flabby hearts, and brains that are broken into bits. The texture of the liver should be fine-grained.

The organs should be full and well-rounded, showing they come from healthy young animals. Since all the organs spoil quickly unless frozen, they should be used immediately after thawing.

The tender organs should be cooked at a moderate temperature. To retain the flavor, care should be taken not to over-cook them. The less tender organs, such as the beef kidneys and muscular hearts, should be simmered slowly and for a long time.

Stew Meats Nutritious

Stew meats of all kinds are inexpensive and, cooked with vegetables, highly nutritious.

Meat is a considerable item in the reducer's menu—the amount of protein is never decreased. It frequently even is stepped up a bit, for science has discovered that weight can be lost much more rapidly on a high protein diet.

As far as reducing goes, the important thing to watch—in cheap or expensive cuts of meat—is the method of cooking. Meats never should be fried. They should be boiled, broiled or baked. On a menu restricted to 1,000 calories per day, the fat should be trimmed from the meat before cooking to prevent its infiltration into the lean part.

Basic Ensembles Are First Aid to Business Girl

By Marshall Adams

The Post Fashion Editor.

Here are three wardrobe essentials for the busy girl who likes to buy everything at once and at one place. They are selected from a newly opened dress shop.

THE TERM "career girl" seems to be getting as dated as "glamour girl"—but the business girl who just toils or just manages through another day is still a girl with a career if she dresses the part. One of our pet theories has always been that if the girls in business has two or three versatile basic outfits—not just plain basic frocks—but ensembles, she can cope with any number of quick wardrobe changes.

Apparently the fur shop in Washington that has just extended its fashion forces to house an entire new floor of suits, cloth coats and dresses feels the same way about the Washington business girl and her clothing problems. Seldom has an entire collection centered round more practical, yet, enticing costumes—for a husband and wife stylist team, formerly of St. Louis and New York, who will manage this new shop, have put both a masculine and a strictly feminine head together in plotting out interesting spring styles at moderate business woman prices. To satisfy the masculine feeling for pretty, appealing clothes, there is a good deal of soft blue haze coloring being featured, and there are dainty but subtle touches of lingerie at throat lines and froths of lace and net for evening.

The woman stylist realizes that women like to see other women in trim, tailored things during the day, so she has assembled a wide assortment of neat navy and black tailleurs, satin bound for a softening influence. She features two-piece redingote and reefer and dress ensembles with crisp snowy pique or braid relief. The dresses so simple they can readily be transposed into cocktail hour apparel by brilliant fresh accessories.

Count Calories To Reduce

"IS THAT really me?" gasps Mrs. Pudgy, catching a glimpse of her rear view in the mirror.

A shock to Mrs. Pudgy to see how she's gained. Yet she could reduce in no time if she'd adopt the low-calory diet that gave her friend, Mrs. Slim, such a girlish figure.

But, knowing nothing about calories, Mrs. Pudgy doesn't see much difference between her meals and Mrs. Slim's. Let's look!

For lunch, Mrs. Pudgy had breaded veal cutlet—283 calories, ½ cup corn pudding—147 calories, ½ cup Brown Betty—250 calories. That's 680 calories.

Mrs. Slim ordered a slice of roast veal—only 100 calories, ½ cup spinach—20 calories, ½ cup tapioca cream—127 calories. Only 247 calories in all!

No difference in quantities—but what a difference in calories! And it's the calories that make fat.

Can you have whipped cream once in a while? Yes, two tablespoons have only 69 calories.

Ruby Salad

Is Cheery Note For Any Meal

A CHEERY note for February parties, or any meal, is the Ruby Salad that Ruth Sheldon, Home Service Director, Washington Gas Light Co., has developed in her kitchens. Besides giving the attractive note of color it supplies a tart flavor and crisp texture that makes it an ideal salad for meat courses. The following is Miss Sheldon's recipe:

Ruby Salad

Pick over and wash 1 pint cranberries. Then cover and cook in ¾ cup hot water until soft. Rub through a strainer; then add 1 cup sugar and cook 5 minutes longer. Add ½ cup boiling water and pour immediately over, 1 package lemon flavored gelatine, stirring until dissolved. Set aside to cool. When it begins to congeal, add ½ cup each of chopped walnuts, apple and celery and a pinch of salt. Pour into a mold. Cover and place in refrigerator until ready to serve.

Two food hints that Miss Sheldon also gives are the following:

Pour grapefruit juice, French dressing or lemon juice over cut apples or bananas to keep them from turning dark. Drain fruit well when ready to serve.

Drizzle a tablespoon of honey over each prepared grapefruit half, and let stand a while before serving. This flavor is delightful.

THE WIZARDRY of Maestro Walt Disney is even more apparent in his new full-length fantasy, "Pinocchio," than it was in his famous "Snow White," and for my money it is an even better picture—even better technically, because none of the human figures are a bit out of focus. Disney's triumphs are with animals and funny little people. "Pinocchio" is filled with them.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Flower valentines were enormously popular here yesterday—more beautiful and practical than the old-time lacy sentiments. Some florists tried making comic valentines out of posies, but the ones I saw were no smash hit at all. I may be too sentimental, but I really don't like to see lovely blooms slightly debased for an attempt at a laugh.

There's some talk around town of sending Richard Bennett on tour in the role played, at times, by Barrymore in "My Dear Children." And who should turn up in the cast of a play now in rehearsal but Nita Naldi, the raven-haired vamp of the Valentino era in the movies. Yep, Nita is in a show called "Worth a Million." Her greatest foe, during her picture career, was too much poundage, and I wonder how Nita shapes up now.

Little Gloria Vanderbilt, who gets prettier every day, was out dancing at the Rainbow Room the other night with a Princeton youth named Geoffrey Jones. She may grow into as great a beauty as her mother, Gloria Senior, and her aunt, Lady Furness; the pair have been our town's prize exhibits for some years, in my belief.

AND now the tailors say that Paul McNutt and Tom Battling Dewey are the best dressed presidential candidates. Of course, it takes slightly more than a few elegant suits to run this embattled Nation from 1600 Pennsylvania avenue, Washington.

She (slamming up telephone receiver)—If ever again I serve as chairman of a committee—

He—You don't mean you've done it again!

She—Well, this is positively the last time—

He—I've heard that before.

She—Well, you see, this was an exceptional situation—

He—They all are.

She—Well, but this is the big annual patriotic tea.

He—Don't tell me you're mixed up with that again!

She—That reminds me! I'll want the car all-day Monday. And Tuesday morning I want you to take a load of potted plants over to the clubhouse—mine and Mrs. Geezer's and Mrs. Nitter's—

He—Hasn't anybody else got a car?

She—Yes—but, well, after all, I'm chairman of the committee on arrangements.

He—You don't mean you've taken all that over again! I thought you said last year—

She—I know. But I simply couldn't let Mrs. Powers down. Anyway this is the very last time—

He—You've been saying that for five years.

She—I know, but next year they'll probably elect somebody president that I don't know very well and I won't feel as if I have to work.

He—I've heard that before, too.

She—I really mean it this time. That's why I want to do as good a job as I can this year—

He—You did a good job last year, didn't you?

She—Yes, everybody said it was the most wonderful tea—

He—Then why didn't you retire?

She—Well, Mrs. Powers depends on me so and she said there was no other woman in the club—

He—Ha! Ha! Ha! The old soft soap!

She—Anyway, she promised me I wouldn't have to bother about any detail—just sort of supervise.

He—Then what are you doing so much phoning for?

She—Well, you know how it is. . . . Say, are you coming straight home Tuesday night?

He—I suppose so. Why?

She—I thought you could stop by Mrs. Thistle's and get her candlesticks, and get a floor lamp at Mrs. Muffins—

He—Why are you making so much fuss about it all?

She—I want it to be as nice as possible—being this is my last year.

He—Ha! Ha! Ha!

She—Anyway, after you're once into a thing you have to go through with it. Oh, and another thing—I want you to pick up a rug at Mrs. Swank's.

He—Say, she has a car and chauffeur.

She—I know, but we hated to ask her to do so much . . . Oh, and I must call Mrs. Luker about her spoons—and Mrs. Bigger about her coffee urn! Honestly, all this telephoning is wrecking me. And besides, I feel as if I were coming down with the grippe.

He—Well, if you want to commit suicide—

She—Well, if I can just live through this I'm going to take a good rest and then I'm really going to slow down in club work.

He—I can see you.

She—I mean it. I've definitely made up my mind. Now if I can once get this over—Oh heavens! I haven't done anything about the bunting! I wonder if I couldn't run down town tomorrow and then meet you—

He—You won't meet me.

She—Aren't you coming home tomorrow night?

He—No. You see—well, that is, I've got to meet some of the Kangaroos for dinner.

She—I thought they met for luncheon.

He—Well—you see, this is sort of a special meeting about the drive.

She—What drive?

He—You know—the annual drive for the Young Widows' Home.

She—You don't mean you're mixed up in that again!

He—Well, I'm not going to do much. Bert Strong just told me if I'd sort of act as advisory executive chairman, he'd see that I didn't have much detail—

She—Why, you nearly killed yourself last year!

He—I know, but I couldn't let old Bert down. Anyway I told him this was positively the LAST YEAR.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Boy, 16, Poor Student, Likes to Be With His Gang Every Night; Is This All Right?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a boy 16 years old. I come comparatively late for a small town, but never really late and I never went to dances. Since moving to Washington with my family, I have met a gang of boys who go around together.

They are not bad boys; just part of a high school crowd, and some of them are honor students and athletes. We hang out at a neighborhood store nearly every week night, but we are not out very late except on game nights. My mother says I shouldn't go out at all, because I make only average grades, and get poor marks in conduct.

I guess I have a pretty bad temper and frequently cuss and swear. Also, I sometimes yell at my father and mother when I get mad. Mother says because I go out with the gang I don't do my homework, but I do. We are beginning a new semester at school and I am doing better and improving in conduct. All I want is to be able to go out for a while every night with the crowd at the store and then come home; and maybe go to a dance once in a while.

Please tell me if you think it is all right for me to go out for a little while every night. Or should I stay home every night and not go any place? I have a minimum of clothes and an allowance of 50 cents a week. S. C.

MOTHER'S POSTSCRIPT: He won't do his school work and the school wants to expel him. What can I do to make him behave better in school and have better manners at home? He is too big to be whipped, and we never whipped him much when he was little, and now he runs around with a gang and I don't know what to do. I am afraid they may lead him into trouble. Please advise me. MOTHER.

Character Determined By Habit Patterns

DEAR CORRESPONDENTS: I believe this boy truly means well, but his performance falls dismally short of his intentions. He must remember that "Hell is paved with with good intentions," and really put his back into the proposition of doing," instead of contenting himself with "meaning to do well"—tomorrow.

I suggest, as his motto in future, these lines: "True worth is in being, not seeming; in doing, each day that goes by, some little good; not in dreaming of great things to do, by and by." And this motto should apply not only to his school work, but to his behavior toward his father and mother, as well.

It is dangerously easy to fall into the habit of boorishness; but on the other hand, it is almost equally easy to form the habit of controlling one's temper and saying the courteous (rather than the cutting) thing. One's character (as a youth or as an adult) is determined entirely by one's habit patterns—of industry, dependability, achievement, politeness, etc., or their reverse, of dawdling, irresponsibility, failure, churlishness, etc.

As I see the picture, this boy is drifting into the less desirable—indeed, the potentially disastrous—patterns of behavior. Yet the fact that he keeps a sufficiently open mind to ask a disinterested person's appraisal of his conduct gives me hope that he can be persuaded to take the high road of consistently constructive endeavor.

I wonder if he appreciates the complex significance of one statement in his foregoing letter, the sentence in which he testifies to the decency of his "gang" by saying that some of the fellows are honor students and athletes? This suggests two things: firstly, that he senses (although perhaps unawarely) that outstanding accomplishments DO, as a rule, go hand-in-hand with superior character; and secondly, that these fellows in whose reflected glory he loves to bask have the special mental and physical endowment to succeed rather easily. Hence, they can afford to loaf on the job a bit; a luxury which he cannot afford—at least, not until he has accomplished something that compares to their success.

In loafing every evening with the high school "big shots," when his poor marks plainly prove that he should be at home studying and getting more sleep (to improve his disposition), he is behaving like a man on a four-figure income bankrupting himself trying to play around with a millionaire crowd. This kind of behavior is disastrous, always.

So take my advice, C. S., and sentence yourself happily to homework at least four nights out of seven, until you have become a credit to yourself and your teachers. It will get you places where you would like to be and hanging on the fringes of other people's lives never will.

Here's one last, all-important suggestion, directed at both you and your mother: take this problem together to the director of the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene, 1464 Columbia road northwest, telephone ADams 1033. His understanding of adolescent psychology and modern educational methods is such that he can help you change the "failure situation" at school for the better; and he may do it by bringing about a more cooperative relationship between yourself and your parents and teachers. Isn't that worth working for? The first move is up to you. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Mexican Party for Mrs. H. F. Grady Brightens Otherwise Bleak Day

Mrs. Francis Cabell Brown Is Hostess At Her Home on River Road in Md.; Gourds, Peppers, Sombreros Decorate House

By Hope Ridings Miller.

HOPE R. MILLER

WHILE A KEEN winter wind swirled snow on a bleak landscape yesterday, a gay luncheon company enjoyed a party that brought sunny skies to the very door of the Capital. Planned as a Mexican fete, in honor of Mrs. Henry F. Grady (the former Lucretia del Valle, who is half Spanish and whose father was President Wilson's special envoy to Mexico, the event was given by Mrs. Francis Cabell Brown, a fellow Californian, at her home on River road, in Maryland. The house, incidentally, is located on the last acre of the famous old Loughborough estate, which belonged to Mr. Brown's ancestors, and on which some member of his family has lived for six generations.

Painted gourds, strung with tropical peppers and bagatelles, were arranged around the two spacious rooms and the reception hall in which yesterday's company gathered. Mammoth sombreros and shawls, pottery of the type one sees rarely except in Mexican settlements, and exquisitely carved vases, brimming with scarlet and purple anemones, were featured decorations throughout the house.

Receiving her guests informally, the pretty hostess was trimly turned out in a black frock, buttoned up the front with gold ornaments and set off with a corsage of jonquils. Mrs. Grady's black and dusty-pink ensemble was fashioned with a bolero, a wide sash and a small, becoming pink hat pulled low over her black hair.

A Mexican troubadour, in a black costume embroidered in white, complete with a huge sombrero and a varicolored serape, played the guitar and sang a series of lively numbers during the party. Wearing a similar costume was the major domo for the event, who was here and there—seeing that everybody was served.

Nine small tables with bright covers were set up in the living room, the dining room, and the reception hall. Protocol was disregarded, and guests found their places by drawing orange colored folders attached to small Mexican favors—baskets, sombreros, shoes or miniature pottery vases—and directions in Spanish as to which "mesa" each guest was assigned.

Mexican Dishes Feature of Party

Meanwhile, habanero cocktails and empanadas had made the rounds several times; and as the luncheon progressed, so did the serving of typically Mexican dishes. In planning her menu, it seems Mrs. Brown had discussed with a local caterer the amount of each item that would be needed. "It all depends on how many guests you have from Texas," he said. "If there aren't many, what you have ordered will be too much. If there are many Texans, you won't have enough."

Well, so far as I could find out, Mrs. Paul V. McNutt was the only Texan there besides me, and there certainly seemed to be enough tortillas, enchiladas, rice and beans, and tamales to go around. Topping off the meal, there were small glasses of tequila, which had been shipped to Washington especially for the event.

Mrs. Frank H. Buck and Mrs. Davis E. Barbey assisted the hostess as guests lined up at the buffet table for the first course. Mrs. J. Fred Essary also presided a few minutes at the enchiladas platter and one or two other guests standing nearby pitched in to help serve green salad and tortillas. Informality was the keynote of the party that moved merrily along until well past midafternoon, with everybody apparently unaware that roads back to town were becoming more dangerous every minute.

Company Shifts Between Courses

Somewhere between the main course and the final one, when guava paste, centered with jelly, and Monterrey cheese were served, the company began shifting. Mrs. Grady herself started it when she moved from the living room to the hall and asked another guest to exchange places with her. Soon everybody seemed to be moving, and in no time at all every table had almost a complete new set of guests.

Mrs. William O. Douglas, whose smart polka-dotted frock was worn with a black veiled hat, relinquished her place to Mrs. Essary and took the latter's place in the hall. Mrs. McNutt, whose becoming wine-colored frock was set off with a tiny hat, covered with grapes and accented with dark green leaves, presently found her way to a new table. Senora de Boyd, wife of the Ambassador of Panama, was one of the few who "stayed put" and at the end of the party was still sitting at a table with Mrs. Ernest Lundeen and Mrs. James M. Fitzpatrick.

Many Notables Among Those Present

Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck and Mrs. Royal T. McKenna discussed the 1940 campaign over their coffee, and at a table nearby, Mrs. Verne Simmons and Mrs. Bulkley Griffin were tossing quips, political and otherwise, back and forth.

Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, wearing a burgundy ensemble, had to leave earlier than the other guests as she had made an early appointment, and hadn't counted on the luncheon continuing for well over three hours. Mrs. Garland Ferguson was a popular guest, as were Mrs. Harllee Branch and her daughter, Mrs. Leslie; Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, Mrs. Wallace McClure, Mrs. Nugent Fallon, Mrs. Frank S. Easby-Smith, whose bright red feather hat was one of the prettiest there; Mrs. Preston Delano and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson.

Still others who helped make the party one of the most enjoyable of the season were Mrs. Harold Bowen, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Frank A. Waring, Mrs. O. W. McNeese, Miss Ruth Jones, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. Brent Clark, Mrs. Carroll Stewart, Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, Mrs. Barnet Nover and Mrs. Thomas F. Ford.

Debutantes Enjoy Latest Snow Flurry

Harris & Ewing

Miss Achsah Bowie Dorsey, daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Benjamin Dorsey, and Miss Patricia Uline Hill, daughter of Mrs. Uline Hill, revel in the snow. The girls, both debutantes of the season, were pictured on their way to a tea given at the Hay-Adams yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Dorsey. The event was held for the purpose of introducing a fashion journal published by the Realm Foundation. The proceeds will go to a children's charity

Party Is Planned For Dramatist

Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, will entertain at luncheon Saturday for Miss Sydney Thompson, dramatist and impersonator, who will open the series of Friday morning Town Hall lectures tomorrow.

Miss Thompson, in costume, will give readings from De Maupassant, O. Henry, and Balzac when the first gathering is held at the Shoreham at 11 o'clock. Mrs. Richard V. Oulahan is in charge of reservations.

On her arrival here tomorrow, Miss Thompson will go to the home of her cousin, Mrs. William Lee Corbin. The next two days she will spend at the home of Mrs. Morgenthau, who was a classmate at Vassar. Mrs. Arthur Forbush, Miss Thompson's roommate when they were at Vassar, will give a buffet supper for her on Saturday evening.

Formerly on the New York stage, Miss Thompson has played with Katharine Cornell and later, when she became a "one woman theater," performed repeatedly at the White House. Later on this season, Mrs. Roosevelt, Margery Wilson, authority on charm, and Elizabeth Hawes, fashion expert, will appear at the Friday morning series.

Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, Mrs. F. Moran McConihe, and Mrs. Harold Walker are among the many subscribers to the Friday morning lectures, after which luncheons will take place at the Shoreham.

Virginia Burch Completes Plans For Her Wedding

Miss Virginia Burch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Glenn Burch, of Boyce, Va., has completed plans for her wedding February 22 at 4 o'clock to David Winton Naff, jr., of Roanoke and Winchester, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Naff, of Roanoke.

The ceremony will take place at the Christ Episcopal Church, Millwood, Va. Miss Mae Burch will be maid of honor for her sister, and another sister, Mrs. W. S. C. Burwell, will be matron of honor. The bridesmaids include Miss Virginia Eustler, of Winchester; Mrs. M. F. Melton, of Haymarket; Mrs. W. B. Allen, jr., of Alexandria, and Miss Nancy Naff, of Roanoke, sister of Mr. Naff.

Horace Bass, of Roanoke, will serve as best man, and the ushers will be Emerson Henkel, of Winchester; Numa Reid and Dan Montague, of Roanoke, and Thomas Johnson, William Gordon and Eugene McCaul, of Richmond.

The Milton Talberts Parents of a Son

Mr. and Mrs. A. Milton Talbert, of Chevy Chase, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, A. Milton Talbert, jr., on February 6 at Columbia Hospital.

The child is the second in the family. Mr. and Mrs. Talbert have a small daughter.

Edisons Attend Dinner Given by Pettengills

The Secretary of the Navy, Charles A. Edison, and Mrs. Edison were guests of honor last evening at a dinner given by the commandant of the Navy Yard, Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill, and Mrs. Pettengill.

The event, a dinner for 12, took place at Admiral and Mrs. Pettengill's quarters at the yard.

Ohioans' Wives To Fete Mrs. Taft And Mrs. Brown

Mrs. Cliff Clevenger, Mrs. Frederick C. Smith and Mrs. L. L. Marshall, wives of Republican Representatives from Ohio, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Hay-Adams House in honor of Mrs. Robert A. Taft and Mrs. Katherine Kennedy Brown, Republican National Committeewoman from Dayton, Ohio.

In the party were Mrs. John Hollister, who is visiting Senator and Mrs. Taft; Mrs. Mary Forest, of Cleveland, and wives of the Republican delegation in Congress from Ohio.

Mrs. Brown will give a reception today at the Mayflower for Senator and Mrs. Taft.

Notables Assist In Play Program

Four distinguished alumnae of Smith College are among the patronesses for the benefit performance of "Edna, His Wife," with Cornelia Otis Skinner, on Monday evening, February 26. Proceeds will go to the scholarship fund of the Washington Smith College Club.

The alumnae are Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, wife of Justice Frankfurter; Mme. de Kauffmann, wife of the Danish Minister; Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, and Representative Jessie Sumner.

Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann and Mrs. Emory Land are cochairman of the patroness committee for the Smith Club benefit, of which Mrs. Vernon H. Brewster is chairman. Mrs. Kenneth Holland is president of the Smith College Club.

Mrs. S. O. Clark, Jr., To Join Parents In Florida

Mrs. Samuel O. Clark, jr., wife of the Assistant Attorney General, will leave today for a month's visit with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Northrup, of New aven, Conn., who are spending the winter in Bradenton, Fla.

On Tuesday evening the Clarks entertained at a dinner, having among their guests Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas, Senator Francis T. Maloney, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Lee Pierson and Charles Stuart Guthrie.

That same evening the Attorney General, Robert H. Jackson, was feted at a birthday dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith, who recently returned from Florida for a brief stay.

Miss Gnoocheff Plights Troth

Col. and Mrs. Wladimir Ayvazoglou, of 3607 Thirty-fourth street, announce the engagement of her daughter, Miss Tatiana Gnoocheff, to Bernard Barton, of Washington, son of E. Blake Barton, of Milton, Mass.

Miss Gnoocheff is a graduate of the Denishawn School of Dance and a former member of the faculty. She was born in Kronstadt, Russia, and came to this country in 1921. She has been conducting a school of dance here.

Mr. Barton is a graduate of Harvard and obtained his master's degree from the graduate school of business administration in 1926. He is now chief of the division of foreign trade statistics in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

The wedding will be in the spring.

Daughter Is Born To C. W. Colliers

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood Collier, of Falls Church, Va., announce the birth of a daughter on Monday at Garfield Hospital.

Mrs. Collier is the former Miss Nina Perera, and is vice president and national legislative chairman of the League of Women Shoppers. Mr. Collier, who is the son of John Collier, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, is with the Bureau of Land Use Coordination in the Department of Agriculture.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Italian Ambassador to the Soviet and Signora Rosso will arrive Saturday for a visit and will be honored at a dinner to be given that night at the Chevy Chase Club by Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy, of Charleston, W. Va., formerly of Washington. Signor Rosso was formerly Ambassador to this country but this is his first visit here since he left several years ago to go to Moscow.

Mrs. Ralph W. Close, wife of the Minister of the Union of South Africa, will not observe her day "at home" tomorrow as she is still convalescing from an illness.

Senator Burton Burton K. Wheeler has returned to Washington from New York, where he attended the Lincoln day dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

C. Alonso Irigoyen, financial attache of the Argentine Embassy, is at the Savoy-Plaza in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith and their daughter, Miss Sarah Smith, are spending a month in Miami Beach. They expect to return at the end of March.

Several Washington social notables are spending several days in New York at the Ritz-Carlton. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. Philip Owen Coffin, Lady Lewis and Mrs. S. Kent Legare.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Dodek announce the birth of their second daughter on February 11 at Garfield Memorial Hospital. The family resides at 1730 I street.

Miss Mary LaDame will entertain the Brown Alumnae Club tomorrow evening at her home in Georgetown. Dean Margaret S. Morris of Pembroke College of Brown University will talk informally on the conventions of the American Association of University Women at Denver and Stockholm last year. There also will be a discussion of a possible benefit for the regional scholarship offered each year. Mrs. Lawrence M. Vaughan is president of the Brown Alumnae Club of Washington.

Mrs. Robert E. McConnell, of The Plains, Va., has joined her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Mudd, of Beverley Hills, Calif., in New York.

Mrs. Walter J. Freeman, of Washington, who is at the Vanderbilt Hotel in New York, has been joined there by Miss Alice Franklin, of New York.

Snow Fails To Halt Tea At Mrs. West's

Society Pays Visit At Apartment on Connecticut Avenue

It takes more than a snowstorm to deter Washington ladies from their "at home" calls. Yesterday afternoon any number dropped in at Mrs. Parker West's to leave their cards and chat over tea or steaming chocolate.

Although winter held sway outdoors it was springlike inside the West apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue. A cluster of white tulips centered the table, heaped with teatime dainties. At the chocolate urn was Mrs. Francis Babcock wearing an attractive turquoise sweater trimmed in a sequin design. Pouring tea was Mrs. John Walker whose black costume was accented with red and blue velvet.

The wife of the Japanese Ambassador, Mme. Horinouchi, was among those who called during the afternoon. Senora de Pastoriza, wife of the Minister of the Dominican Republic, was discussing the difficulties of moving with a group of ladies. In the very near future the Domincian Legation and chancery will be moved into 2101 Connecticut and so the envoy's wife chatted with a number who make their home there.

Mrs. R. H. Miner, who will leave shortly for a trip to California, was among the guests as were Mrs. Lorenzo Gasser, in a smart black outfit, and Mrs. Barnet Nover. Assisting throughout the afternoon were Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. Howard LeRoy, Mrs. Donald Halstead, and Mrs. Newell Ellison.

Mrs. Robert Jackson, wife of the newly appointed Attorney General was there in a black and gold outfit. Others there were Mrs. William Culbertson, whose lacy white straw hat was the cynosure of all eyes; Mrs. Marshall Diggs, Senora de Baron, Mrs. Samuel King, with violets pinned to her coat; Mrs. Harry Englebright, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mrs. Frank Wideman and many others.

Mrs. Gasque In Washington

Former Representative Bessie H. Gasque, widow of Representative Allard H. Gasque, of South Carolina, has arrived in Washington from her home in Florence, S. C., and will remain here for the winter at Hotel 2400, where she has taken an apartment.

Later Mrs. Gasque will be joined here for a brief visit by her daughter, Mrs. John E. Hallowell, who will come up from Norfolk, where her husband, Lieut. Comdr. Hallowell, is on duty.

En route to Washington, Mrs. Gasque stopped off to be a guest for a few days of her sister, Mrs. James F. Dobson, of Ridgeway, S. C. Mrs. Dobson accompanied her sister to Washington, but has gone on to West Virginia for a stay with friends.

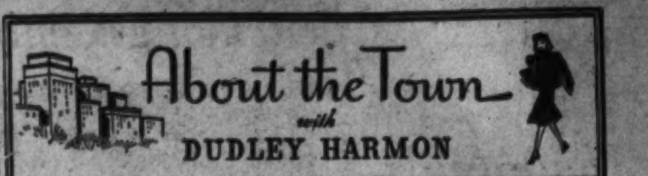
Mme. Molekamp To Pour Today At Deibert Tea

Mme. B. Kleijn Molekamp, wife of the Commercial Counselor of the Netherlands legation, heads those who will pour at the tea to be given by Prof. Alan T. Deibert, of George Washington University this afternoon from 4 to 6 at International House on the campus.

Others at the tea table in the afternoon will include Prof. Anna Pearl Cooper, Miss Kitty Baart, who represents the Netherlands in the International Students Society at the university; Mrs. Maria Tinto Rocca, of Italy; Miss Hsia-ti Yeh, of China, and Miss Selma Gustavson, of Sweden.

Hendrik Vietor will give several violin solos, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Burnett. Milton Salkind, pianist, also will play.

This is one of a series of teas being given by Prof. Deibert, who is adviser to students from foreign countries at the university.



About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

Kerensky, Former Gov. Earle Are Feted in Visits Here

STAUNCH REPUBLICANS are not the only people visiting Washington this week. All in the last day or two we have entertained an ex-premier (Alexander Kerensky), an internationally known architect (Maurice Fatio), and a New Deal politician (George Earle).

Mr. Kerensky, who ruled Russia for a brief period after the overthrow of the czar, is always handsomely entertained when he comes to Washington. This time he is accompanied by his Australian wife, with whom he shared honors at a dinner given last night by Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey G. Parker, jr. The Kerenskys will return to New York on Saturday.

BEFORE MAURICE FATIO entrained for Florida, his friend, Mrs. Arthur Krock, tells us, he drew up plans for a new home for Mrs. Truxtun Beale. About 12 years ago, Mrs. Beale purchased land overlooking Rock Creek Park and adjoining the Robert Woods Bliss property in Georgetown. On the site stands a large Victorian house, which, it's said, Mrs. Beale intends to replace with a modern one.*

We also hear that Mr. Fatio may build a home out near the Burning Tree Country Club for Mr. and Mrs. Nicoll Smith. The former Moira Archbold and her husband have been living in San Francisco since their marriage here several years ago—rather they have made their headquarters there when not traveling in Europe or on exploring jaunts to Tibet. Mrs. Anne Archbold, mother of Mrs. Smith, is now sailing about the South Seas in a Chinese junk collecting museum specimens.

Mr. Fatio has single-handed done over practically the whole of Palm Beach. He was architect for the Wolcott Blair house and the Hobe Sound home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Payson (Joan Whitney), which the F. Lammot Belins, of Washington, are occupying this winter. Mr. Fatio also has a residence there. He is married to a very attractive woman who hails from Oshkosh, Wis., and who writes clever interior decorating articles for magazines.

GEORGE EARLE, former Governor of Pennsylvania, was here yesterday to be sworn in as Minister to Bulgaria. His attractive wife accompanied him, wearing a hat made entirely of the palest pink flowers which she'd bought for spring but decided to don yesterday to cheer herself up in the gloomy snowstorm.

When the Earles sail March 9 for their new post, they will be accompanied by their oldest son, George, who will serve as his father's secretary.

Over the luncheon table yesterday the new Minister had a long talk with the Bulgarian Minister to this country and Mme. Naoumoff. After matters of state had been disposed of, they discussed hunting and fishing opportunities near Sofia, and aviation in Bulgaria. All three are Mr. Earle's special hobbies. He will take his gun and rods along, but will leave his private plane behind in this country.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Earle will return here next week to spend several days in the Capital before sailing.

LADY LINDSAY will return to these parts next week as the guest of Mrs. Amory Perkins at "Journey's End" in Middleburg. Mrs. Perkins will entertain at a luncheon for her a week from Sunday. Since leaving the British Embassy Lady Lindsay has been on Long Island.*

BARBARA HOYT, of New York, and Isaac Stokes, who is still identified with Washington, though he now lives in Manhattan, will be married February 24 at the bride's home in Thomasville, Ga. "Ike" Stokes told a visitor to New York recently that they weren't sending out invitations as they were afraid nobody would be down that way, but that the word should be passed on here that any friends who happened to be near Thomasville would be welcome at the ceremony.

Barbara is a graduate of the very progressive Black Mountain College and has been doing art work in New York. Her fiance is the son of the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, former canon of the Washington Cathedral, and Mrs. Stokes, of Stockbridge, Mass.

MISS MARGARET FRAZER left town just in time, it seems, and is now enjoying sun in Florida instead of sleet and hail in Washington. During her six-week absence her Georgetown house is leased to Mrs. William A. Prime, of Wisconsin, who plans to hunt in Middleburg several times a week—weather permitting.

The F. M. Burkes Make Their Home In Alexandria

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Morton Burke are making their home in Alexandria following a brief honeymoon by motor through Virginia. The former Miss Louise Tucker was married at 3 o'clock last Sunday in the Baptist Church of Alexandria. The bride is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Vinton Yates Dove, of this city. Mr. Burke is the son of Mrs. Lewis Henry Jones, of Alexandria.

The bride wore a printed frock in Chinese tea with a matching wool jacket. Her hat was in a harmonizing shade of green, and a cluster of red roses completed the ensemble.

Miss Jean Moore, of Alexandria, served as maid of honor and only attendant. Walter Schnelling, also of Alexandria, was best man.

H. C. Jewetts Arrive in D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Jewett, of Aberdeen, S. Dak., arrived here yesterday to attend meetings of the executive committee of the Republican National Committee, of which Mr. Jewett is a member.

They will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Henry Jones, of 2301 S street, who will give a dinner for them tomorrow evening at their home and another on Saturday at the Chevy Chase Club.

Soroptimist Club Holds Luncheon

Miss Mary Bourke, president of the Soroptimist Club, presided over the first business meeting of the year at its weekly luncheon yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

Reports were read by chairman of the various standing committees. The civic projects for the year 1940 will include the Boys Club, Red Cross, Central Union Mission, Children's Hospital, Community Chest, Glenn Dale Hospital, President's Cup Regatta, the President's Birthday Ball and the Washington Civic Theater. The club will again dress dolls for injured children who are patients in hospitals in the District; replenish books in the six libraries already installed in institutions in the District; gather toys for poor children at Christmas, raise funds by means of the "Miss Soroptimist" doll to furnish glasses to needy children of the Children's Emergency Home and award a scholarship in the Lewis Hotel Training School through the Vocational guidance committee.

An "investment lark" got under way yesterday morning at the monthly business meeting of the Congressional Club, when members of the California, Arizona and Arkansas delegations held the first of a series of sales designed to "make dollars make dollars."

The plan has been launched by the advisory board of the club as a means of raising money to help pay for the new addition completed just before the opening of the clubhouse this season. The board is composed of the member from each State who has been longest affiliated with the club. Mrs. John R. Murdock, of Arizona, and Mrs. Malcolm Tarver, of Georgia, are serving as co-chairmen of the project and the entire membership is entering into it with enthusiasm. Each is to invest at least a dollar in something she can sell to make more. On Wednesday, May 8, at an "investment party" the money will be turned in and accounts given as to how it was raised.

Sales are to be held at the Friday meetings of the club each week but the first was arranged yesterday, because tomorrow the members will attend the horse show at Fort Meyer instead of having their afternoon session.

The membership has been divided into groups by States, in alphabetical order, to have charge of the sale each week. Yesterday Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona and California were listed, but Alabama did not participate as several members were ill. Arizona, with Mrs. Murdock comprising the entire "delegation" received contributions for its table—cakes from Mrs. Daniel Reed, of New York, former president of the club, and from Mrs. Robert Rich, of Pennsylvania, cookies from the club president, Mrs. Edward R. Burke, wife of the Senator from Nebraska and volunteer service as a saleslady from Mrs. Will Rogers, of Oklahoma.

Mrs. Wade Kitchens, of Arkansas, sold pecans from her State and pottery made of Arkansas clay.

The California delegation, which was the largest of the group, had brought by plane from there, acacia blossoms, avacados, pears, oranges and peanuts. There was also a novel fruit cake, cooked inside of a grapefruit, the receipe for which was being sold at 15 cents per.

The sales tables were arranged in the small drawing room on the first floor of the clubhouse and patronage was so good that the women had all they could do to wait on their customers—all club members, of course.

In charge of the California table were Mrs. Albert E. Carter, Mrs. John Tolan, Mrs. Harry L. Englebright, Mrs. Thomas Ford, Mrs. Harry Sheppard and Mrs. John Z. Anderson. Others who contributed but were not present were Mrs. Frank Buck, Mrs. Clarence Lea and Mrs. James H. MacLafferty, widow of a former Representative and an active club member.

Mrs. Murdock, in addition to selling candies she made and the cakes and cookies donated for her table, was taking orders for small State flags and will continue to do so until the deadline of the "lark."

In advace of their sales day, Mrs. Charles Clason, of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Dudley White, of Ohio, were taking orders for doilie sets—and they had so many they were obliged to close their order sheets, for fear of not being able to fill them all. Mrs. Albert Thomas, of Texas, and Mrs. Charles H. Leavy, of Washington, took orders for hot pads for dinner tables, and Mrs. Hampton Fulmer, of South Carolina, for needlepoint.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Susan Anthony To Be Honored

American women, through representatives of their organizations in Washington, will pay tribute to Susan B. Anthony, equal rights pioneer, at a ceremony this evening at 8 o'clock in the crypt of the Nation's Capitol, commemorating the 120th anniversary of her birth.

The annual observance of Miss Anthony's birthday, inaugurated and sponsored by the National Woman's Party with the cooperation of many other organizations, is fast becoming a tradition, and the name of Susan B. Anthony has come to stand as a symbol of the struggle of American women for a full share in democracy, just as those of Washington, Lincoln and Jefferson stand as symbols of democracy.

Presiding at the meeting, which will be held before the Adelaide Johnson statue of the Equal Rights Pioneers, Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott, often called "The Inseparable Three," will be Mrs. Margaret Bodziak, Democratic national committeewoman for Delaware. Speakers will be Senator Guy M. Gillette, of Iowa; Representative George H. Bender, Ohio Congressman-at-Large and president of the National Federation of Republican Clubs; Representative Jessie Sumner, of Illinois, and Dr. Cornelia Brown, chairman of the New Jersey Commiteee to Eliminate Discriminations Against Women. Dr. Brown takes the place of Representative Mary Norton, of New Jersey, who is absent from the city because of illness.

As has been the custom each year, the United States Marine Band Orchestra, William F. Santlemann, leader, conducting, will play.

Annual International Tea Is Staged by Girl Scouts

Flags of 31 Affiliated Countries Are Massed for Valentine Party; Diplomatic Corps Also Attends

The annual international tea was given yesterday at the National Girl Scout Little House—and every Girl Scout in the hostess group was there.

Although the weather kept some of the guests at home, it failed to mar seriously the success of the Valentine party, to which members of the Diplomatic Corps were invited whose countries are affiliated with the Girl Guides and Girl Scouts. Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, honorary vice president of the Girl Scouts of America, and Mrs. Henry H. Flather, chairman of the National Little House committee, received with Mrs. Gertrude L. Bowman, hostess at the Little House.

In the living room, flags of the 31 affiliated countries were massed and there was the world banner of the Girl Scouts. This, showing a trefoil with stars, signifies the "promise" and "law" of Scouting and includes a compass needle, indicating guidance in the right course and the "flame of love for mankind."

The women guests, as they arrived, were presented with little Valentine nosegays, of which red roses formed the center. The men were given red carnations.

The honor guests, who braved the snow to be present, included Countess Van der Straten-Ponthoz, wife of the Belgian Ambassador; Mme. Hurban, wife of the former Minister of Czecho-Slovakia; Mrs. Brennan, wife of the Irish Minister; Mme. Horinouchi, wife of the Japanese Ambassador, and Mme. Bruggmann, wife of the Swiss Minister.

Also present were Mrs. Arthur Chaote, of New York, chairman of the international committee of the Girl Scouts, and Mr. Choate; Mrs. Geritt Miller, of the local Girl Scouts; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swift, of the Red Cross; Miss Eleanore Durett, new director of the District Girl Scouts; Mrs. Henry Robb and Miss Betty Bowler, of the national staff; Miss Matoka Stribling, of the staff of Region 3, and Miss Anne McClean, of the local staff.

Mrs. Charles L. McNary, wife of Senator McNary, of Oregon, and a member of the District of Columbia Girl Scout Council, with Mrs. Brooke and Mrs. Flather, alternated at the tea table.

The Girl Scouts of Troops 9, 71 and 45, Mrs. Archer S. Taylor and Mrs. Rachel F. Nyswander, leaders, acted as hostesses. They wore the costumes of the various countries and served in the dining room during the tea.

Representing the United States were Barbara Smith, Mary Bishop, Adelaide Everett, Virginia Clark and Mary Watkins. Others were, Switzerland, Myrtle Lanckton; Australia, Myra Kalkin; Canada, Kathryn Lowe; Poland, Annette Beam; Sweden, Mildred Cabell; Egypt, Marporie Millar; Denmark, Virginia Kessler; France, Miriam Eckard, and Hungary, Vera Winterfeldt.

Alpha Delta Pi Alumnae to Meet Tonight

The Washington Alumnae Association of Alpha Delta Pi will meet at 8 p. m. tonight at the Kennedy-Warren to honor members who hold membership in honorary organizations, such as Phi Beta Kappa and Mortar Board. Mrs. William Husband is hostess for the evening and Mrs. James MacManaway is chairman in charge of arrangements.

The program will feature a one-act play entitled, "The Women Say," to be given by a group of the A. A. U. W. Players, under the direction of Jacquelyn Pringle, an Alpha Delta Pi alumna. In addition to Miss Pringle, the cast includes Dr. Anna Marie Ketchum, Florine Hurley, Adelaide Smith, Harriet Ann Jackson and Mrs. Perry Land, also an Alpha Delta Pi alumna.

Credit Women Set Breakfast for 7:45 A. M., Believe It or Not, Column Tomorrow Will Report Event, If It's True

AT 4 P. M. YESTERDAY, Alice White, of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club, called to say the members would meet for their regular breakfast this morning at 7:45 in the Fairfax Room of the Willard Hotel. I looked out at the snowstorm and decided to put the announcement in the "believe it or not" column. I'll let you know this time tomorrow whether to believe it or not and, if they have their meeting, I'll also be able to tell you the names of their new officers, for the annual election is scheduled for today's session.

Martha Bean Gleason is now the president.

BOOK CHAT—Miss Carolene Smith's Circle, No. 3, of St. Margaret's Rector's Aid will sponsor a book chat this afternoon at 3 o'clock by Mrs. Frank H. Clark, followed by tea.

Mrs. William S. Covell, chairman pro tem, will be assisted at the tea table by Mrs. Robert M. Kennedy, Mrs. Charles Selden and Mrs. Franz Ridgway.

Other circle members who will assist will be Mrs. William R. Benham, Mrs. John G. Capers, Mrs. Samuel Tucker Fisher, Mrs. George Howe, Mrs. Herman Lee, Miss Jane McEwen, Mrs. Evelyn Fitzhugh Shapter, Mrs. Sidney Lloyd Wrightson, Mrs. Everett B. Wilson, Mrs. Charles L. Frailey, Mrs. Frank T. Hassell, Miss Harriet E. Luhn and Miss Virginia Eskridge.

HOOSIERS TO MEET—The Indiana women in Washington will celebrate the second anniversary of their organization Saturday night with a buffet supper at the Roger Smith Hotel, to which their husbands and friends will be invited.

Two years ago a small group met for what they called an "acorn luncheon" with the idea that "great oaks from little acorns grow." The acorn has sprouted in accordance with their hopes and the buffet supper, to which all Indianans will be welcome, is in celebration.

Representative and Mrs. Raymond Springer will have as their guest, Mrs. Grace Urbans Reynolds, of Cambridge City, who is Republican national committeewoman from Indiana and former State treasurer. She will be in the Capital for the meeting of the Republican National Committee.

Mrs. Louis Ludlow, wife of Representative Ludlow, is program chairman for the party, assisted by Mrs. Oswald Ryan, Mrs. Paul Tombaugh, Mrs. Claude Wickard, Mrs. Glen Gifford, Mrs. Douglas Whitlock, Mrs. Arthur Bergman, Mrs. Royd Sayers, wife of the president of the Indiana Society; Mrs. Carl Maholm, Mrs. James W. Baldwin, Mrs. Fordyce Minnick (Evelyn Tyner, the pianist) and Mrs. Frederick Ballard, secretary of the society.

nate July 2 and to nominate candidates on July 4. In event of the Independence Day choice, Philadelphia might be favored as the convention site.

Meantime, Ohio Democrats prepared to seek a final decision next week on who will be that State's Democratic "favorite son choice"—a decision that may determine whether Vice President Garner or other candidates will enter the State.

Senator Donahey, favored for the top role on the Ohio ticket, balked after State Democratic leaders asserted their determination to swing the Ohio delegation to Roosevelt if he seeks a third term.

Friends of Donahey let it be known he did not want to be a "stalking horse" for any candidate.

A conference of the State Democratic central committee and executive State committeemen at Columbus on Sunday is expected to launch a "draft Donahey" movement, but if their Donahey declaration is coupled with a third-term plea the Ohio Senator is expected to turn down the honor.

Garner Awaits Decision

Garner managers have indicated Vice President Garner will enter the Ohio primary race if Donahey fails to.

As President Roosevelt left Washington for a ten-day vacation cruise without disclosing his political plans, Garner backers in Illinois said they will wait on the President's decision before launching their campaign there.

Julius F. Smietanka, Chicago attorney, managing Garner interests in that State, said if President Roosevelt withdraws before the February 24 deadline, it would hardly be necessary for the Vice President to campaign there. But if the President permits his name to stand on the ballot, Smietanka said the Garner forces will build an organization in every county.

Spangler is Hopeful

One of the first Republican National Committeemen to arrive for tomorrow's G. O. P. meeting was Harrison E. Spangler, of Iowa, who predicted Midwestern farmers "will register their dissatisfaction (with the New Deal) at the polls next fall."

Spangler said the Mid West "is far from satisfied with a farm program which gives only 70 per cent flof parity" and believes New Deal spending is "wasteful, silly and reckless."

Mrs. Grace B. Reynolds, Indiana Republican National Committeewoman and former director of the women's division, said "Indiana's return to the Republican column is in the bag."

J. Leonard Replogle, Republican National Committeeman from Florida, said "there is vigorous opposition to a third term for President Roosevelt in Florida."

Mrs. Chris Carlson, Minnesota Republican National Committeewoman, said women of the Middle West view the Administration's reciprocal trade program as "a direct slap in the face to the American farmer."

F. E. Murphy, Minneapolis Publisher, Dies in New York

A. P. Director Led Fight to Diversify Farmer's Activities

FREDERICK E. MURPHY

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 14.—Frederick E. Murphy, 67, a farm boy who became a nationally known newspaper publisher and crusaded througout the Nation for his ideals of diversified agriculture, died today.

Death came to the executive head of the Minneapolis Tribune newspapers and director of the Associated Press from complications growing out of a cold. He was here on business.

Leaders in the Nation's business, political and labor life joined in paying tribute to Murphy. Typical of the comment was that of former President Hoover, who said:

"Mr. Murphy has not been alone a publisher of a great newspaper. He has been a pioneer in the development of the whole Northwest. And he has served the Nation in a score of directions. His passing is a great loss to our country."

Mr. Murphy in 1920 saw diversification as the rejuvenation factor for agriculture in the Northwest—agriculture prostrated by the postwar collapse and the burst of the inflation bubble around huge wheat surpluses.

Mr. Murphy used his own Elmco Farm, in western Minnesota, as an example of what diary diversification can do. He spent large sums developing Holstein cattle. At the same time, he turned missionary for crop diversification.

When farmers sought financial aid for diversification, Mr. Murphy noted that banks were unable to supply it. So he aided in formation and expansion of the Agricultural Credit Corporation.

President Roosevelt named him America's delegate to the world wheat conferences in Geneya and London in 1933.

won't be known until early spring. The response yesterday, considered along with the receipts of pre-Valentine parties held earlier this month, has assured the drive's success.

Mrs. Winslow B. Van Devanter and Mrs. William J. Flather, jr., cosponsored the Chevy Chase Club benefit bridge with a duplicate tournament conducted by Phil Stockvis.

The general public, as well as Legion and auxiliary members, was welcomed to the parties of George Washington and National Cathedral posts which were held at 2108 Sixteenth street northwest and the New Colonial Hotel.

Among the larger private benefit bridges yesterday were those given by Mrs. J. Wesley Buchanan at her home, 6804 Bradley boulevard, Bethesda; Mrs. M. L. Novak, Mrs. Harry Wallerstein and Mrs. Joseph Tichman at the home of Mrs. Wallerstein; Mrs. M. Folson, at her home, and Mrs. Alfred Pavoska, who entertained the ladies social group of the International Geneva Hotel Association at Jene's Restaurant.

Hostesses reported a sizable number of cancellations, due to the blustery weather, but in almost every instance the price of the ticket accompanied the cancellation, or was to follow it shortly.

Largest party tonight will be that of the Cooley-McCullough Post, American Legion, which will give an elaborate floor show and game program at the Annapolis Hotel. Music will be by Tiny Meeker's orchestra and there will be cabaret specialties by Lotus Restaurant performers, Joe and Erline King and others. The public is invited to this party, for which the admission is 50 cents. The show will begin at 8 p. m.

Another American Legion affair tonight to which the public is invited is the duplicate bridge game at the Roosevelt Hotel sponsored by Tank Corps Post, No. 19, with William Cheeks in charge of arrangements. It will begin at 8:30.

Miss Katherine Tancill, president, and Miss Alma McCrum, of the Quota Club of Washington, will entertain club members tonight at a dinner party at the home of Miss McCrum, 1662 Thirty-third street northwest. The entire proceeds will go into the blood and serum bank fund.

What is expected to be largest card party of the campaign will be held tomorrow night at the offices of the Washington Gas Light Co., 411 Tenth street northwest, by the company's American Legion post.

Provisions have been made to accommodate 500 players at the party, according to J. Thomas Olney, general chairman, and Walter S. Smith, post commander. The display room will be turned over to the "bank boosters" and, if it is necessary, tables will be set up in the executive offices.

The public is invited to the party, whose gross receipts will go to the Children's Hospital transfusion and serum fund.

Checks received yesterday by The Post included one for $34.50 from the Sodality Union, another for $75 which represented the receipts of a card party given at the home of Mrs. Herman Hertzberg, one for $6.80 from the Washington Boys Club, and another for $5 from the ladies' auxiliary of Ohev Sholom congregation.

Divorced After 6-Year Suit

A suit which had been pending in the Circuit Court at Rockville for more than 6 years was settled when Judge Charles W. Woodward signed a decree granting to Mrs. Effie L. Johnson, of Washington, an absolute divorce from Thomas Marshall Johnson, of Comus, Md., and awarding her custody of the couple's four children. The proceedings were instituted by attorneys Whiteford and Cissel November 13, 1933. The couple were married December 25, 1924, it was shown.

New Deal Fails, Says Sen. Bridges

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Feb. 14 (AP). Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, said tonight the New Deal would be remembered by future generations "primarily for the heritage of debt it bequeathed to them."

Addressing a belated Lincoln Day dinner, the Republican Presidential candidate criticized New Deal spending and what he termed its failure to improve the conditions of the unemployed, the worker and the farmer.

Life Insurance Realty Values Are Challenged

By the Associated Press

The manner in which leading life insurance companies carried real estate investments on their books appear in many cases to be an "overstatement," Ernest Howe, Securities Commission financial adviser, told the Monopoly Committee yesterday in analyzing investments of the Nation's 26 largest legal reserve life insurance companies.

"In spite of the fact that bonds in default are carried at market," Howe testified, "no similar provision is made for mortgages . . . the question as to whether it is conservative policy to carry these mortgages (where interest is delinquent) in the balance sheet at their full unpaid principal amount merits serious consideration."

Valuations of foreclosed real estate, Howe said, ranged on the books of different companies from 78.71 per cent of the mortgage amount to 120.66 per cent. City real estate was carried at values from 5.8 times gross income to 18.23 times gross income.

Meanwhile, in a letter to Col. C. B. Robbins, manager of the American Life Convention, Chicago, Chairman O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, reiterated assertions the committee has taken no action and has not given consideration to any recommendations with respect to regulation of insurance companies, as reported in a bulletin.

"That you have chosen rather to place the authority of your office and of the American Life Convention behind the circulation of a press report, frankly, seems rather amazing to me, for instead of arousing the fears of persons associated with the insurance industry you could easily have helped to alleviate them," O'Mahoney wrote.

New School Need Studied By Citizens

Plans to Obtain Replacement of Portables Weighed By Association

The need for a new school to replace the portables at Minnesota avenue and E street southeast was discussed last night by the North Randle Highlands Community Citizens Association, whose members found a temperature of 42 degrees and a wind blowing across the floor when they arrived at the school for their meeting.

The group adopted a resolution thanking local newspapers for recent stories describing conditions in the portables; and appointed a committee to arrange a hearing before the House Appropriations subcommittee.

The committee consists of A. C. Edwards, president of the association; Harry D. Wood, and Harry W. F. Glenser.

Increase Is Expected

Speakers estimated the community will be increased by more than 350 children of school age next year as a result of the 700 dwelling units being constructed by the Alley Dwelling Authority and private builders.

The nearest school other than the portable is the Benjamin Orr School on Pennsylvania avenue southeast, which is already used in two shifts.

One member reported that during the storm yesterday she had visited the portable and found three buckets being used to catch water leaking through the roof.

The association went on record opposing the proposed re-zoning of Minnesota avenue southeast opposite the school from residential to commercial.

16th Street Highlands

Enthusiastically indorsing a movement recently launched by the Washington Federation of Churches, the Sixteenth Street Highlands Association last night called upon the District Commissioners to survey the whole question of liquor distribution in the Capital.

A resolution authorizing this request was unanimously adopted by members attending the meeting in Brightwood School.

Discussing the problems arising from liquor retailing in the community, members voted to protest before the Alcolohlic Beverage Control Board the application of a Colorado avenue businessman.

The association discussed two of the community's traffic problems, and adopted resolutions seeking action from traffic officials.

One resolution called attention to the congestion during rush hours at the Pierce Mill intersection in Rock Creek Park. Roads through the park are carrying a growing traffic burden, it was pointed out.

The other resolution called attention to the "bus hazard" at the Colorado avenue bus terminal of the Capital Transit Co. The hazard, it was pointed out, arises from buses swinging into an oncoming lane of traffic in order to make a turn for the southbound trip. The resolution recommended posting of a marker to warn motorists of the turning buses.

Gas Tax Is Opposed

The House subcommittee investigating the District ABC Board was urged in a resolution adopted last night by the Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association to determine why the board has granted licenses over protests of residents.

Another resolution opposed the bill of Representative Vreeland (Democrat), of New Jersey, to change lunacy procedure in the District. A third opposed the proposal of Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, to add 1 cent to gasoline taxes in lieu of the District income tax.

Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, addressed the organization on the relationship between the federation and its member associations. A quartet from the a capella choir of First Congregational Church, under direction of Miss Mildred Padgett, offered several numbers.

Indian Couple Wed, Climaxing School Romance

Miss Hogner

A romance that began four years ago at Haskell Institute and bloomed in the halls of the Government has culminated in the marriage of an Indian couple in Warrenton, Va.

They are Fred H. Massey, 27, of 1918 I street northwest, and Edna Hogner, 25, of 1900 F street northwest.

Both are from Oklahoma—Massey, of Choctaw descent, from Quentin, and the former Miss Hogner, a Cherokee, from Stillwell.

The couple met on the Haskell campus in 1935 when both were taking commercial courses.

Edna graduated that year and came to Washington to join the Indian Office, of the Interior Department. Massey came to the Capital in 1938 and they met again as fellow employes. They were married Saturday.

Rev. C. M. Wright To Officiate in Herndon

The Rev. C. M. Wright will hold services at the Herndon (Va.) Methodist Church in the absence of the Rev. Boyd Bryant during February and March, it was announced yesterday. Mr. Bryant is at Sibley Hospital recovering from a major operation performed last Thursday.

Mr. Wright will officiate at Holy Communion at the Herndon church at 11 a. m. this Sunday, February 18, and at the Dranesville church at 10 a. m.

Child Bureau Asked to Study District Home

Katharine Lenroot Requested to Place Agent on Inquiry

Miss Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department, was asked by Chairman D'Alesandro of the House subcommittee on public health yesterday to assign a member of her staff to make a report on the Children's Receiving Home.

Preparing to shift the welfare inquiry after today's hearing on the Home for the Aged and Infirm, D'Alesandro said he hoped to obtain expert advice on the receiving home before taking testimony. He followed a similar procedure in the Blue Plains inquiry by obtaining aid from the Public Health Service.

Frank B. Haskell, superintendent at Blue Plains, and the part-time physician at the institution will be the principal witnesses when the subcommittee resumes hearings at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the House Claims Committee room.

D'Alesandro invited the Commissioners to attend today's session, but as both Commissioners Hazen and Allen are out of the city this phase of the inquiry will be postponed.

Meanwhile the District Communist Party issued what it called a "seven-point legislative program" for the National Capital, but in a three-page release made a score of recommendations.

Capital News In Brief

Burglar's Haul $274

A burglar yesterday traded a brick bat for $274 in watches, when he hurled it through the window of the Oppenheimer Jewelry Co., 903 F street northwest, and scooped the merchandise from the display. Isadore Kahn, 4714 Ninth street northwest, manager, discovered the theft when he arrived to open the store.

Lectures on Lincoln

Dr. Louis A. Warren, author of "Lincoln's Parentage and Chilhood," last night presented an illustrated lecture on the early life of Abraham Lincoln, in the Labor Department Auditorium. More than 250 persons attended the meeting, which was arranged by the National Parks Service.

Dr. Warren described the migration of the Lincoln family from the Kentucky cabin where Lincoln was born, through Indiana and Illinois. He showed scenes of the cabins the Lincolns lived in, and of the modern shrines which have been set aside to commemorate the Civil War President.

Leaders in 3 Faiths Discuss Cooperatives

'Basically Spiritual,' Rabbi Metz Says Of Movement

Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, leader of Adas Israel Congregation, last night pictured the cooperative movement as "basically spiritual" in an address at Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

One of the speakers of three faiths addressing a rally for cooperatives, he said such a movement, in bringing its benefits to people in lower-income brackets, was performing a real spiritual task, and promoting brotherhood, interracial and interdenominational harmony.

James M. Winters, graduate student in labor economics at Catholic University, said increased interest was being shown in the Catholic Church in cooperatives. He described a cooperative for fishermen in Nova Scotia, sponsored by the St. Francis Xavier Society.

Charles E. Plank, president of the District of Columbia Cooperative League, sponsors of the program, who presided; Leroy A. Halbert, his predecessor in the league; the Rev. George A. Ackerly, assistant pastor of the host church.

Dr. James Meyers, official of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, was unable to attend. Dr. Eddy L. Ford, religious education director, and president of Consumers' Cooperatives, Inc., was also prevented from being on hand.

Gallant Red Cross Women Brave Blizzard To Get a Lesson on Driving an Ambulance

A tiny squad of Washington's gallant Red Cross women last night braved blustery winter for a lesson in what makes the wheels go round.

The wheels they were interested in were those of their two ambulances. The scene of their lesson was the garage of the District Red Cross Chapter House, at 1730 E street northwest.

The women ambulance drivers threw open the doors of the garage, backed one ambulance half way out into the winter night, and then listened to pointers on how to detect mechanical engine troubles.

Their teacher for the evening was J. W. Shivley, director of service and travel for the Washington branch of the American Automobile Association. For nearly an hour he outlined the operation of the gasoline engine, and described how to tell when the battery is low, how to detect a faulty spark plug, how to adjust a carburetor.

The practical demonstration followed.

"How do you turn off a horn that won't stop blowing?" asked one pupil.

"Detach one of these contacts," replied Shively, pointing to an electric conduit.

"You would have to stand on your head to do it," another student remarked.

Among those who attended the lesson were Miss Isabelle M. Allen, of 1534 East Capitol street; Mrs. Lillian Pearce, 1830 K street northwest; Mrs. Oscar Jordan, 1900 F street northwest; Mrs. Sam R. Broadbent, of the Kennedy Warren; Mrs. J. R. Parker, of 2908 Dumbarton avenue northwest; Mrs. A. P. James, 1514 Seventeenth street northwest; Miss Amelia MacFadyen, of Arlington, Va.

Next Wednesday the group plans to get down to a practical lesson on how to change a tire.

ABC Inquiry Group Hears Mrs. Mason

Vice Chairman Of Liquor Board Called to Testify At Secret Session

The House sub-committee investigating the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday was closeted with Mrs. Agnes K. Mason, vice chairman of the board, for several hours as it gathered data in preparation for open hearings next week.

The sub-committee also questioned Ralph A. Lee, proprietor of Lee's Tavern, who recently was denied a Class C license by the board after an objection was made by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Today the sub-committee will confer in executive session with Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Findings Kept Secret

Committee members declined to reveal what had been uncovered at the closed hearings. The witnesses, including four who were turned away without being heard late yesterday, are understood to have been produced by Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, one of the initiators of the investigation.

Chairman Eberharter (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, said that the executive sessions were being held to obtain background for the formal hearings.

We want to lay the groundwork so that we can proceed in a proper fashion," he said. 'We don't want to hear everybody who shows up. Instead we want to know what we are after before we begin."

Earlier in the day Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma, introduced a bill proposing an amendment to section 6 of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act to permit appeals from rejections of license renewal applications by the ABC Board.

Rossiter Case Sequel

The bill, which is an outgrowth of the Leo Rossiter case, places the refusal of license renewals on the same basis as outright revocations or suspensions of more than 30 days. Such decisions may now be appealed to the Commissioners.

The Nichols bill stipulates that the appeals must be filed within ten days after action is taken by the board and it provides that the Commissioners' decision shall be final.

Yesterday's meeting was the third executive session to be held by the Eberharter subcommittee since its appointment on February 5. The chairman said that one reason for the delay in starting open hearings is the absence of the two Republican members of the subcommittee, Representatives Dirksen, of Illinois, and Shafer, of Michigan.

Licenses Suspended

Meanwhile the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board meted out suspensions to five licensees for various infractions of regulations.

Robert Rosenberg, 511 Ninth street, northwest, received a two weeks' suspension of his class "C" license for making a "sale to an intoxicated person." The suspension begins at 8 a. m. tomorrow (Friday) and ends at 8 a. m. March 1. This license permits the off sale of hard liquor.

The class "D" license of Steve Saraphis and Nick Tzanis, 1405 Ninth street northwest, was suspended for five days for permitting "an intoxicated person to remain on a licensed premise." The suspension begins at 8 a. m. February 19 and ends 8 a. m . February 24. This license permits the off sale of beer and light wines.

A four day suspension was given ot Demosthenes Malatras, 1101 I street northwest, for making a sale to an intoxicated person. Malatras, who has a "D" license, will not be permitted to sell beer from 8 a. m. February 20 to 8 a. m. February 24.

A four-day suspension was given to Luther Curtis, 3416-3418 Eleventh street northwest, on a charge of "selling to an intoxicated person." His class "C" license was suspended from 8 a. m. February 20 to 8 a. m. February 24.

Mrs. Bernice Berman, 4328 Georgia avenue northwest, had her class "D" license suspended for seven days, beginning at 8 a. m. February 20 for allowing a minor to serve beer. The suspension will be lifted at 8 a. m. February 27.

Seer Tells Reporter All; Can't Tell Source of Power

Mystifies Himself at Times, He Says; Charts Future as Far as 1945 And Sees Hectic Things to Come

Dr. Ivan Marsden, one of 22 licensed mediums, palmists, astrologers and soothsayers in the District, says he is "a sucker," but insists his customers are not.

The lettering on his door at 616 Twelfth street northwest says, quite simply, "Seer." In the first reception room a sign reads, "The Doctor Is In."

"People have been calling me doctor or doc ever since I was 15 years old," Marsden reflected yesterday. "I don't know just why they do it—I like to think maybe it's a little mark of added respect."

"Of course I am doctor of psychology," he added. The seer had explained earlier that he is "an extremely sensitive man," and the reporter feared further questions about the doctorate might be misunderstood.

Dr. Marsden made no effort to conceal his professional indignation when conversation turned to charges against the clairvoyant craft, contained in a letter from U. L. di Ghilini to the House District Committee. The committee has ordered an investigation of local practitioners of the psychic arts.

Doesn't Know Any Tricks

"I don't know anything about this Ghilini," the seer said, "and of course I'm not attempting to speak for any other members of the profession here. I don't know any of them either. But I do know that Ghilini, or whatever his name is, is trying to stir people up over a lot of fortune-telling tricks that were exposed in California 40 years ago.

"Anybody can expose those things—there's nothing new about them," he continued. "Ghilini can't catch me at anything. How could he? I don't pretend to do anything except tell people what I see ahead for them. I don't have any tricks so how could there be anything to be exposed?"

Dr. Marsden agreed to treat his visitor as "a client," rather than a reporter. He snapped off the only light in his office, held a purple silk cloth against his forehead and picked up one of the two crystal balls on his desk.

He narrowed his eyes and raised his voice. The customer was passing through a rather turbulent period, he said. The disturbance seemed to involve his relations with the people around him. Everybody who understood the subject loved him, but not many people understood him. Not just now, anyway.

The seer gave another spin to his crystal ball, which is about the size of a grapefruit. He saw a certain amount of unpleasantness, centering in "the stomach or side," for midsummer. Nothing serious, but pretty uncomfortable.

Things began to look up later in the year. A quick but pleasant stay in "a large city by a large body of water" was indicated and then a longer and still more agreeable trip "across plains and mountain." On the second trip the company would consist of "a dear one" or "those who mean most to you." The seer went no further into the details. The prophecy was spoken so quickly it was hard to get any very clear idea of the size of our party.

Mundivagant Psyche

He twirled the ball again and 1941 began to take shape. Dr. Marsden saw "a change of residence, city and State" and other stirring events. "There will come babies, also, to crown your happiness," he said.

The doctor lingered briefly over this domestic vista before coming up with a trip to the tropics, "probably in the West Pacific zone," for 1943. By 1945, he said, "looking back over the five years of this time," the whole sequence will seem well worthwhile. That was about as far as he could go, for the present.

Dr. Marsden turned the light back on. Such a "reading," he said, would usually cost $1, though some of his customers pay up to $3. The average audience lasts around 15 minutes. Clients are free to ask questions at the end of the reading, but "most of them seem to have what they came for" when the seer has completed his formal forecast.

Mystifies Himself

The source of his power is a mystery to Dr. Marsden. "I don't know what it is or where it comes from," he said modestly. He got into the business 40 years ago—he's 56 now—and has been in Washington since 1925.

"Here I am, a decent and honorable citizen," he said. "I pay $250 a year for my license and give money to all sorts of worthy causes—I'm a sucker for that sort of thing."

The people who come in to see him "are just as intelligent as you and I are." By way of clinching the argument, he asked, "Do the people you see on the streets here in Washington look like suckers?"

"Everybody who knows me respects me," Dr. Marsden said. "Now, I don't say they all like me, but then not everybody in the country voted for President Roosevent, did they?"

WRA Rejects Plan to Shift Cafe Control

Negotiation Urged By Recreational Association Trustees To Settle Differences

The Welfare and Recreational Association last night rejected the proposal of Federal Works Administrator Carmody to take operation of Government cafeterias out of the association's hands and place them under Government supervision.

Acceptance of Carmody's plan, according to the statement issued by the association board, "would have the effect in the minds of the public and Government employes of an admission on the part of the association that it had acted in an illegal and unauthorized manner."

The association was accused January 29 by Acting Comptroller General R. N. Elliott, in a report to Carmody, of operating without legal sanction and of being in default to the Government by more than $200,000.

Any differences between the Government and the association should be settled "by negotiation," the trustees said. "The new arrangement proposed by the solicitor of the Federal Works Agency is of questionable legal authority and is a reversion to conditions in effect before the association was incorporated, and to correct which the association was formed as a legal entity," the statement continued.

The association, center of a heated controversy for several months, is a nonprofit corporation, operating cafeterias and lunchrooms in about 20 Government buildings, as well as a score of other concessions in Washington.

Elliott said the association's assets belonged to the Government and recommended that the existing contract between the FWA Public Building Administration and the association be terminated.

Bowling Prizes Stolen

Robbers yesterday broke into the home of Miss Ethel Neff, 1739 Massachusetts avenue southeast, secretary of the Catholic Ladies' Bowling League, and stole $34 of league funds. The money was prize money to be awarded at the end of the current bowling season.

Ten Nat Players Argue Over 1940 Salaries

Gee Walker And Leonard Trouble Griff

Rick Ferrell Also Won't Come to Terms With Washington Baseball President

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 14.—Clark Griffith has ten salary disputes on his hands, he admitted tonight. Some are mild, some are of doubtful intensity and some threaten to be downright vigorous.

Dutch Leonard, Gerald Walker and Rick Ferrell present the most stubborn cases, Griffith confessed, but the 70-year-old owner of the Nats is not prepared to give any ground, he declared.

"They're not hold-outs yet," he said. "I never call a player a hold-out until he refuses to report on the date he's ordered, and that is March 1 for Leonard, Walker and Ferrell. But they've got my last offer."

No Visit From Walker

All three have written Griffith that the salary terms in their contracts were unsatisfactory. Walker has been in Orlando for three days but he has not seen fit to visit Griffith. Leonard and Ferrell have settled down into silence since spurning contracts offered them six weeks ago.

"I offered Walker the same salary he received with the White Sox last year, and that was plenty," said Griffith.

"He didn't hit .300, and he was drawing big money from the White Sox. If he had stayed at Chicago, he'd be in line for a pay cut."

Leonard, according to Griffith, has an exaggerated idea of his importance despite the fact he was a 20-game winner for the sixth place Nats in 1939. "I gave him a thousand dollar bonus at the end of last season and I've offered him a raise twice as big as I've given any other Washington player. Sure, he won 20 games, but can he repeat? I don't call him an established pitcher yet."

Ferrell Is Objecting

Ferrell, who lost caste as the Nats' regular catcher last season, is squawking loudly against a pay cut. "I don't see what he did to earn his money last year," said Griffith tersely.

The Nats' owner classes Cecil Travis and Buddy Myer in a special class among the unsigned players. "I never have any trouble coming to terms with them," he said, "they'll sign before they report here."

Of the other unsigned players—First Baseman Mickey Vernon, Catcher Angelo Giuliani, Infielders Jimmie Pofahl and Bobby LaPorte, Outfielder Teddy Ratinski and Pitcher Gilberto Torres—only Pofahl threatens to be a stubborn case, said Griffith.

"Pofahl didn't like the first contract I sent him and I gave him a better one," said the Nats' owner. "I met him more than half way. He'll sign at what I've offered or he'll be fined when he does report."

Navy Cagers Lose, 56-37, To Fordham

8th Beating in Nine Starts for Middies As Rams Apply Heat

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Feb. 14. — Fordham University set a pace the Navy basketball team couldn't match today, and the Rams galloped off with the payoff end of a 56-37 score.

Navy started fast and led at 8-4 and 10-7, but the rangy New Yorkers passed the Tars at 11-10 and it was a rout from there in. The halftime score was 31-20 for the invaders.

Navy pulled up within seven points at 24-31 and 30-27, but that was their bolt, and the Polish-Irish squad won in a canter.

Capt. Dutch Weil, diminutive Jerry Rizzo and Frank Klimaszewski starred for the Fordham squad. Rizzo set up a dozen Ram scores with bullet passes beautifully faked.

Phil Gutting, Purdue transfer, was Navy's big gun with 13 points. Baldy Barton was the only other Middie to find the basket regularly, chalking up an even dozen points.

It was the Navy's ninth start and their eighth defeat.

Patty Berg, Morton Bright, Golf Losers

By the Associated Press

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 14.—Patty Berg, the Minneapolis redhead, and Morton Bright, of Miami, bowed out of the Everglades Club mixed two-ball golf tournament today, but the medalist team of Robert Sweeny and Grace Amory, of Palm Beach, moved into the semifinals.

Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., and Tommy Goodwin, of New York, ousted Miss Berg and Bright, 2 and 1, the same score by which the Sweeny-Amory combination eliminated Shirley Ann Johnson, of Chicago, and T. Suffern Tailer, of New York.

In the other bracket Mr. and Mrs. Briggs S. Cunningham, of Green Farms, Conn., overwhelmed Elizabeth Hicks, of Long Beach, Calif., and Paul Cushman, of Greenville, S. C., 6 and 5. Clara Callender, of Long Beach, and Hugh I. Willoughby 3d, of Port Sewell, Fla., trimmed Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bedford, of New York, 2 and 1.

Presidents Too Powerful For St. John's

Cadets' 1-Game Upset Pace Halted; Winners Ahead Throughout As Fugler Stars

Woodrow Wilson basketball power scored direct hits from all angles of the home floor to blast St. John's ambitious five into defeat, 33 to 20, yesterday.

Bouncing back from its Monday upset at the hands of Georgetown Prep with a fury becoming its high station in the interhigh series, Wilson started slowly, gained momentum as the game progressed and finally won with comparative ease.

So it was that St. John's, the prized scalp of Roosevelt dangling from its belt and nursing fond hopes of making a clean sweep of the top-ranking interhigh teams, was hammered into submission by the fast-moving Presidents, who dominated play throughout.

Just as in past engagements this season, star of Wilson's attack was well-built Bart Fugler, senior forward who scored 12 points for the winners. You won't find his name prominently mentioned in the scoring column but blond Mokie MacDonald, through the medium of polished floor play, contributed as much to the Wilson triumph as he would if hung suspended from the Johnny basket.

Lone Field Goal

Both teams experienced difficulty locating the cords, a full four minutes elapsing before Fugler was able to score a "snowbird." Little Joe Corrado, St. John's captain, vaulted his team into the scoring column with a successful free throw but this was as close as the Cadets came to Wilson all afternoon.

Their scoring from the floor restricted by close and effective Wilson guarding, the Johnnies were forced to resort to the free throw stripe for the majority of their first half points. The Presidents, meanwhile, bolstered their margin to 14-5 at halftime as Fugler cooperated with Roy Cowdrey in locating the enemy target. St. John's was held to one field goal in the first half.

Presidents Spurt

The Presidents went into high gear at the start of the second half and by midway in the third quarter had compiled a 20-7 advantage, giving Coach Tony Kupka ample opportunity to substitute freely.

With the score 27-12 in favor of Wilson at the start of the fourth quarter, Coach Gene Augusterfer, of St. John's, inserted his second team, which proved insufficient to stop the steady stream of Wilson baskets. Many of the Presidents' two-pointers were the direct result of superior play under the St. John's basket.

Shackling of brawny Frank Cady was no little factor in Wilson's victory. Four points, all of which came in the second half, represented Cady's point total as the irrepressible Presidents swept down the court with four regulars sharing the scoring.

Fugler's 12 points represented the individual top while Cowdrey totaled 9. Corrado and Herb Munhall each scored six to pace the losers.

140 Nominees Expected for 1940 Derby

Nominations Close Tonight for Keuntcky Classic

By the Associated Press

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 14.—A record list of nominees is predicted for the first $75,000 Kentucky Derby on May 4.

Nominations for the sixty-sixth running of the country's topflight race for 3-year-olds close tomorrow midnight, and that means midnight wherever you live—because entry letters post-marked before the witching hour will be accepted at Churchill Downs.

Last year 115 horses were nominated. Col. Matt Winn, boss of the Downs, expects about 140 to try in 1940 for the biggest pot 'o gold—plus a gold cup—ever offered the clasic winner. Up to this year the cash was $50,000 added.

Bolstering the colonel's prediction are two factors:

1. Breeders and trainers share in the purse for the first time.
2. Cancellation of many important races in England and on the continent because of the war is expected to develop a heavy invasion of foreign thoroughbreds. The Downs management mailed blanks some time ago to various agencies in Great Britain and Ireland.

There wasn't the lightest chance of getting Col. Winn to break precedent and give a hint on the names of any of the leading candidates already nominated. The colonel's view: "Too much like looking in the box."

But the grapevine information

Eastern High Cagers Beat Episcopal, 43-31

Bob Custer Tallies 21 Points for Winners In Addition to Playing Fine Floor Game; Doug Bradley Best for Losers

Bob Custer, the "Gun" of Eastern High's cage team which has been jammed for the past several weeks, regained his full potency yesterday in Alexandria where the Tide trampled Episcopal, 43-31, for its second triumph in two days.

Using the first half to get the range of the basket, Custer poured 14 points through the ring in the second two periods to make his total for the game 21. In addition the lanky forward worked in perfect harmony with Moe Shulman in one of Eastern's best performances to date.

Though there was a chance for Episcopal to get in the game any time in the first half, Custer's torrid streak thereafter spelled victory for the public school squad which trounced Western in the interhigh series Tuesday. At the half the count was 17-12 in Eastern's favor, but with the start of the second half it quickly drew away.

The defeat was the sixth of the season for the host club, against only four victories. Eastern claimed its tenth triumph in 15 games on the outcome.

Capt. Doug Bradley of Episcopal once again led in his team's scoring with 12 points, four better than the total of Ed Gamble, second high scorer. Shulman also had eight points.

Major Stars Play Fund Game Mar. 7

Tampa Chosen as Site Of Finnish Relief Baseball Encounter

By the Associated Press

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 14.—Tampa was chosen today as the site of the all-star baseball game betwen two picked National and American League teams for the benefit of the Finnish Relief Fund, and Sunday, March 17, was selected as the date.

A group of the city's civic leaders, including Mayor R. E. L. Chancey, met with Columnist Joe Williams, chairman of the sports committee of the relief fund, and enthusiastically guaranteed that both attendance and receipts for the game would establish a new record for Southern baseball.

Tampa was chosen over Miami and St. Petersburg largely because of the greater seating capacity of its ball park, which is in the neighborhood of 9,000. This includes about 1,000 box seats, which will be sold for whatever the traffic will stand. Temporary seats will be strung out the length of the foul lines, bringing the seating capacity possibly to 20,000.

Civic leaders promised to hawk tickets for the game from door to door. One bank president said that he and all his vice presidents would turn salesmen. A minimum goal of $25,000 was set, but the expectation was that receipts would reach $50,000. Another $75,000 probably will be realized from the radio rights, Williams announced.

So far as possible, the game will be a duplicate of the all-star game played regularly at midseason. Commissioner K. M. Landis will attend, and former President Herbert Hoover, who is head of the Finnish Relief Fund, is counted upon to throw out the first ball.

De Chard, Four Others Stop Gloves Foes

Landis Decisions Johns, Latter Breaks Hand; Schneider, Petro Win

Five knockouts, topped by Jimmy DeChard's one-round technical verdict over the National Guard's Don Stetson, dotted the finale of the seventh annual Golden Gloves boxing tournament last night before a packed house of 2,000 amateur fight fans in Turner's Arena.

De Chard, defending his 1939 heavyweight crown, and a game and determined Stetson made it a wild, toe-to-toe slugging finale that had the crowd on its collective feet screaming for the inevitable knockout when Referee Eddie LaFond stepped in and stopped the business.

Working toward a professional fight career, Jimmy rushed out and chased Steson all around the ring with a right hand which threatened to end things at any time. Stetson was staggered three times by that punch, but came in close to hang on each time and shoot punishing body blows until one of De Chard's slashing rights split a nasty gash over his right eye.

Landis Wins Thriller

While the Charley Maimone-John Rogers 160-pound date in the senior division furnished probably the wildest action of the night, it was the lightweight novice battle between Ray Landis and Tommy Johns which provided the bitterest affair on the card of 14 three-rounders.

Landis, favored to take the outstanding novice honors, took a terrific beating from Johns' right hand in the first two rounds, but was too

Football, Ice Hockey Take Back Seat in Gerry Strang's Opinion

GERRY STRANG

Maybe you think ice hockey, lacrosse and football are about as tough on the constitution as anything you might find in the sports line, but take it from Gerry Strang, Catholic University's 165-pound ring star who's played them all, this business of boxing has them beat.

Gerry hails from Ottawa, Canada, and came to C. U. with a brilliant and versatile athletic record. Now a junior, the handsome Canadian has participated in hockey, baseball, basketball, football and lacrosse. Strang attended St. Patrick's Junior College before enrolling at C. U. and captained the hockey team there. He was a second baseman on the baseball team and guard on the basketball team.

"Boxing," Strang explains, "not only is a terrific drain on your stamina but has something the other sports don't have. For instance, in basketball, hockey and baseball your legs bear the brunt. They do in boxing, too, with one added problem. You're being hit all the time in the ring and that's bound to tap your resources and strength.

"In most of the other sports, if you have the ability, all you have to worry about are your legs and wind. But think of boxing where your body is being subjected to punishment while doling out the same amount of energy the other sports require."

Having played hockey most of his life, as most Canadians do, Strang thought boxing would be a cinch after that strenuous pastime. But Strang frankly admits now that although he's had little conditioning in that sport, he could play three full periods of hockey easily.

"Furthermore," Strang elaborates, "I'll bet I can play a full game of basketball and football without too much preliminary training. But for boxing . . . I have to condition myself for weeks."

Strang was one of Dutch Bergman's brightest football prospects last fall before an appendectomy benched him for the season.

"How about football?" he was

De Correvont Says He Almost Moved To Southern Calif.

By the Associated Press

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 14.—Bill de Correvont, the much publicized halfback who not long ago denied reports that he had demanded a new Northwestern football coach, disclosed today that he recently had considered leaving the university to enter Southern California.

The Northwestern sophomore and former Austin (Chicago) prep star said that he had sent a telegram to a Los Angeles friend, Bill Guthrie, in mid-January asking if he would be accepted by Southern California at the start of the second semester.

"Sure I sent the wire. I wanted to get away from here then," De Correvont declared. "But everything is all right now. I'm satisfied and happy about staying."

A target in every game he played last season because of his prep reputation, De Correvont said he had been dissatisfied with his own play and wasn't "too happy" about Northwestern winning only three of eight games.

Challedon Slowed in Training By Weather, May Miss Widener

Trainer Schaefer States 'Slim' Chance Of Horse Being Ready

LOU SCHAEFER

By the Associated Press

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 14.—The coldest Southern winter in years may keep Challedon, the 1939 turf champion, from making his 1940 debut in the $50,000 Widener challenge cup race at Hialeah Park March 2.

Severe and prolonged cold weather has so slowed down Challedon's training here that Lou Schaefer, who handles W. L. Brann's big bay, saw only a "slim" chance today that his charge would be ready for the Widner. Chally had been counted on to cop the rich stake in his first start as a 4-year-old.

Until the weather relented, workouts were curtailed, sometimes for days on a stretch, and a horse simply couldn't be taken out on a cold, ice-caked or snow-covered track, Schaefer explained.

With the advent of more agreeable temperatures, more in keeping with what is said about Dixie, training is back to normal although considerably behind schedule. Challedon, looking sleek and well fed, does 3 miles daily but is not yet allowed to get beyond a moderate canter.

Except for the loss of time, Schaefer reported good training progress and said he was generally pleased with the way Challedon was working. However, he said neither he nor Brann wanted to take a chance of overworking their great horse this spring and that he felt Challedon could use a long rest after his hard campaign last year.

"We would like to make the Widener," Schaefer said, "but there are a lot of other good races ahead." He intimated that he expected to have Challedon ready for the Dixie at Pimlico and Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park in May.

Along with 19 other horses of the Brann string, Challedon was brought here for winter training soon after his conquest of Kayak II, in the Pimlico special last fall.

This Morning

Without Shirley Povich

(During Shirley Povich's vacation his column is being written by other members of the sports staff.)

By Jack Munhall.

To modern-day Georgetown football fans who have shrugged off the accomplishments of Hoya football teams of yore in the smug belief that those of 1938 and 1939 were the best, today's announcement of the school's all-time eleven should come as a decided surprise.

MUNHALL

Of the 32 players selected in an international poll of G. U. alumni only two "modern" gridders come in for honors and they are Joe Mellendeck, brilliant halfback of this June's graduating class, and Augie Lio, junior guard. Mellendeck was given a second team berth and Lio honorable mention.

Otherwise the Kerchers, Reicheys, McFaddens et al, have taken a back seat to the Connaughtons, Flavins, Costellos and other bright figures in the dim past of Hilltop football. "Babies" of the first team are a pair of linemen who last drew on a Hoya uniform in 1930, Jim Mooney, the great punting tackle, and Sam Cordovano, an adonis-like guard, who later made his name in the professional wrestling field.

Not the least interesting angle to this all-time squad is the presence on the first or second team of all three of Georgetown's current coaching staff. Head Mentor Jack Hagerty is remembered by alumni as one of the school's greatest halfbacks while assistants Mush Dubofsky and George Murtagh both crash the second team as guards. From now on when Messrs Hagerty, Dubofsky and Murtagh revert back to the days of their pristine glory in illustrating some finer point to their charges, they will no doubt be accorded more than polite attention.

In testimony to the coaching genius of Lou Little, who, between 1924 and 1929 elevated Georgetown's football name to an unprecedented high niche, is the fact that of the eleven first-team players, seven owe at least part of their success to his guidance. Frank McGraph and Paul Florence, ends, the aforementioned Mooney, tackle; Harry Connaughton, guard; Claude Grigsby, center; Hagerty, quarterback, and Cordovano, guard, are the Little-regime appointees.

Although these all-star selections made by some 800 alumni are only fresh off the presses already protests hiss the air. One of the first to express disapproval with the personnel of the squad was Dr. William Cusack, '17, who was named to a second team end position. Cusack, although he has grounds to question his own rating since many old-time Georgetown fans swear by him as the school's absolute tops in end play, took issue on the exclusion of Dan Connor, his tackle teammate, from the first team.

"Dan," he said, "easily deserved a first-string place. And there are other linemen, too, that I believe are just as outstanding or even more so than those who were chosen. However, on a whole, I think the team was wisely chosen. The backfield of Costello, Hagerty, Gilroy and Flavin is 100 per cent okay."

Before it slips our mind, there was one staunch supporter of the 1939 crop of Georgetown gridmen. Dr. Anthony Sousa, '31, whose ballot from Panama City was the "long-distance" champion, was so overjoyed by the undefeated record of last year's eleven that he picked the whole team.

Is Eastern Amateur League Hockey strictly honest? If so, then why do they win so often at home and lose so often on the road?

Having heard these questions popped so many times, we decided to get the views of Redvers Mackenzie, coach of the Washington Eagles, who has been around the circuit for eight years. Here's Mackenzie's answer.

"I, too, have heard people say that our hockey isn't on the up and up," he smiled, "but I see no reason for any such belief.

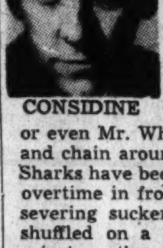
"True, the reason we're not farther up in the league standings today is because we haven't been able to beat River Vale and Atlantic City, the two lowest teams, on their own rinks, but there are many reasons for these failures.

"Officiating is the biggest. At River Vale and at Atlantic City the fans are much more rabid than here and the referees are loath to call fouls against the home teams. Different ice is another big factor. Here at Riverside we have the fastest ice in the league and our players have accustomed their skating to this speedy surface. But in Atlantic City, for instance, they have to change their gait. The ice there is much slower and if the Eagles try to set the pace they do at Riverside it is not long before their tongues are hanging out. It's something like a football team used to cold weather and low sea level playing in a warm mountain climate. They find it difficult to breathe and their stamina is greatly lessened.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Feb. 14.—History is being made these days in Brooklyn, and we're not referring to the fact that Larry MacPhail upset the dope today by going through a full day without hiring another outfielder. The history is something called "the State of New York vs. Jacob Baum et al." Baum and his et als. have been indicted as card sharks, and the unprecedented thing that the young men from the D. A.'s office are attempting is to give a sucker an even break.



CONSIDINE

Everybody knows that an even break is something a sucker has no constitutional right to expect. If the Government wins and puts Baum and his business associates in the sneezer, a lot of suckers we know are going to protest. They've been on the short end too long to get accustomed now to fair play.

So far as is known, no State in the U. S., or even Mr. Whiskers himself, has ever been able to tie a ball and chain around a card shark, at least for the original crime. Sharks have been harpooned, of course, but usually for parking overtime in front of the hotel wherein they are stripping persevering suckers with decks so crooked that they had to be shuffled on a spiral staircase. Baum and his alleged conspirators, three sportsmen named Epstein, Leavitt and Taub, are facing grand larceny raps. This is the test case the States have been trying to get for a long time, and if the boys are found guilty it will provide a precedent that will affect gambling from coast to coast.

The State's clincher, it hopes, is a quiet little former vaudevillian named Mickey McDougall, who will testify that the deck which the coppers seized from Baum and the boys can be dealt in such a way as to give the sucker less of a chance than was enjoyed by that travelminded snowball. In fact McDougall is expected to give a little riffling demonstration with exhibit A on the witness squat, and we'd advise Judge Brancato to watch his robe for McDougall might absentmindedly pull a cold deck, or a hot rabbit, out of it. McDougall was a famed card manipulator in his time and drifted naturally into his present profession of card detective. Seems he used to play many night club spots and, to relax after the show, he would go to the gaming rooms that were part of some of the clubs and silently kabitz the real manipulators.

About ten years ago he met a rich man who was complaining about his heavy losses at bridge and, as tactfully as he could, suggested that the rich bloke take him along on his next bridge date. The man had lost close to $100,000, all of it to friends. McDougall sat in and soon detected that one of the man's "friends" was a deft cheat. The rich man gave McDougall a nice fee, recommended him to his friends, and, with the death of vaudeville, McDougall had a new profession. Perhaps some of you remember his story in Cosmopolitan a year or so ago.

He has served the prosecution as an adviser in dozens of cases, but this is the first time he has ever been in open court. His fee is $250 a day, which puts him socially somewhere between a ballistic expert and a spade-bearded psychiatrist.

McDougall doesn't seem to worry over the fact that his life insurance premiums are high. This trial represents the second time he has come out in the open, as a card manipulator who outmanipulates the manipulators. The first time was in Los Angeles. He was the leading light in a move to clean up gambling in that city and supplied the investigators with many leads, valuable tips, and identified as spurious many decks of cards which police had no way of telling where phoney.

One day he was leaving a race track (which is a curious place for an annihilator of hokum to go) and he was pounced on by a gang of men and given a terrible beating. He recognized one of them, and the guy he recognized was a cop who heeled-and-toed in a district where a crooked card joint had been raided.

So you can see that he has as much to fear from graft-taking cops as from muggs. But he's quite content with his strange place in life. And perhaps he should be. For he's about the only law-abiding citizen in the country who can safely call a spade a spade, no matter if—to a sucker—it looks like a heart.

Georgetown, American U. Fives Clash Tonight at Tech Gym

Hoyas Slight Favorites In Game

Eagles Hold Advantage at Center; Pajak Georgetown Threat

Georgetown and American Universities, whose cage teams have provided District fans some of their most exhilarating action in the past several years, write the second chapter of their 1940 rivalry into the books tonight at Tech gym at 8:30.

The Hoyas will be favored, as they have been in most of the meetings of the two clubs. Their odds result from a 44-30 trimming of the Eagles early in the season and their slightly better record for the season. Yet American has been improving with each start and figures to have a good chance.

Both teams lost their last outing, the Eagles bowing to Western Maryland Tuesday by a 50-41 and the Hoyas suffering a 40-38 setback before West Virginia Monday. The respective losses may have spurred the teams to their best showings of the year tonight.

In one position, if none other, American holds a distinct advantage over the Hilltoppers. Carl Byham, towering pivot man, is touted by the Nebraska-avenue school as the best center in the District. The 18-year-old sophomore has borne out his notice by out-playing most of the centers to face him so far.

Capt. George Brown though not a particularly high-scoring player, is an all-around floorman and a perfect general for any basketball club. Hugo, Schulze, Webb, Etchison, Wehr, Morrison and Reese will also be featured.

Georgetown's big threat will once again be George Pajak, junior forward with 135 points to his credit in his last 14 games. Irving Rizzi, Buddy O'Grady, Jimmy Giebel and Al Matuza will probably complete the starting team.

A 7 o'clock preliminary tonight will bring together the Hoya frosh and General Accounting Office.

Cadets Take Lead At Half to Win; Gillem Paces Attack

By the Associated Press

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Army's basketball team defeated Colgate University today, 50 to 34.

After a slow half, when the two teams matched goals to a 23-23 tie, the Cadets went out in front at the start of the second half and were never headed.

Alvan Gillem paced the Army attack with 12 points.

Bob Taft also scored 12 points to lead the Colgate team.

D.C.A.A.U. Grants Sponsorship to Weight Lifters

The District's "forgotten men" of sports, the weight lifters, will make their debut under Amateur Athletic Union sponsorship February 25 in competition at the Jewish Community Center.

Last year's "unofficial" champions, who lifted without benefit of A. A. U. recognition, will be the favorites in the running for titles in the two-hand military press, two-hand snatch, two-hand clean and jerk.

Joe Accardi, heavyweight from Dulin A. C., is the favorite in his division, while last year's light-heavy champion, Dick Smith, will be hard pressed by Keith Kallion, the University of Maryland's George Pappas and Columbus University's Julien Osborne.

World's Champion John Terpak and Junior National Champion Ed Harrison will climax the match with an exhibition of muscle power. J. C. Haynes, B. P. Heiss, M. D. Needham, H. E. Waple and John D. Dulin, weight-lifting chairman, will officiate.

Landon Bows As G. U. Prep 'Freezes' Ball

Strategy Protects Lead As Little Hoyas Win, 28-26; Decker Stars

Georgetown Prep staged a brilliant "freezing act" yesterday on its home floor to trip the cage team of Landon School, 28 to 26.

It was the Little Hoyas' eighth victory in 12 outings this season, and their second straight 2-point triumph. They scored a stunning upset over Woodrow Wilson Monday.

More than half the winners' points for the game were registered by little Ben Decker, senior forward, who rang up eight field goals for 16 points. Sport Barrett was forced to take a second seat with half as many.

Landon got off to a good start in its search for its eighth victory, holding a 5-to-4 edge at the first half. Decker led the Prepmen back into the thick of things for a 12-to-9 margin at the half, and from there on it was comparatively easy. Going into the last session the score favored the Little Hoyas, 24 to 17.

While the hosts were content to freeze the ball in the final quarter, Landon outscored them, 7 to 4. The last basket in the losers' vain rally was registered by Paul Baker in the last half minute of play. Baker was the star of Landon, scoring 10 points and checking in a fine floor game.

Maryland Fives Cancel Games

Basketball games scheduled yesterday for the Maryland varsity and freshman basketball teams were canceled by the bad weather. The varsity was to have met Washington College at Chestertown, Md., and the frosh were to have played host to Roosevelt High School at College Park.

The varsity squad tried to make its way by automobile to Chestertown but turned back when two of the cars collided. None was hurt and the damage to the automobiles was negligible.

Without the canceled game the freshmen ended their season with a record of 8 victories and 6 losses. The varsity has three more regularly scheduled contests to play, with Catholic University at College Park Saturday, and V. M. I. and George Washington. In addition the Terrapins will compete in the Southern Conference championship tournament if eligible.

Itisket, Itasket Love Doesn't Mix With a Basket

By International News Service

Gunnison, Colo., Feb. 14.—Love may be grand, but it raises hob with the athletic teams at Gunnison's Western State College, Athletic Director Paul Wright declared today.

In his Valentine Day pronouncement, Wright, coach for the football and basketball teams, said: "Western State's basketball team isn't doing so well because eight of the players are in love. When I say in love, I mean the real thing. They eat breakfast with their girls—then lunch and dinner. After that they go to the library to study together."

The mountaineers haven't won a conference game this season.

Cox, Plummer And 2 Refs On Mat Card

Violent Rivalry Promises Full Share Of Wrestling Thrills

The perennial headliners, Joe Cox and Lou Plummer, will be back again tonight for the main affair at Turner's Arena, but this time there will be two referees in the ring—Casey Berger and Benny Bortnick.

A high, old time appears certain, for none of the four gentlemen thinks very highly of the other—in the ring, according to the wrestle propagandists. Cox hit a new high with vows yesterday by pledging to not only tear Plummer to pieces but also Berger and Bortnick if they get in the way.

The two officials will not complicate matters by getting into the ring at the same time, however. One will sit on the side ready to jump in if Cox starts seeking vengeance for being disqualified three straight weeks for roughness.

The business begins at 8:30 p. m., with Jim Casey versus Jim Parker, Jim Coffield versus Alan Eustace, Don McIntyre versus Tommy Rae and Tommy O'Toole versus Ralph Garibaldi.

Cocker Named Best Dog in Kennel Show

New York Judges Declare Spaniel 'King of Dogdom'

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—A new champion of American dogdom—CH. My Own Brucie, a magnificent black cocker spaniel, owned by Herman E. Mellenthin, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was named best in show tonight as the sixty-fourth Westminster Kennel Clubs three-day show closed at Madison Square Garden.

The popular dog was also chosen best American breed in show, as Judge Dr. Samuel Milbank took only about 20 minutes to nod to Brucie over the winners of the other five major classes.

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 14.—A smashing upset occurred in the final afternoon program of the sixty-fourth Westminster Kennel Club's Dog Show, biggest of the indoor canine events today.

One of last year's three finalists, Ch. Meadow Lark Draftsman, a fine beagle owned by Mrs. William duPont, jr., of Bellevue, Del., failed in his attempt to go best of group in the hound class as he did last year at Westminster and as he had done many times before.

Today he met his master—a tawny Saluki, a streamlined, wafer-thin aristocrat named Ch. Majan II and owned by Anna Marie Terno, of Irvington on Hudson, N. Y. That was the afternoon's biggest surprise but not the end of the excitement.

Chow Best

Philadelphia's Mrs. A. V. Hallowell got the thrill of a lifetime when her big, rugged chow took best of group in the nonsporting dogs; Mrs. Rosalind Layte, of Short Hills, N. J., felt the same way when the judge selected her Brussels griffon, Ch. Burlingame Hellzapoppin the best of the toy dogs, and the fourth blue went to Milwaukee when John Phelps Wagner's boxer, Ch. Utz von Dom won best of group among the working dogs.

A heavy snowfall kept the crowd down, but the two main rings at Madison Square Garden were encircled four deep with spectators.

One of last year's three finalists came through successfully tonight in the group judging for best of the terriers. He is Ch. Nornay Saddler, who won the group here last year, a smooth white fox with a black head and saddle. He is owned by James M. Austin, of Old Westbury, N. Y.

Welsh Terrier Third

Second was the Welsh terrier, Ch. Aman Superb of Halcyon, owned by Mrs. Edward Clark, of Goshen, N. Y., third was the Bedlington, Ch. Lady Rowena of Rowanoaks, owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Harbauer, of Houghton Lake, Mich., and fourth was the Airedale, Ch. Boynehouse Brutus of Harham, owned by Harold M. Florsheim, of Deerfield, Ill., a Chicago suburb.

The lovable black cocker spaniel, Ch. My Own Brucie, owned by Herman E. Mellenthin, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., repeated his triumph of last year's Westminster when he again won best of group among the sporting goods.

Second was the springer Ch. Showman of Shotton, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Quay, of Chagrin Falls, Ohio; third was Ch. Maro of Maridor, an organe ticked English setter owned by Mr. and Mrs. A. Biddle Duke, of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and fourth was the Irish setter, Rosecroft Premier, owned by C. F. Nielson, of Shrewsbury, N. J.

Gonzaga Beats G. W. High in 2d Overtime

O'Donnell's Basket Accounts for 32-30 Victory in Alexandria

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Va., Feb. 14.—George Washington High School basketers lost their third overtime decision of the season to a D. C. scholastic rival here this afternoon, as Gonzaga High won out in the second extra period of a riotous contest, 32-30. Lane O'Donnell's field goal gave the Purple its margin of victory, and accounted for the Presidents' seventh setback in 15 starts.

Except for the first quarter, when G. W. grabbed a 7-2 lead from Gonzaga's second term, the contest was bitterly-contested, and never more than a basket separated the teams. The score was deadlocked at the half, and was tied up three times in the last quarter at 24-24, 28-28 and 30-30.

Gonzaga went into the final period on the short end of a 22-17 score after the Presidents had spurted late in the third stanza, and they stayed behind until the last two minutes when Mulvihill's field goal gave them a 26-25 lead. Clife sank a snow-bird to put G. W. out in front again, but Mulvihill again came through with a two-pointer to put the Purple ahead, 28-27.

When Kreamer dropped in a foul to tie the score, and Clift netted a long shot to put the Presidents ahead 30-28 with less than a minute to play, G. W. seemed to have the game in hand, but Counselman saved the day for the Purple when he broke loose and scored from under the basket to deadlock the score as the game ended.

The home team was on the offensive through most of the first extra period, but missed numerous shots at the basket. After two minutes of the second overtime had elapsed, O'Donnell scored from a well-executed fast break with the winning goal.

Counselman was high scorer for the winners with 8 points, while Rice, O'Donnell and Mulvihill shared runner-up honors with 7 apiece. Ed Williams and Nick Latsios, of the losing team, tied for high honors, each caging 11 points.

Gonzaga's superiority from the foul line played a major role in its victory. Outscored from the floor, 13 to 12, the Purple dropped 8 out of 9 charity tosses.

Three Alumni Win Prizes in Hoya Contest

Two prominent Washington Government officials, and a New Jersey man are the winners of the contest to select Georgetown University's all-time football team, it was announced yesterday by Dr. James S. Ruby, jr., executive secretary of the National Alumni Association.

William J. Dempsey, '27, a general counsel for Federal Communications, won top prize; Charles Murray, '23, assistant United States District Attorney, second prize, and James E. Quinn, '26, of Jersey City, the third.

For proving his knowledge of Georgetown football better than that of some 800 other alumni, Dempsey will receive in the near future a Georgetown plaque, set upon a mahogany shield. Murray will be awarded a dozen ten-ounce glasses bearing the seal of the University, and Quinn a dozen five-ounce glasses similiarly marked.

Following are the teams selected as the best in Georgetown's 65 years of football.

FIRST TEAM
Ends—Paul Florence, '24, and Frank McGraph, '28.
Tackles—Jim Mooney, '30, and Rudy Comstock, '23.

Brown Demands Body Hearing

Irked no end because of his 60-day suspension by the District Boxing Commission for "persistent foul tactics," Natie Brown yesterday demanded a hearing before the commissioners and threatened to move his comeback campaign attempts to other fields.

Appraised of Natie's request by Secretary Heinie Miller, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chairman of the commission, said that body would be willing to give him a hearing at any time. A date is expected to be set later.

Ahearn Quits Boxing Shows Until Spring

Finnish Relief Program Canceled; Promoter to Plan for Outdoor Cards; Needs Vacation, Claims D. C. Promoter

Professional boxing will get its first extended vacation in Washington since the sport was legalized back in the year of the bank holiday, it was disclosed last night as Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn announced he is going to get out of the business until spring.

The portly promoter-matchmaker who has attempted to keep the wheezfight business alive "on his own," explained his intention to "throw in the towel" by saying that he needs a vacation.

"I haven't stopped going week after week in Washington for six years, and I think I need a vacation," he said.

His decision came as a surprise on the heels of an announcement that he planned to promote three ten-round fights February 26 for the Finnish Relief Fund.

This show will be canceled, and there will be no more pro fights in the Capital under his promotion until May 15, Ahearn said.

Concentrates on Big Shows

"I have several really big shows I've been working on for some time, and I want to concentrate on these and let the remainder of the indoor season go," he added.

His next venture will be a May 15 heavyweight show in Griffith Stadium with "big names" topping the program, Ahearn insisted.

"Everbody's been kicking about the poor attendance at indoor shows this season but us—we go no kicks coming," Goldie insisted. "The Washington fight public has been very kind to us, and I'm going to give them some big shows in the stadium this summer."

Ahearn promoted the first professional fight in Washington some six years ago after "bootleg boxing" was killed in the spring of 1933 with legalization of prize fighting in the District by Congress.

Partners Prospered

For several seasons the partnership of Ahearn as matchmaker and Joe Turner, as promoter, prospered, but at the beginning of the 1938-39 indoor season, the fans began to stay away in large numbers.

Turner pulled out of the partnership after the world championship match between Joey Archibald, featherweight king, and Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, proved such a boomerang last September in Griffith Stadium. Archibald was awarded an unpopular decision.

Although Ahearn has been losing money on the majority of his indoor shows since the split, he insists that he is not abandoning the business because of this.

"Listen we got so many good years behind us that I'm not kicking one bit," Ahearn said. "I got plenty of connections, Al Weill has promised to let me have Arturo Godoy in here and this summer we're gonna go places again. I just need a vacation."

Maryland Matmen Win 3d Match

Maryland University's wrestlers won their third straight match of the season last night, defeating Haverford College, 20½ to 9½. Paul McNeil, Maryland's star, kept up his winning streak, taking a decision from Shidadeh. Maryland's next match is with Rutgers on February 23. Dan Henson refereed the bouts.

121 POUNDS—Hurley (Md.) decisioned Bowman.
128 POUNDS—Meade (Md.) decisioned Rind.
136 POUNDS—Bolster (H.) defeated Ayres on fall, 9 minutes, bar and arm lock.
145 POUNDS—Evert (H.) and Rockstroh drew, 13 minutes.
155 POUNDS—Coursin (H.) decisioned Hodson.
165 POUNDS—McNeil (Md.) decisioned Shidadeh.
175 POUNDS—Watson (Md.) defeated Meader on fall, 6 minutes 37 seconds, body press.
HEAVYWEIGHT—Krouse (Md.) defeated Riddle on fall, 1 minute 20 seconds, half nelson and body lock.

Merrick B. C. Loses After 23 Victories

Capital Clippers has taken top position in the Southeast Boys Club 120-pound cage league with a 28-25 triumph over Merrick, winner of its last 23 games. Kirk's tally in the closing minute put the clincher on the upset, the biggest in the league to date.

Vols Cancel Boxing Match With Columbus

'De-Emphasis' in S.E.C. Leads to Resignation Of Tennessee Fighters

College boxing activities in Washington this week-end were narrowed down to two fronts yesterday when the University of Tennessee canceled its Saturday night date in Turner's arena with Columbus University.

In a telegram from Maj. Robert R. Neyland, director of athletics at Tennessee and coach of the South's 1940 Rose Bowl football team, Dean John R. Fitzpatrick, of Columbus, was informed that the majority of the Volunteer boxers had resigned from the team because of a "de-emphasis" program on boxing in the Southeastern Conference.

Tennessee also has canceled its February 24 meeting with the University of Kentucky scheduled for February 24, Columbus officials were informed. Neyland's telegram stated:

Many Resigned

"The Southeastern Conference in late December abolished boxing as a conference sport. As a result, many of our good men resigned from the boxing squad. This and other unforseen circumstances make it impossible for Tennessee to present a team for our scheduled meet in Washington, and we therefore request your indulgence for its cancellation which we regret exceedingly."

Columbus and Tennessee met here last year for the first time, the Explorers winning, 6-to-2.

Cancellation of the meet leaves the Saturday night field open to Catholic University versus Penn State Teachers at Brookland gymnasium and Maryland versus Western Maryland in Ritchie Coliseum.

Last Meet of Season

The Cardinals will be fighting their last meet of the season, while the Terrapins will be in their final contest before the Southern Conference tournament February 23-24 in Columbia, S. C.

Columbus, however, has one match on its schedule—a February 24 date, with Louisiana Tech in Turner's arena. Columbus, undefeated last year, was tied, 4-4, by Tech in its closing meet.

Omission, $5.80 Favorite, Defeats Hialeah Juvenile Field

Son of Jock Registers by Two Lengths

String Music Second And Oh Oh Third; Sassy Lady Takes Grade C Handicap

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 14.—Victor Emanuel's Omission, a dark brown son of Jock-Neglect, raced to a flashy victory in the tenth Seminole Stakes here today as juvenile members of the male division had their first chance in a stakes event. With Don Meade aboard, the $5.80-for-$2 favorite in the field of five, easily outran his rivals to register by two lengths. Aided somewhat by a wind at his back, Omission streamlined home in 0:33 1-5, coming within one-fifth of a second of the track record shared by Sally Shall, Recorder and Exarch.

John Hay Whitney, who arrived here the day before, saw his String Music finish second by a length and a half. W. E. Boeing's Oh, Oh, second choice to the winner, nosed out E. A. Carney's Even Roll, while L. B. Mayer's Canfield brought up the rear.

Omission earned a purse of $2,580. He may have been rather fortunate in the fact that several promising youngsters here are being saved for the dinner stakes to come later, but his victory was clean cut and impressive. The race was truly run, to all appearances.

Omission to Front

Meade hustled Omission into a daylight lead soon after a good start. The colt ran straight and true, leaving no doubt as to his superiority. String Music raced evenly and held Oh, Oh, safe, while Even Roll maintained 10-lengths advantage over Canfield.

The first of the three graded handicaps at 6½ furlongs brought out the "C" horses in the fourth contest. W. J. McCune's Sassy Lady, showing fine courage under Ralph Eccard's strong handling, headed Como No after a long stretch drive. Doubt Not was third, three lengths behind. The winner, a $7.30-for-$2 favorite, finished in 1:17 1-5.

Sassy Lady was restrained in second place while Doubt Not showed the way for five furlongs. Then Eccard urged his mount into a narrow lead. Como No loomed alongside the eventual winner to fight it out from the last turn home.

Many Strings Wins

The grade "A" handicap resulted in another driving finish, with Many Stings, from the Lemar stock farm, straining to a neck triumph over Mrs. Payne Whitney's Armor Bearer. Inscoelda, coupled with Unerring and Favorite, was beaten five lengths for the place. Dolly Val was fourth and Unerring completed the small field.

Many Stings reported in 1:17 2/5 a fifth of a second slower than the time made by Sassy Lady, winner of the grade "C" event. the victor returned $6.60.

Unerring and Armour Bearer raced like a team for five furlongs, after which the former dropped out of contention. Many Stings, which had been racing within range of the leaders, fought it out with Armor Bearer through the stretch.

High One, flying the silks of Sidney Prince, accounted for the grade "B" handicap under Eddie Arcaro. The gelding, paying $9.90, drove home by a length in 1:18 3/5. Royal Man was next in line, a length and a half better than Visigoth.

LUCKY HEELS	(McCombs)	106	6	8	9	9	9	9	98.75

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ARCHED, $7.90, $3.40, $2.80; SASSY MATE, $3.60, $2.60; MAEAIR, $5.00.

ARCHED, away forwardly, went in close pursuit of the pace under light restraint until straightened into the stretch, took command at his leisure and won in hand. SASSY MATE displayed good speed, drew away on the stretch turn, but was no match for the winner. MAEAIR, under intermittent punishment, gradually bettered his position and easily disposed of the others.

SECOND RACE—One and one-eighth miles (on the turf). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 2:35. Off 2:36. Winner, W. W. Stone's b. f. (4), by Upset—Virginia Flynn. Trained by S. Hazard. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:57.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—UPHOLD, $12.20, $7.80, $5.90; JACQUELLA, $30.80, $18.20; GUITAR, $5.00.

Daily Double, ARCHED and UPHOLD, Paid $69.50

THIRD RACE—Three furlongs (nursery course). Purse, $2,000 added. The Seminole Stakes. For 2-year-old colts and geldings. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:05½. Off 3:05½. Winner, V. Emanuel's dk. br. c. (2), by Jock—Neglect. Trained by J. P. Smith. Net value to winner, $2,580; second, $400; third, $200; fourth, $100. Time, 0:33⅕.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OMISSION, $5.80, $3.70, out; STRING MUSIC, $5.80, out; OH OH, out.
(No show mutuels sold.)

OMISSION, away alertly, took a short lead in the opening furlong under vigorous urging, was then steadied and racing straight, drew clear in the last furlong. STRING MUSIC, in close attendance of the winner in the opening quarter mile, faltered when the final issue came, yet held the others safe. OH OH was repeatedly bothered by EVEN ROLL bearing out, and finished gamely to outlast the latter.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,100. Grade C Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:33. Off 3:33. Winner, W. J. McCune's ch. f. (4), by Flying Heels—Lady Mitzi. Trained by J. P. Quinn, jr. Value to winner, $775; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:17⅕.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SASSY LADY, $7.30, $4.80, $3.30; COMO NO, $7.00, $5.20; DOUBT NOT, $4.50.

SASSY LADY, going forwardly under steadying restraint in the opening half mile, moved up determinedly on the outside of the leader, took command and outlasted COMO NO. The latter, a forward contender throughout, finished gamely, but could not overhaul the winner. DOUBT NOT set a swift pace while saving ground, but weakened and just lasted long enough to stave off BIG PEBBLE'S bid.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one half furlongs. Purse, $1,500. Grade A Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:02½. Winner, Lemar Stock Farm's red b. g. (5), by Canaan—Many Thorns. Trained by M. Shapoff. Value to winner, $1,100; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:17⅖.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MANY STINGS, $6.60, $4.60, out; ARMOR BEARER, $7.00, out; INSCOELDA (entry), out.
(No show mutuels sold.)

MANY STINGS, on the outside and steadied off the pace until well straightened into the stretch, finished with determination to outlast ARMOR BEARER. The latter forced a fast pace and raced UNERRING into defeat, but was not equal to the winner when challenged. INSCOELDA broke a trifle slow, moved into contention on the inside rounding the turn and was blocked by her stablemate entering the stretch. DOLLY VAL stumbled at the start. UNERRING quit.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,300. The St. Valentine's Day Handicap, Grade B. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 4:32½. Off 4:34. Winner, S. Prince's ch. g. (5), by High Cloud—Beloved One. Trained by W. W. Hill. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:18⅗.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH ONE, $9.90, $5.50, $3.20; ROYAL MAN, $4.40, $3.10; VISIGOTH, $3.90.

HIGH ONE, eased off the early pace, swung around the leaders entering the stretch, responded gamely to pressure and disposed of ROYAL MAN in the last sixteenth mile. ROYAL MAN, a keen contender all the way, assumed a short lead at the furlong pole, but was not equal to the winner when the real test came. VISIGOTH was in repeated difficulty and came with a belated rush through the stretch to wear CREPE down. The latter had no mishaps.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:02. Off 5:03. Winner, B. Stark's b. m. (5), by The Porter—Stigma. Trained by R. Troxler. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 2:06.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROOM SERVICE, $6.30, $3.20, out; OLD MAID, $3.20, out; DOUBLE R., out.
(No show mutuels sold.)

ROOM SERVICE, permitted to settle into her stride the first half mile, moved up steadily, wore the leaders down through the stretch and won going away. OLD MAID, prominent contender all the way, continued with good courage in the final drive, but could not keep stride with the winner. DOUBLE R., always well up, wore down the tiring ROYAL CROSS. The latter showed the most speed, but retired in the last furlong.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,100. Grade C. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:34. Off 5:34½. Winner, P. B. Codd's gr. c. (4), by Gino—Sun Tess. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $775; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:50⅘.

†King Farm entry.
Two-dollar mutuels paid—GINO REX, $11.00, $6.10, $4.20; BROWN KING, $5.30, $3.60; RODIN, $3.70.

GINO REX, going in his top form, followed the pace closely throughout, responded gamely when the final issue came and outlasted BROWN KING. The latter gradually bettered his position in the half mile, was caught in tight quarters in the final sixteenth mile, got clear and finished fast, and would have won in a few more strides. RODIN, rated off the early pace, made a game effort through the stretch, but hung under his impost. EQUILIBRIUM set a fast pace, but quit in the last furlong.

Thoroughbred Star, His Trainer and His Mascot

At The Post

Selections at Hialeah Park.

Dear Al,

There is nothing as pleasing to a wealthy horse owner than to feel that he struck a bargain. The men who put their money in the game will go high for a good looking juvenile if the occasion arises but they like to believe that they have superior judgment of horseflesh which accounts for them picking up a cheap yearling that turns out to be a stake horse. I don't know Victor Emanuel's feeling on the subject of his colt Omission, winner of yesterday's juvenile stake race at Hialeah. However, the records show that he put out only $550 for the fleet youngster at the Saratoga sales last summer. It must be gratifying to him to know that the colt has earnings of $3,305 so far. Among the youngsters Omission downed yesterday was Oh Oh which sold for $8,000 the same night. Even Roll and Canfield, behind the Emanuel colt yesterday brought $650 and $1,300 at the famous New York sales. Al J. Boyle, president and general manager of Charles Town Jockey Club, and Mrs. Boyle are visiting at Miami. They expect to stay for the remainder of the meeting. Charles Town opens this year on May 13. They are calling the star rider "Clinchum" Finchum now. He really has a spell on the horses. Sixty-three claims have been made at the meeting, the top price of $4,000 was paid Mrs. H. O. Simmons for the 5-year-old mare, Floragina. The Belair Stud has turned Olympus, the 5-year-old son of Gallant Fox, over to the Barrington Stable in a deal. Just who owns the Barrington Stable is not known. Olympus raced in England before the outbreak of the present war. The boys are leaning more and more toward The Chief in the $50,000 Widener. Trainer Earle Sande has this one on his toes and rarin' to go. Confucius say: Woof Woof, what a big bank roll you will have.

BILL.

First Race—Maedixie appears to have an edge on the juveniles gathered for the day's opener. I see no reason for mistakes and any price will be a good one. Mental Giant belongs with this kind and will be right in there knocking. Clock Time breaks from the outside post position and is dangerous.

Second Race—Affimation is tossed in this with 105 pounds and Jack Flinchum to do the riding. May be the right one in a rather open affair. Censor and Cerisse III earn their way in this brand of company and should be prominent.

Third Race—I'm going to string along with Flinchum again in this field. He has the mount on Life Guard, a fit-and-ready horse if there ever was one. Ugin has been threatening to take a similar race and is a threat. Sugarage for the minor award.

Fourth Race—Samuel D. seems the best suited of these sprinters. Gets in with a feather and will have the capable apprentice, Packer, in the saddle. Dixie-Man and The Loom to fill out the money bracket.

Fifth Race—Perhaps I'm barking up the wrong tree but I'm going to try to put over one at a fair price in this field. I mean Blind Impulse. I have reason to believe this one is better than generally rated. Ship Biscuit and Boss Hoss for the place and show.

Sixth Race—Redbreast is the class of this mile and an eighth affair. Durando will take the saddle assignment and the combination appears to be the best of the program. Klevex and Off Guard for the other money positions.

Seventh Race—Headin Home may come home sailing in this event. This one is ready for the question and I'm going to string along. Calumet Red and Ocean Tide will be ready to battle it out if I have placed too much confidence in the top horse.

Eighth Race—Motley appears to have this purse at his mercy. Another mount for Brother Flinchum and I'm going to get in line for the chips. El Puma and Grand Marie for the rest of it.

Best Bet—Redbreast.

140 Nominees For 1940 Derby

bureau let it be known that Col. E. R. Bradley, without a runner in the past two derbies, hadn't changed his mind about naming Bimelech as his number 1 contender. Col. Bradley, whose horses have won more derbies—four—than any other owner, some time ago predicted not only that Bimelech would win this year's romp but the Bradley stable would have the second and third horse as well.

There didn't seem to be any doubt also about Arnold Hangar's Roman Flag, winner of the Breeder's Futurity; Anthony Pelleteri's Andy K. and C. V. Whitney's Carrier Pigeon.

The boys oftimes in the know predicted that other nominators would include Mrs. E. V. Mars, William Woodward, Greentree stable, King Ranch, Calumet Farms, Woolford Farms and Thomas Piatt.

It will be several weeks before the nominees will be made public. Last year the public was informed of the list March 11. The corresponding Saturday in 1940 would be March 9, but there were indications the date might be later to allow the possible receipt of late entries from abroad.

Other spring stakes to be run at Churchill Downs—the meet opens April 27 and continues through May 18—for which entries also close tomorrow midnight are the Clark Handicap, Derby Trial, Debutante, Churchill Downs Handicap, Bashford Manor, Kentucky Oaks and Kentucky Handicap.

Horse Trainer Is Year Late for License

Chicago, Feb. 14 (AP).—Pointing out that it was now 1940, the Illinois appellate court dismissed today J. D. Mikel's suit to force the Illinois racing commission to give him a trainer's license for 1939.

Mikel, of Carlock, Ill., nationally known for the horses he bred and trained, was banned from Illinois tracks for life five years ago for allegedly racing a 3-year-old, My Bane, as a 2-year-old.

Last April he obtained a writ of mandamus in circuit court directing the racing commission to give him a trainer's license for 1939, but the commission met the demand with an appeal to the higher court.

Hugh Casey Tended Higher Contract

Atlanta, Feb. 14 (AP).—Hugh Casey, the Atlanta husky who won 15 games and lost 10 for Brooklyn last season, has a new contract calling for $7,500, an increase of $4,000, and he's going to watch his weight and skill in hopes the salary boost will be higher.

Casey said yesterday he had an agreement with the Dodgers to "cut my weight and get a fat contract." He weighs 192 pounds now.

Bimelech Eligible for Spring Stake

Unbeaten Colt Tops Entry List for Race At Keeneland Track

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 14.—Col. E. R. Bradley's unbeaten colt, Bimelech, is among the 3-year-olds expected to be kept eligible for the 1940 Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland Race Course before the deadline at midnight tomorrow for making final payments for this race.

The Blue Grass Stakes, a $5,000 added event, is one of the country's major early season tests for 3-year-olds, and each year brings together a high class field.

From an original field of 116 colts and fillies which were nominated for the 1940 race as yearlings in 1938, 50 were kept eligible with a second payment last September. Only one filly is included in the 50. She is Salaminia, a daughter of Man O'War and half-sister to the Belmont Futurity winner, Menow.

The other eligibles include virtually every top 2-year-old of the 1939 racing season, and the field for the renewal of this important race appears one of the best in its long history.

Four other Bradley-owned 3-year-olds are among the 50, and the famous Kentucky horseman is expected to keep more than his unbeaten colt eligible since he has several times run an entry of two or more horses in this fixture.

Fifteen of the 50 either won or placed in stake races as 2-year-olds. They include Andy K., Flight Command, Roman Flag, Roman Calory, Call to Colors, Boy Angler, Straight Lead, Marogay, Ramases, Barre Granite, and others.

Only Horses to Race

Boston, Feb. 14 (AP).—An assertion by Gov. Saltonstall that State racing commissioners should resign if they granted dog race dates to Suffolk Downs, drew from officials of the Boston track tonight the statement that only horses would race there and that they sought no additional dates.

Final Hour Rally Lifts Wheat Prices

Closings Are ⅛ to ⅝ Cents Higher After Drop of ⅝ Cents

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Price weakness that plagued the wheat market through most of today's session gave way to pronounced strength in the final hour and net fractional gains were substituted for early losses.

Most of the late buying which came through numerous commission houses was based, pit brokers said, on a combination of circumstances including fear of more crop damage in Europe, the unsatisfactory domestic winter wheat situation, reports of increased foreign grain freight activity and recent authoritative predictions of evenual greater European demand for North American foodstuffs. Traders commented on yesterday's statements of former President Hoover regarding war demands for food.

Wheat dipped as much as ⅜ cent in early dealings. After noon an abrupt rally carried prices 1¼ cents over the lows. Minor reactions later reduced the net gains at the close to ⅛-⅝ cent compared with yesterday's finish, with May 99-99⅛ and July 97-97⅛. Corn closed unchanged to ¼ up, May 56⅛-56, July 56¼; oats ⅛-¼ up; rye ¼-½ higher and lard 2-5 lower.

Bettman Heads Governors of New York Curb

New York, Feb. 14.—At the annual election of the New York Curb Exchange Clarence A. Bettman, of Connell & Bettman, was unanimously reelected as chairman of the board of governors for one year. In addition to Mr. Bettman, five Class "A" governors and five Class "B" governors and two trustees of the gratuity fund were elected on the regular ticket. There was no opposition to the ticket presented by the nominating committee.

The new governors and trustees with their tenure and firm affiliations follow:

Members of the Board of Governors (Class "A")
Three-Year Term

Phillip W. Brown, Smith, Barney & Co.; David S. Cooper, Asiel & Co.; Austin K. Neftel, David U. Page and Charles H. Phelps, jr.

(Class "B")
One-Year Term

John L. Goodbody, Goodbody & Co.

(Class "B")
Three-Year Term

Alpheus C. Beane, jr., Fenner & Beane; John l. Dakin, Strassburger & Co.; Albert G. Redpath, Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath; Jess W. Sweetser, Sweetser & Co.

(Class "B" governors, of which there are 12, are associate member partners of nonmember partners of regular or associate member firms doing business for the public.)

Trustees of the Gratuity Fund
Three-Year Term

Francis Dickson and J. K. Mills.

Cotton Futures Rebound 40 to 60 Cents a Bale

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—The cotton futures market took advantage of small selling pressure today to move forward 8 to 12 points. Better-than-due Liverpool prices and higher Bombay market supplied enough momentum at the start to keep the list on the plus side throughout the session.

Late in the day the gains were extended a little by a flurry of price fixing and scattered short covering in the March delivery. Ring traders were the chief source of contracts, although this was backed up by a little hedging, foreign selling and spot house liquidation.

The enthusiasm with which cotton brokers and textile men greeted the January cotton consumption figure of 1,756,771 bales, best since March, 1937, was soon tempered by the realization the daily rate of consumption was about 2,300 bales under December

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil futures slipped back after a steady opening today and closed 1 to 3 points lower.

Locals brought early in the wake of rumors of foreign buying of lard and reports the U. S. Government would ask for bids on lard for relief distribution. When outside markets failed to hold early advances, selling increased. A partial recovery was made toward the close.

Sales totaled 75 lots: March, 6.98 bid; May, 7.09 bid; July, 7.21; September, 7.28 bid.

Crude oil was slightly lower at 5⅝ cents a pound bid in the Southeast and valley. Texas quoted 5⅝-5¾ nominally.

Nat'l Savings Elects Colton Vice President

Directors of National Savings & Trust Co. yesterday promoted Barnum L. Colton, real estate officer, to the position of vice president, and W. Hiles Pardoe, formerly assistant real estate officer, to be real estate officer. Both of these promotions go into effect immediately.

Mr. Colton is a native of this city and is a graduate of Business High School and Georgetown University Law School. He has been with the National Savings & Trust Co. since June, 1933, having formerly been connected in an official capacity with the District National Bank.

Mr. Pardoe is also a native of this city and a graduate of the public schools. He has been with the company since May, 1914, having served in various capacities during that time.

Lincoln Service Dividends

At a meeting of the directors of the Lincoln Service Corporation held yesterday the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on the 6 per cent cumulative participating preferred stock and 1¾ per cent on the 7 per cent cumulative prior preferred stock were declared.

The directors also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share on the common stock. All dividends are payable March 12 to stockholders of record February 29.

Goodyear Votes 25 Cents Extra Common Dividend

Akron, Feb. 14 (AP).—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. directors today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock, payable March 15 to holders of record February 24. On January 8 the usual 25-cent payment was authorized.

Continental Steel 25 Cents

Chicago, Feb. 14 (AP).—Directors of Continental Steel Corporation today declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock and a regular quarterly of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock, both payable April 1 to stock of record March 15. Three dividends of 25 cents each and a dividend of $1.25 a share were paid on the common in 1939.

Molybdenum 25 Cents

New York, Feb. 14.—Directors of Molybdenum Corporation of America ordered a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable March 31 to holders of record March 15. A previous payment of $1 in notes was made in December, 1937.

Baldwin Loco. Turns Deficit Into Profit

Reports $542,026 Net In 1939 Against 1938 Loss of $1,032,641

Philadelphia, Feb. 14.—The Baldwin Locomotive Works and subsidiaries, including the Midvale Co., hac a consolidated net profit of $542,026 in 1939, compared with consolidated net loss of $1,032,641 in 1938, according to the annual report to stockholders made public today by Charles E. Brinley, president. After deducting preferred stock dividends in the amount of $115,505 the remainder of net profit for the year, $426,521, was equivalent to 41 cents per share on the outstanding common stock. Baldwin's share in the earnings of Midvale amounted to $1,047,942 last year and $765,353 in 1938.

During 1939, consolidated sales (including Midvale) amounted to $31,463,045, including sales of locomotive products totaling $11,363,200. In 1938, consolidated sales were $33,107,564, of which $16,767,781 represented locomotive products.

Unfilled orders, without intercompany eliminations, were $44,215,799 at the close of last year, of which $4,641,373 was for new locomotives. As of January 1, 1939, total unfilled orders were $13,401,321. Of this amount, $1,278,018 was for new locomotives.

Pointing out that general business throughout the country may be said to have been dull during the first six months of 1939 with a declining tendency until some time in May, Mr. Brinley states "thereafter the trend of activity began to improve and continued to do so throughout the balance of the year. Moreover, this improvement was especially marked in respect to the demand for heavy and durable goods in the construction of which your company is almost exclusively engaged."

Midvale Triples Record

The Midvale Co., partially owned subsidiary of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, in 1939 had net income of $1,703,770, equivalent to $8.52 per share on the capital stock, according to the annual report to stockholders made public today by Harry L. Frevert, president. Earnings for 1938 were $1,244,210, equivalent to $6.22 per share.

"The year 1939 was outstanding in the history of the Midvale Co. in that the dollar value of contracts and orders received was nearly three times the amount received in any preceding year," Mr. Frevert reports. Sales for the year exceeded those for the year 1938 by about 23 per cent. Unfilled orders at the end of the year, a substantial portion of which represents long-term contracts, amounted to $28,566,167, which may be compared with $7,6589,387 at the beginning of the year."

Libby-Owens Best Quarter

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 14.—Ending the year with the best fourth quarter in its history, Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co.'s net income for 1939 increased to $8,062,753, equivalent to $3.21 a share on 2,513,[illegible] shares of capital stock outstanding, after all charges, John D. Biggers, president, reported to stockholders in the annual report today. Last year's earnings represented an increase of 105 per cent from 1938 net income of $3,930,460, which was equivalent to $1,57 a share on 2,509,750 shares of capital stock. Dividend payments in 1939 amounted to $2.75 per share as compared with $1.25 per share in 1938.

$9,838,797 Goodyear Net

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and subsidiaries today reported a net profit in 1939 of $9,838,797 after all charges, including a deduction of $1,791,602 to reduce value of current foreign assets to reflect exchange rates at the end of the year. This equaled $3.20 a share on common stock after $5 preferred stock dividend requirements and compared with net profit of $6,012,423, or $1.34 a share, in 1938.

Fairbanks Morse 14-Year Top

Chicago, Feb. 14 (AP)—Fairbanks Morse & Co.'s net profit for 1939 will be not less than $4 a share, F. C. Dierks, secretary, said today in a proxy statement for the annual stockholders' meeting to be held March 27. This would represent the best showing for the company since 1926. For 1938 net profit was $558,539, equal after dividends paid on 6 per cent preferred stock, retired November 15, 1938, to 83 cents a share on 599,595 shares of common stock.

N. Y. Banks Favor Saturday Closings

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—The New York Clearing House Association, representing leading banks, today adopted a resolution favoring legislation which would permit banks in New York State to close on Saturdays from June 30 to Labor Day.

A bill carrying those provisions recently passed the State Senate. Other bills pending in the Legislature call for bank closing on Saturday the year around.

Flintkote to Build Plant in Mississippi

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—The Flintkote Co., manufacturer of building supplies, announced today it would construct a $2,000,000 factory at Meridian, Miss., to produce wood products from Southern pine. The factory, it was said, will start production early in 1941.

Exclusive of timber cutting crews and foresters, the company expects to employ about 300 men in the plant in the production of fiber decorative and structural insulation and wall board products.

West Va. Steel Plant To Be Enlarged

Pittsbough, Feb 14 (AP).—United Engineering & Foundry Co. reported today it had received orders from the Follansbee Steel Corporation for two reversing cold mills, one temper pass mill and a tin plate flying shear.

The equipment, for delivery in July, will be used in modernizing a plant at Follansbee, W. Va., one of two plants operated by the corporation which was formed in the reorganization of the Follansbee Bros. Co. The other plant is located at Toronto, Ontario.

Aircraft Shares Strong in Dull Trading; Metal Stocks Higher and Oils Firm; Finnish Bonds Up, Treasuries Irregular

New York, Feb. 14.—Midweek business news today was on the unfavorable side and there was a moderate setback in the stock market. Government bonds were irregular and there was a firmer tone in leading commodities. Taken all together, however, the day produced nothing in the way of price fluctuations which could cause any lifting of the eyebrows. There shouldn't be any investigations on the basis of what happened.

In the case of the stock market the composite average showed a negligible loss of 0.18 point. Aircrafts moved strongly against the trend and the metals also ended the session on the upside. Oils were firm, but other industrial groups and the rails were off moderately. It was another dull day for the big board, only 650,860 shares changing hands. In isolated instances there was special buying which lifted a few issues to new highs for the year, but their action was the exception rather than the rule.

New Highs

A 2-point jump in Clark Equipment placed this issue at a new high and there was special buying in the two general outdoor advertising issues, the class A jumping 4 points to a new top. Several of the inactive preferred issues showed strength, including Philips Jones, preferred, up 2⅞, and Neisner Bros. preferred, up 2. More noteworthy was the fact that Certain-teed preferred, traded in at the inactive post, broke into the list of the day's mot active issues with a run-up of nearly 4 points. This is the first time it can be recalled when one of the issues at this post has been included in the active list. The common also was strong, advancing more than a point, and there was good support for Celanese and Celotex. Loft was the day's most active stock, advancing 1⅝, and there was special support for Martin-Parry, up 1½. Curtiss-Wright was the most active of the aviations, but the best gain of the leading aero issues was scored by Glenn Martin, up 1⅜.

Business News

The midweek business news emphasized the current decline in general business, which has been apparent since the turn of the year. Electrical output for the week ended February 10 was off 1.1 per cent from the previous week, and the output was the smallest for any week since November 18. Information from leading railroads indicated that loadings will show more than a seasonal decline and, the review of the steel industry by Iron Age found no evidence of a halt in the donward trend of steel output. These figures were in line with expectations and thus far the decline has not gone far enough to make the Street bearish, for it was well realized that the fast pace of the final quarter of 1939 could not proceed without a break.

Outlook Cloudy

The general outlook in the stock market remains as indecisive as it has been for the last few weeks, with the composite average backing and filling within an extremely narrow range and furnishing no clew as to the direction it will take on the inevitable breakaway. To one leading stock exchange firm, the fact that the list has been able to hold to a sideways movement in the face of bearish business news, augurs well for the future. The period of dullness and small price changes, it points out, came in the face of poor business news. If, at the time, liquidation of importance were still overhanging the market there would have been apparent justification, in the stream of business news, to bring out more active selling. This did not occur, and, on the other hand the market has given definite signs that sentiment is inclined to embrace the longer range and more favorably potentialities of the business outlook.

N. Y. Traction Bonds Active

Listed bonds were quiet today, save for further speculative operations in undeposited traction bonds of the New York City companies. The tractions continued to mount up to a half-hour of the time for opening tenders in Comptroller McGoldrick's office on such securities tendered for cash. Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit issues were the favorites. Some activity also was noted in Third Avenue bonds, but Interborough obligations were quiet and soft. Trading in all bonds totaled $5,580,000.

United States Treasury issues were well maintained, as the redemption call on $353,000,000 3⅜ per cent bonds was expected. The specialists in Treasury issues believe an exchange offering will develop next month, along with an offering to holders of notes due in June. Best-grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds were well maintained.

Speculative rails were mostly off by small fractions, but some gains also appeared in these issues. Holding company and share privilege issues were neglected and not much changed. Amusement and communications issues provided nothing new, and other special groups likewise were dull.

Finland bonds jumped on small trades, owing to the progress of the proposed legislation for lending United States Government money to that country. Scandinavians were soft, while Belgian and Italian loans held to former levels. Belligerent country issues were inclined to drift downward. Latin-Americans attracted some speculative interest.

Power Production Drops During Week

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Electric power output dropped ot 2,522,514,000 kilowatt hours during the week ended February 10, from 2,541,358,000 in the preceding week, the Edison Electric Institute said today. Latest production represented a loss of .7 of 1 per cent from the week before, but was 11.7 per cent more than 2,268,387,00 kilowatt hours in the comparable 1939 week.

The decline carried the Associated Press index of power output to the lowest point thus far in the year at 125.9. This compared with 126.4 in the previous week and 115.5 a year ago. The index, which is adjusted for seasonal and long term trend, is based on 1929-30 as 100.

Russia Places Orders Here for New Equipment

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Russian buyers have placed two orders for industrial equipment with American companies, it was learned in well informed quarters today.

Clark Bros., subsidiary of Dresser Mfg. Co., Bradford, Pa., was understood to have booked an order for gasoline engine compressors to be used in the Russian oil fields. This order was believed to total about $2,000,000.

Another for a steam turbine and other equipment, was reported placed with Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.

These orders followed recent disclosures the Soviets were taking substantial quantities of American copper and other metals at Mexican and Pacific ports for shipment via the Pacific Ocean and trans-Siberian Railway.

Money Markets

Foreign Exchange

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—The pound sterling continued a week-long decline in the foreign exchange market today. Dropping one cent in relation to the dollar, the British money veered still further from the price of $4 around which it hovered a little more than a week ago. The French franc dipped .00½ of a cent but other chief European moneys displayed resistance. The belga gained .02 of a cent while the Swiss franc and Netherlands guilder were unchanged.

Closing rates follow, Great Britain in dollars, others in cents.

Larger Foreign Orders Bolster Steel Market

But Production Rate Is Three Points Lower Than Last Week

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 14.—Gradually expanding foreign demand for steel is one of the most encouraging factors in the present slow market, Iron Age said today in a weekly review. "Greater activity is expected in the spring," the survey said, "especially if the threatened total war should develop.

"Canadian shipyards, which have received orders for anti-submarine boats, have placed orders in the United States for several tons of plates. An increasing volume of steel orders from the dominion is expected because of expanding war activity there."

Meanwhile steel production has continued to slacken as new business fails to develop in sufficient volume to keep the mills at full blast. The Trade Magazine said:

"This week's rate of ingot output is estimated at 68½ per cent of capacity, down three points from a week ago. The current rate is supported to a moderate extent by the replenishment of inventories at some mills.

"A survey of consumers' stocks made by a large steel company showed that a fairly healthy condition prevailed in mid-January, with stocks not so inflated as they were in the last half of 1937.

"In addition to the inventory situation, the failure of new buying to revive in advance of the period of spring activity is generally ascribed to prolonged cold weather and heavy snows thorughout the country, the ability of mills to make prompt deliveries of many products, and to uncertainty regarding the price situation."

The Iron Age scrap composite price continued to decline, losing 8 cents to $17 a ton.

Russia Receives No Aviation Fuel From United States

New York, Feb. 14.—Reports that the Soviet Union has been obtaining large quantities of aviation gasoline from the United States are not borne out by official figures compiled by the Department of Commerce and published in World Petroleum today. According to this statement only two barrels of this type of fuel were shipped to Russia during the past 12 months and these presumably were for testing purposes.

The Soviet Union did make purchases of gasoline amounting to 883,530 barrels during September, October and November of last year. These shipments were made from the Pacific Coast to Vladivostok and consisted of ordinary motor fuel not including any aviation gasoline. These purchases have not been continued and were attributed at the time to the critical situation then existing between Russia and Japan.

Exaggerated reports of the extent to which Japan has drawn on the United States for aviation fuel also are contradicted by these statistics, which show that out of total exports amounting to 4,000,000 barrels during 1939 over 900,000 barrels went to the Netherlands West Indies, where it was used for blending purposes by refiners operating in those islands.

January Banner Month for Cotton

By the Associated Press

Government reports disclosed yesterday that January was one of the best marketing months for American cotton in recent years. A total of 1,756,771 bales moved into export markets and into domestic consumption channels. This volume compared with 1,459,415 bales in December and 887,646 in January of last year.

Exports amounted to 1,026,628 bales, or the largest monthly total since November, 1935, while domestic consumption totaled 730,143 bales, or the largest monthly total since March, 1937, when 776,942 were consumed.

Agriculture Department officials said that factors contributing to the increased foreign sales and domestic consumption included conditions arising out of the war, the Government's export subsidy program and a shortage of reserve stocks of American cotton in European countries at the beginning of the current season.

Retail Advertising Above 1939 Level

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Newspaper advertising linage placed by retailers in 80 major cities during the week ended February 3 showed a gain of 0.9 per cent over the corresponding week in 1939, Advertising Age, national advertising newspaper, reported today. The total for the year to date is also slightly ahead of the same period of 1939. For the week ended February 3 retailers placed a total of 16,154,655 lines in their local newspapers.

The cumulative total for the 5-week period ended February 3 was 79,366,125 lines, an increase of 0.2 per cent over the 79,207,999 lines reported for the same period of 1939.

THREE AND THREE-EIGHTS PER CENT TREASURY BONDS OF 1940-43
NOTICE OF CALL FOR REDEMPTION

To Holders of 3-3/8 Per Cent Treasury Bonds of 1940-43, and Others Concerned:

1. Public notice is hereby given that all outstanding 3-3/8 per cent Treasury Bonds of 1940-43, dated July 16, 1928, are hereby called for redemption on June 15, 1940, on which date interest on such bonds will cease.

2. Full information regarding the presentation and surrender of the bonds under this call will be given in a Treasury Department circular to be issued later.

3. Holders of these bonds may, in advance of the redemption date, be offered the privilege of exchanging all or any part of their called bonds for other interest-bearing obligations of the United States, in which event public notice will hereafter be given.

Omission, $5.80 Favorite, Defeats Hialeah Juvenile Field

Son of Jock Registers by Two Lengths

String Music Second And Oh Oh Third; Sassy Lady Takes Grade C Handicap

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 14.—Victor Emanuel's Omission, a dark brown son of Jock-Neglect, raced to a flashy victory in the tenth Seminole Stakes here today as juvenile members of the male division had their first chance in a stakes event. With Don Meade aboard, the $5.80-for-$2 favorite in the field of five, easily outran his rivals to register by two lengths. Aided somewhat by a wind at his back, Omission streamlined home in 0:33 1-5, coming within one-fifth of a second of the track record shared by Sally Shall, Recorder and Exarch.

John Hay Whitney, who arrived here the day before, saw his String Music finish second by a length and a half. W. E. Boeing's Oh, Oh, second choice to the winner, nosed out E. A. Carney's Even Roll, while L. B. Mayer's Canfield brought up the rear.

Omission earned a purse of $2,580. He may have been rather fortunate in the fact that several promising youngsters here are being saved for the dinner stakes to come later, but his victory was clean cut and impressive. The race was truly run, to all appearances.

Omission to Front

Meade hustled Omission into a daylight lead soon after a good start. The colt ran straight and true, leaving no doubt as to his superiority. String Music raced evenly and held Oh, Oh, safe, while Even Roll maintained 10-lengths advantage over Canfield.

The first of the three graded handicaps at 6½ furlongs brought out the "C" horses in the fourth contest. W. J. McCune's Sassy Lady, showing fine courage under Ralph Eccard's strong handling, headed Como No after a long stretch drive. Doubt Not was third, three lengths behind. The winner, a $7.30-for-$2 favorite, finished in 1:17 1-5.

Sassy Lady was restrained in second place while Doubt Not showed the way for five furlongs. Then Eccard urged his mount into a narrow lead. Como No loomed alongside the eventual winner to fight it out from the last turn home.

Many Strings Wins

The grade "A" handicap resulted in another driving finish, with Many Stings, from the Lemar stock farm, straining to a neck triumph over Mrs. Payne Whitney's Armor Bearer. Inscoelda, coupled with Unerring and Favorite, was beaten five lengths for the place. Dolly Val was fourth and Unerring completed the small field.

Many Stings reported in 1:17 2/5 a fifth of a second slower than the time made by Sassy Lady, winner of the grade "C" event. the victor returned $6.60.

Unerring and Armour Bearer raced like a team for five furlongs, after which the former dropped out of contention. Many Stings, which had been racing within range of the leaders, fought it out with Armor Bearer through the stretch.

High One, flying the silks of Sidney Prince, accounted for the grade "B" handicap under Eddie Arcaro. The gelding, paying $9.90, drove home by a length in 1:18 3/5. Royal Man was next in line, a length and a half better than Visigoth.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ARCHED, $7.90, $3.40, $2.80; SASSY MATE, $3.60, $2.80; MAEAIR, $5.00.

ARCHED, away forwardly, went in close pursuit of the pace under light restraint until straightened into the stretch, took command at his leisure and won in hand. SASSY MATE displayed good speed, drew away on the stretch turn, but was no match for the winner. MAEAIR, under intermittent punishment, gradually bettered his position and easily disposed of the others.

SECOND RACE—One and one-eighth miles (on the turf). Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 2:35. Two-dollar mutuels paid—UPHOLD, $12.20, $7.80, $5.90; JACQUELLA, $30.80, $18.20; GUITAR, $5.00.

UPHOLD, displaying good speed, drew out rounding the first turn and, rated in front, had something in reserve at the finish. JACQUELLA, prominent all the way, responded gamely to punishment, but never seriously threatened the winner. GUITAR saved ground turning into the stretch and easily shook off the others.

Daily Double, ARCHED and UPHOLD, Paid $69.50

THIRD RACE—Three furlongs (nursery course). Purse, $2,000 added. The Seminole Stakes. For 2-year-old colts and geldings. Start good from Puett gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:05½. Off 3:05½. Winner, V. Emanuel's dk. br. c. (2), by Jock—Neglect. Trained by J. P. Smith. Net value to winner, $2,580; second, $400; third, $200; fourth, $100. Time, 0:33⅕.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—OMISSION, $5.80, $3.70, out; STRING MUSIC, $5.80, out; OH OH, out.
(No show mutuels sold.)

OMISSION, away alertly, took a short lead in the opening furlong under vigorous urging was then steadied and racing straight, drew clear in the last furlong. STRING MUSIC, in close attendance of the winner in the opening quarter mile, faltered when the final issue came, yet held the others safe. OH OH was repeatedly bothered by EVEN ROLL bearing out, and finished gamely to outlast the latter.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,100. Grade C Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:33. Off 3:33. Winner, W. J. McCune's ch. f. (4), by Flying Heels—Lady Mitzi. Trained by J. F. Quinn, jr. Value to winner, $775; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:17⅕.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SASSY LADY, $7.30, $4.80, $3.30; COMO NO, $7.00, $5.20; DOUBT NOT, $4.50.

SASSY LADY, going forwardly under steadying restraint in the opening half mile, moved up determinedly on the outside of the leader, took command and outlasted COMO NO. The latter, a forward contender throughout, finished gamely, but could not overhaul the winner. DOUBT NOT set a swift pace while saving ground, but weakened and just lasted long enough to stave off BIG PEBBLE'S bid.

FIFTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,500. Grade A Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:02½. Winner, Lemar Stock Farm's red b. g. (5), by Canaan—Many Thorns. Trained by M. Shapoff. Value to winner, $1,100; second, $250; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:17⅖.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MANY STINGS, $6.60, $4.60, out; ARMOR BEARER, $7.00, out; INSCOELDA (entry), out.
(No show mutuels sold.)

MANY STINGS, on the outside and steadied off the pace until well straightened into the stretch, finished with determination to outlast ARMOR BEARER. The latter forced a fast pace and raced UNERRING into defeat, but was not equal to the winner when challenged. INSCOELDA broke a trifle slow, moved into contention on the inside rounding the turn and was blocked by her stablemate entering the stretch. DOLLY VAL stumbled at the start. UNERRING quit.

SIXTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,300. The St. Valentine's Day Handicap, Grade B. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 4:32½. Off 4:34. Winner, S. Prince's ch. g. (5), by High Cloud—Beloved One. Trained by W. W. Hill. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:18⅗.

GLEEMAN	(F. Smith)	103	3	3	1^h	4^1	6	6	42.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH ONE, $9.90, $5.50, $3.20; ROYAL MAN, $4.40, $3.10; VISIGOTH, $3.90.

HIGH ONE, eased off the early pace, swung around the leaders entering the stretch, responded gamely to pressure and disposed of ROYAL MAN in the last sixteenth mile. ROYAL MAN, a keen contender all the way, assumed a short lead at the furlong pole, but was not equal to the winner when the real test came. VISIGOTH was in repeated difficulty and came with a belated rush through the stretch to wear CREPE down. The latter had no mishaps.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:02. Off 5:03. Winner, B. Stark's b. m. (5), by The Porter—Stigma. Trained by R. Troxler. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 2:06.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROOM SERVICE, $6.30, $3.20, out; OLD MAID, $3.20, out; DOUBLE R., out.
(No show mutuels sold.)

ROOM SERVICE, permitted to settle into her stride the first half mile, moved up steadily, wore the leaders down through the stretch and won going away. OLD MAID, prominent contender all the way, continued with good courage in the final drive, but could not keep stride with the winner. DOUBLE R., always well up, wore down the tiring ROYAL CROSS. The latter showed the most speed, but retired in the last furlong.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,100. Grade C. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:34. Off 5:34½. Winner, P. B. Codd's gr. c. (4), by Gino—Sun Tess. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $775; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:50⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GINO REX, $11.00, $6.10, $4.20; BROWN KING, $5.30, $3.60; RODIN, $3.70.

GINO REX, going in his top form, followed the pace closely throughout, responded gamely when the final issue came and outlasted BROWN KING. The latter gradually bettered his position in the half mile, was caught in tight quarters in the final sixteenth mile, got clear and finished fast, and would have won in a few more strides. RODIN, rated off the early pace, made a game effort through the stretch, but hung under his impost. EQUILIBRIUM set a fast pace, but quit in the last furlong.

Selections at Hialeah Park.

Dear Al,

There is nothing as pleasing to a wealthy horse owner than to feel that he struck a bargain. The men who put their money in the game will go high for a good looking juvenile if the occasion arises but they like to believe that they have superior judgment of horseflesh which accounts for them picking up a cheap yearling that turns out to be a stake horse. I don't know Victor Emanuel's feeling on the subject of his colt Omission, winner of yesterday's juvenile stake race at Hialeah. However, the records show that he put out only $550 for the fleet youngster at the Saratoga sales last summer. It must be gratifying to him to know that the colt has earnings of $3,305 so far. Among the youngsters Omission downed yesterday was Oh Oh which sold for $8,000 the same night. Even Roll and Canfield, behind the Emanuel colt yesterday brought $650 and $1,300 at the famous New York sales. Al J. Boyle, president and general manager of Charles Town Jockey Club, and Mrs. Boyle are visiting at Miami. They expect to stay for the remainder of the meeting. Charles Town opens this year on May 13. They are calling the star rider "Clinchum" Finchum now. He really has a spell on the horses. Sixty-three claims have been made at the meeting, the top price of $4,000 was paid Mrs. H. O. Simmons for the 5-year-old mare, Floragina. The Belair Stud has turned Olympus, the 5-year-old son of Gallant Fox, over to the Barrington Stable in a deal. Just who owns the Barrington Stable is not known. Olympus raced in England before the outbreak of the present war. The boys are leaning more and more toward The Chief in the $50,000 Widener. Trainer Earle Sande has this one on his toes and rarin' to go. Confucius say: Woof Woof, what a big bank roll you will have.

BILL.

First Race—Maedixie appears to have an edge on the juveniles gathered for the day's opener. I see no reason for mistakes and any price will be a good one. Mental Giant belongs with this kind and will be right in there knocking. Clock Time breaks from the outside post position and is dangerous.

Second Race—Affimation is tossed in this with 105 pounds and Jack Flinchum to do the riding. May be the right one in a rather open affair. Censor and Cerisse III earn their way in this brand of company and should be prominent.

Third Race—I'm going to string along with Flinchum again in this field. He has the mount on Life Guard, a fit-and-ready horse if there ever was one. Ugin has been threatening to take a similar race and is a threat. Sugarage for the minor award.

Fourth Race—Samuel D. seems the best suited of these sprinters. Gets in with a feather and will have the capable apprentice, Packer, in the saddle. Dixie-Man and The Loom to fill out the money bracket.

Fifth Race—Perhaps I'm barking up the wrong tree but I'm going to try to put over one at a fair price in this field. I mean Blind Impulse. I have reason to believe this one is better than generally rated. Ship Biscuit and Boss Hoss for the place and show.

Sixth Race—Redbreast is the class of this mile and an eighth affair. Durando will take the saddle assignment and the combination appears to be the best of the program. Klevex and Off Guard for the other money, positions.

Seventh Race—Headin Home may come home sailing in this event. This one is ready for the question and I'm going to string along. Calumet Red and Ocean Tide will be ready to battle it out if I have placed too much confidence in the top horse.

Eighth Race —Motley appears to have this purse at his mercy. Another mount for Brother Flinchum and I'm going to get in line for the chips. El Puma and Grand Marie for the rest of it.

Best Bet—Redbreast.

bureau let it be known that Col. E. R. Bradley, without a runner in the past two derbies, hadn't changed his mind about naming Bimelech as his number 1 contender. Col. Bradley, whose horses have won more derbies—four—than any other owner, some time ago predicted not only that Bimelech would win this year's romp but the Bradley stable would have the second and third horse as well.

There didn't seem to be any doubt also about Arnold Hangar's Roman Flag, winner of the Breeder's Futurity; Anthony Pelleteri's Andy K. and C. V. Whitney's Carrier Pigeon.

The boys oftimes in the know predicted that other nominators would include Mrs. E. V. Mars, William Woodward, Greentree stable, King Ranch, Calumet Farms, Woolford Farms and Thomas Piatt.

It will be several weeks before the nominees will be made public. Last year the public was informed of the list March 11. The corresponding Saturday in 1940 would be March 9, but there were indications the date might be later to allow the possible receipt of late entries from abroad.

Other spring stakes to be run at Churchill Downs—the meet opens April 27 and continues through May 18—for which entries also close tomorrow midnight are the Clark Handicap, Derby Trial, Debutante, Churchill Downs Handicap, Bashford Manor, Kentucky Oaks and Kentucky Handicap.

Horse Trainer Is Year Late for License

Chicago, Feb. 14 (AP).—Pointing out that it was now 1940, the Illinois appellate court dismissed today J. D. Mikel's suit to force the Illinois racing commission to give him a trainer's license for 1939.

Mikel, of Carlock, Ill., nationally known for the horses he bred and trained, was banned from Illinois tracks for life five years ago for allegedly racing a 3-year-old, My Bane, as a 2-year-old.

Last April he obtained a writ of mandamus in circuit court directing the racing commission to give him a trainer's license for 1939, but the commission met the demand with an appeal to the higher court.

Hugh Casey Tended Higher Contract

Atlanta, Feb. 14 (AP).—Hugh Casey, the Atlanta husky who won 15 games and lost 10 for Brooklyn last season, has a new contract calling for $7,500, an increase of $4,000, and he's going to watch his weight and skill in hopes the salary boost will be higher.

Casey said yesterday he had an agreement with the Dodgers to "cut my weight and get a fat contract." He weighs 192 pounds now.

Unbeaten Colt Tops Entry List for Race At Keeneland Track

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 14.—Col. E. R. Bradley's unbeaten colt, Bimelech, is among the 3-year-olds expected to be kept eligible for the 1940 Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland Race Course before the deadline at midnight tomorrow for making final payments for this race.

The Blue Grass Stakes, a $5,000 added event, is one of the country's major early season tests for 3-year-olds, and each year brings together a high class field.

From an original field of 116 colts and fillies which were nominated for the 1940 race as yearlings in 1938, 50 were kept eligible with a second payment last September. Only one filly is included in the 50. She is Salaminia, a daughter of Man O'War and half-sister to the Belmont Futurity winner, Menow.

The other eligibles include virtually every top 2-year-old of the 1939 racing season, and the field for the renewal of this important race appears one of the best in its long history.

Four other Bradley-owned 3-year-olds are among the 50, and the famous Kentucky horseman is expected to keep more than his unbeaten colt eligible since he has several times run an entry of two or more horses in this fixture.

Fifteen of the 50 either won or placed in stake races as 2-year-olds. They include Andy K., Flight Command, Roman Flag, Roman Calory, Call to Colors, Boy Angler, Straight Lead, Marogay, Ramases, Barre Granite, and others.

Only Horses to Race

Boston, Feb. 14 (AP).—An assertion by Gov. Saltonstall that State racing commissioners should resign if they granted dog race dates to Suffolk Downs, drew from officials of the Boston track tonight the statement that only horses would race there and that they sought no additional dates.

Final Hour Rally Lifts Wheat Prices

Closings Are ⅛ to ⅝ Cents Higher After Drop of ⅝ Cents

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Price weakness that plagued the wheat market through most of today's session gave way to pronounced strength in the final hour and net fractional gains were substituted for early losses.

Most of the late buying which came through numerous commission houses was based, pit brokers said, on a combination of circumstances including fear of more crop damage in Europe, the unsatisfactory domestic winter wheat situation, reports of increased foreign grain freight activity and recent authoritative predictions of evenual greater European demand for North American foodstuffs. Traders commented on yesterday's statements of former President Hoover regarding war demands for food.

Wheat dipped as much as ⅝ cent in early dealings. After noon an abrupt rally carried prices 1¼ cents over the lows. Minor reactions later reduced the net gains at the close to ⅛-⅝ cent compared with yesterday's finish, with May 99-99⅛ and July 97-97⅛. Corn closed unchanged to ¼ up, May 56⅛-56, July 56¼; oats ⅛-¼ up; rye ¼-½ higher and lard 2-5 lower.

(Class "B" governors, of which there are 12, are associate member partners of nonmember partners of regular or associate member firms doing business for the public.)

Trustees of the Gratuity Fund
Three-Year Term

Francis Dickson and J. K. Mills.

Cotton Futures Rebound 40 to 60 Cents a Bale

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—The cotton futures market took advantage of small selling pressure today to move forward 8 to 12 points. Better-than-due Liverpool prices and higher Bombay market supplied enough momentum at the start to keep the list on the plus side throughout the session.

Late in the day the gains were extended a little by a flurry of price fixing and scattered short covering in the March delivery. Ring traders were the chief source of contracts, although this was backed up by a little hedging, foreign selling and spot house liquidation.

The enthusiasm with which cotton brokers and textile men greeted the January cotton consumption figure of 1,756,771 bales, best since March, 1937, was soon tempered by the realization the daily rate of consumption was about 2,300 bales under December.

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil futures slipped back after a steady opening today and closed 1 to 3 points lower.

Locals brought early in the wake of rumors of foreign buying of lard and reports the U. S. Government would ask for bids on lard for relief distribution. When outside markets failed to hold early advances, selling increased. A partial recovery was made toward the close.

Sales totaled 75 lots: March, 6.98 bid; May, 7.09 bid; July, 7.21; September, 7.28 bid.

Crude oil was slightly lower at 5⅝ cents a pound bid in the Southeast and valley. Texas quoted 5⅝-5⅞ nominally.

Nat'l Savings Elects Colton Vice President

Directors of National Savings & Trust Co. yesterday promoted Barnum L. Colton, real estate officer, to the position of vice president, and W. Hiles Pardoe, formerly assistant real estate officer, to be real estate officer. Both of these promotions go into effect immediately.

Mr. Colton is a native of this city and is a graduate of Business High School and Georgetown University Law School. He has been with the National Savings & Trust Co. since June, 1933, having formerly been connected in an official capacity with the District National Bank.

Mr. Pardoe is also a native of this city and a graduate of the public schools. He has been with the company since May, 1914, having served in various capacities during that time.

Lincoln Service Dividends

At a meeting of the directors of the Lincoln Service Corporation held yesterday the regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on the 6 per cent cumulative participating preferred stock and 1¾ per cent on the 7 per cent cumulative prior preferred stock were declared.

The directors also declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share on the common stock. All dividends are payable March 12 to stockholders of record February 29.

Goodyear Votes 25 Cents Extra Common Dividend

Akron, Feb. 14 (AP).—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. directors today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock, payable March 15 to holders of record February 24. On January 8 the usual 25-cent payment was authorized.

Continental Steel 25 Cents

Chicago, Feb. 14 (AP).—Directors of Continental Steel Corporation today declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock and a regular quarterly of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock, both payable April 1 to stock of record March 15. Three dividends of 25 cents each and a dividend of $1.25 a share were paid on the common in 1939.

Molybdenum 25 Cents

New York, Feb. 14.—Directors of Molybdenum Corporation of America ordered a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable March 31 to holders of record March 15. A previous payment of $1 in notes was made in December, 1937.

Baldwin Loco. Turns Deficit Into Profit

Reports $542,026 Net In 1939 Against 1938 Loss of $1,032,641

Philadelphia, Feb. 14.—The Baldwin Locomotive Works and subsidiaries, including the Midvale Co., had a consolidated net profit of $542,026 in 1939, compared with consolidated net loss of $1,032,641 in 1938, according to the annual report to stockholders made public today by Charles E. Brinley, president. After deducting preferred stock dividends in the amount of $115,505 the remainder of net profit for the year, $426,521, was equivalent to 41 cents per share on the outstanding common stock. Baldwin's share in the earnings of Midvale amounted to $1,047,942 last year and $765,353 in 1938.

During 1939, consolidated sales (including Midvale) amounted to $31,463,045, including sales of locomotive products totaling $11,363,200. In 1938, consolidated sales were $33,107,564, of which $16,767,781 represented locomotive products.

Unfilled orders, without intercompany eliminations, were $44,215,799 at the close of last year, of which $4,641,373 was for new locomotives. As of January 1, 1939, total unfilled orders were $13,401,321. Of this amount, $1,278,018 was for new locomotives.

Pointing out that general business throughout the country may be said to have been dull during the first six months of 1939 with a declining tendency until some time in May, Mr. Brinley states "thereafter the trend of activity began to improve and continued to do so throughout the balance of the year. Moreover, this improvement was especially marked in respect to the demand for heavy and durable goods in the construction of which your company is almost exclusively engaged."

Midvale Triples Record

The Midvale Co., partially owned subsidiary of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, in 1939 had net income of $1,703,770, equivalent to $8.52 per share on the capital stock, according to the annual report to stockholders made public today by Harry L. Frevert, president. Earnings for 1938 were $1,244,210, equivalent to $6.22 per share.

"The year 1939 was outstanding in the history of the Midvale Co. in that the dollar value of contracts and orders received was nearly three times the amount received in any preceding year," Mr. Frevert reports. Sales for the year exceeded those for the year 1938 by about 23 per cent. Unfilled orders at the end of the year, a substantial portion of which represents long-term contracts, amounted to $28,566,167, which may be compared with $7,6589,387 at the beginning of the year."

Libby-Owens Best Quarter

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 14.—Ending the year with the best fourth quarter in its history, Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co.'s net income for 1939 increased to $8,062,753, equivalent to $3.21 a share on 2,513,258 shares of capital stock outstanding, after all charges, John D. Biggers, president, reported to stockholders in the annual report today. Last year's earnings represented an increase of 105 per cent from 1938 net income of $3,930,460, which was equivalent to $1,57 a share on 2,509,750 shares of capital stock. Dividend payments in 1939 amounted to $2.75 per share as compared with $1.25 per share in 1938.

$9,838,797 Goodyear Net

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and subsidiaries today reported a net profit in 1939 of $9,838,797 after all charges, including a deduction of $1,791,602 to reduce value of current foreign assets to reflect exchange rates at the end of the year. This equaled $3.20 a share on common stock after $5 preferred stock dividend requirements and compared with net profit of $6,012,423, or $1.34 a share, in 1938.

Fairbanks Morse 14-Year Top

Chicago, Feb. 14 (AP)—Fairbanks Morse & Co.'s net profit for 1939 will be not less than $4 a share, F. C. Dierks, secretary, said today in a proxy statement for the annual stockholders' meeting to be held March 27. This would represent the best showing for the company since 1926. For 1938 net profit was $558,539, equal after dividends paid on 6 per cent preferred stock, retired November 15, 1938, to 83 cents a share on 599,595 shares of common stock.

N. Y. Banks Favor Saturday Closings

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—The New York Clearing House Association, representing leading banks, today adopted a resolution favoring legislation which would permit banks in New York State to close on Saturdays from June 30 to Labor Day.

A bill carrying those provisions recently passed the State Senate. Other bills pending in the Legislature call for bank closing on Saturday the year around.

Flintkote to Build Plant in Mississippi

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—The Flintkote Co., manufacturer of building supplies, announced today it would construct a $2,000,000 factory at Meridian, Miss., to produce wood products from Southern pine. The factory, it was said, will start production early in 1941.

Exclusive of timber cutting crews and foresters, the company expects to employ about 300 men in the plant in the production of fiber decorative and structural insulation and wall board products.

West Va. Steel Plant To Be Enlarged

Pittsbough, Feb 14 (AP).—United Engineering & Foundry Co. reported today it had received orders from the Follansbee Steel Corporation for two reversing cold mills, one temper pass mill and a tin plate flying shear.

The equipment, for delivery in July, will be used in modernizing a plant at Follansbee, W. Va., one of two plants operated by the corporation which was formed in the reorganization of the Follansbee Bros. Co. The other plant is located at Toronto, Ontario.

Aircraft Shares Strong in Dull Trading; Metal Stocks Higher and Oils Firm; Finnish Bonds Up, Treasuries Irregular

New York, Feb. 14.—Midweek business news today was on the unfavorable side and there was a moderate setback in the stock market. Government bonds were irregular and there was a firmer tone in leading commodities. Taken all together, however, the day produced nothing in the way of price fluctuations which could cause any lifting of the eyebrows. There shouldn't be any investigations on the basis of what happened.

In the case of the stock market the composite average showed a negligible loss of 0.18 point. Aircrafts moved strongly against the trend and the metals also ended the session on the upside. Oils were firm, but other industrial groups and the rails were off moderately. It was another dull day for the big board, only 650,860 shares changing hands. In isolated instances there was special buying which lifted a few issues to new highs for the year, but their action was the exception rather than the rule.

New Highs

A 2-point jump in Clark Equipment placed this issue at a new high and there was special buying in the two general outdoor advertising issues, the class A jumping 4 points to a new top. Several of the inactive preferred issues showed strength, including Philips Jones, preferred, up 2⅞, and Neisner Bros. preferred, up 2. More noteworthy was the fact that Certain-teed preferred, traded in at the inactive post, broke into the list of the day's mot active issues with a run-up of nearly 4 points. This is the first time it can be recalled when one of the issues at this post has been included in the active list. The common also was strong, advancing more than a point, and there was good support for Celanese and Celotex. Loft was the day's most active stock, advancing 1⅝, and there was special support for Martin-Parry, up 1½. Curtiss-Wright was the most active of the aviations, but the best gain of the leading aero issues was scored by Glenn Martin, up 1⅜.

Business News

The midweek business news emphasized the current decline in general business, which has been apparent since the turn of the year. Electrical output for the week ended February 10 was off 1.1 per cent from the previous week, and the output was the smallest for any week since November 18. Information from leading railroads indicated that loadings will show more than a seasonal decline and, the review of the steel industry by Iron Age found no evidence of a halt in the donward trend of steel output. These figures were in line with expectations and thus far the decline has not gone far enough to make the Street bearish, for it was well realized that the fast pace of the final quarter of 1939 could not proceed without a break.

Outlook Cloudy

The general outlook in the stock market remains as indecisive as it has been for the last few weeks, with the composite average backing and filling within an extremely narrow range and furnishing no clew as to the direction it will take on the inevitable breakaway. To one leading stock exchange firm, the fact that the list has been able to hold to a sideways movement in the face of bearish business news, augurs well for the future. The period of dullness and small price changes, it points out, came in the face of poor business news. If, at the time, liquidation of importance were still overhanging the market there would have been apparent justification, in the stream of business news, to bring out more active selling. This did not occur, and, on the other hand the market has given definite signs that sentiment is inclined to embrace the longer range and more favorably potentialities of the business outlook.

N. Y. Traction Bonds Active

Listed bonds were quiet today, save for further speculative operations in undeposited traction bonds of the New York City companies. The tractions continued to mount up to a half-hour of the time for opening tenders in Comptroller McGoldrick's office on such securities tendered for cash. Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit issues were the favorites. Some activity also was noted in Third Avenue bonds, but Interborough obligations were quiet and soft. Trading in all bonds totaled $5,580,000.

United States Treasury issues were well maintained, as the redemption call on $353,000,000 3⅜ per cent bonds was expected. The specialists in Treasury issues believe an exchange offering will develop next month, along with an offering to holders of notes due in June. Best-grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds were well maintained.

Speculative rails were mostly off by small fractions, but some gains also appeared in these issues. Holding company and share privilege issues were neglected and not much changed. Amusement and communications issues provided nothing new, and other special groups likewise were dull.

Finland bonds jumped on small trades, owing to the progress of the proposed legislation for lending United States Government money to that country. Scandinavians were soft, while Belgian and Italian loans held to former levels. Belligerent country issues were inclined to drift downward. Latin-Americans attracted some speculative interest.

Power Production Drops During Week

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Electric power output dropped ot 2,522,514,000 kilowatt hours during the week ended February 10, from 2,541,358,000 in the preceding week, the Edison Electric Institute said today. Latest production represented a loss of .7 of 1 per cent from the week before, but was 11.7 per cent more than 2,268,387.00 kilowatt hours in the comparable 1939 week.

The decline carried the Associated Press index of power output to the lowest point thus far in the year at 125.9. This compared with 126.4 in the previous week and 115.5 a year ago. The index, which is adjusted for seasonal and long term trend, is based on 1929-30 as 100.

Russia Places Orders Here for New Equipment

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—Russian buyers have placed two orders for industrial equipment with American companies, it was learned in well informed quarters today.

Clark Bros., subsidiary of Dresser Mfg. Co., Bradford, Pa., was understood to have booked an order for gasoline engine compressors to be used in the Russian oil fields. This order was believed to total about $2,000,000.

Another for a steam turbine and other equipment, was reported placed with Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co.

These orders followed recent disclosures the Soviets were taking substantial quantities of American copper and other metals at Mexican and Pacific ports for shipment via the Pacific Ocean and trans-Siberian Railway.

Foreign Exchange

New York, Feb. 14 (AP).—The pound sterling continued a week-long decline in the foreign exchange market today. Dropping one cent in relation to the dollar, the British money veered still further from the price of $4 around which it hovered a little more than a week ago. The French franc dipped .00½ of a cent but other chief European moneys displayed resistance. The belga gained .02 of a cent while the Swiss franc and Netherlands guilder were unchanged.

Larger Foreign Orders Bolster Steel Market

But Production Rate Is Three Points Lower Than Last Week

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 14.—Gradually expanding foreign demand for steel is one of the most encouraging factors in the present slow market, Iron Age said today in a weekly review. "Greater activity is expected in the spring," the survey said, "especially if the threatened total war should develop.

"Canadian shipyards, which have received orders for anti-submarine boats, have placed orders in the United States for several tons of plates. An increasing volume of steel orders from the dominion is expected because of expanding war activity there."

Meanwhile steel production has continued to slacken as new business fails to develop in sufficient volume to keep the mills at full blast. The Trade Magazine said:

"This week's rate of ingot output is estimated at 68½ per cent of capacity, down three points from a week ago. The current rate is supported to a moderate extent by the replenishment of inventories at some mills.

"A survey of consumers' stocks made by a large steel company showed that a fairly healthy condition prevailed in mid-January, with stocks not so inflated as they were in the last half of 1937.

"In addition to the inventory situation, the failure of new buying to revive in advance of the period of spring activity is generally ascribed to prolonged cold weather and heavy snows thorughout the country, the ability of mills to make prompt deliveries of many products, and to uncertainty regarding the price situation."

Russia Receives No Aviation Fuel From United States

New York, Feb. 14.—Reports that the Soviet Union has been obtaining large quantities of aviation gasoline from the United States are not borne out by official figures compiled by the Department of Commerce and published in World Petroleum today. According to this statement only two barrels of this type of fuel were shipped to Russia during the past 12 months and these presumably were for testing purposes.

The Soviet Union did make purchases of gasoline amounting to 883,530 barrels during September, October and November of last year. These shipments were made from the Pacific Coast to Vladivostok and consisted of ordinary motor fuel not including any aviation gasoline. These purchases have not been continued and were attributed at the time to the critical situation then existing between Russia and Japan.

Exaggerated reports of the extent to which Japan has drawn on the United States for aviation fuel also are contradicted by these statistics, which show that out of total exports amounting to 4,000,000 barrels during 1939 over 900,000 barrels went to the Netherlands West Indies, where it was used for blending purposes by refiners operating in those islands.

January Banner Month for Cotton

By the Associated Press

Government reports disclosed yesterday that January was one of the best marketing months for American cotton in recent years. A total of 1,756,771 bales moved into export markets and into domestic consumption channels. This volume compared with 1,459,415 bales in December and 887,646 in January of last year.

Exports amounted to 1,026,628 bales, or the largest monthly total since November, 1935, while domestic consumption totaled 730,143 bales, or the largest monthly total since March, 1937, when 776,942 were consumed.

Agriculture Department officials said that factors contributing to the increased foreign sales and domestic consumption included conditions arising out of the war, the Government's export subsidy program and a shortage of reserve stocks of American cotton in European countries at the beginning of the current season.

Retail Advertising Above 1939 Level

Chicago, Feb. 14.—Newspaper advertising linage placed by retailers in 80 major cities during the week ended February 3 showed a gain of 0.9 per cent over the corresponding week in 1939, Advertising Age, national advertising newspaper, reported today. The total for the year to date is also slightly ahead of the same period of 1939. For the week ended February 3 retailers placed a total of 16,154,655 lines in their local newspapers.

The cumulative total for the 5-week period ended February 3 was 79,366,125 lines, an increase of 0.2 per cent over the 79,207,999 lines reported for the same period of 1939.

THREE AND THREE-EIGHTS PER CENT
TREASURY BONDS OF 1940-43
NOTICE OF CALL FOR REDEMPTION
To Holders of 3-3/8 Per Cent Treasury Bonds of 1940-43, and Others Concerned:

1. Public notice is hereby given that all outstanding 3-3/8 per cent Treasury Bonds of 1940-43, dated July 16, 1928, are hereby called for redemption on June 15, 1940, on which date interest on such bonds will cease.

2. Full information regarding the presentation and surrender of the bonds under this call will be given in a Treasury Department circular to be issued later.

3. Holders of these bonds may, in advance of the redemption date, be offered the privilege of exchanging all or any part of their called bonds for other interest-bearing obligations of the United States, in which event public notice will hereafter be given.

Gold Imports Rise; $54,605,571 in Week

By the Associated Press

Gold imports increased to $54,605,571 in the week ended February 7, compared with $49,555,496 the previous week.

The Commerce Department said yesterday that principal shipments included $3,349,085 from Denmark, $1,696,092 from Italy, $6,546,190 from the Netherlands, $2,811,986 from Norway, $8,708,500 from Sweden, $7,906,656 from the United Kingdom, $5,623,598 from Canada, $4,049,101 from India and $10,755,946 from South Africa.

Deposits of gold under earmark in the Federal Reserve banks for the accounts of foreign central banks and Governments increased during the week by $2,385,427 to a total of about $1,127,927,000.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, Feb. 14 (AP) (United States Department of Agriculture)—A few sales were being closed on the Boston wool market today. The bulk of the sales in greasy lines was of low, cross-bred South American wools reported to be for a further demand from Canada. An occasional lot of domestic wool was moved. Graded French combing lengths, fine territory wools, were sold at prices in the range, 90 to 95 cents, scoured basis. Bids were reported to have been rejected on new Arizona wool offered at sealed bid auction Tuesday. Estimates of the scoured basis, landed-in-Boston, equivalent of these bids, were about 82 to 84 cents.

Foreign Markets

By the Associated Press

London, Feb. 14.—Domestic rail shares were bid up briskly in a narrow stock market today. Activity in the carriers contrasted with a sluggish trading tempo elsewhere. Kaffirs retreated following suspension of operations by two development companies. British government bonds moved slightly higher. Oils tended downward but rubbers moved up with an improvement in the commodity. Heavy industrial and shipping stocks held quietly firm.

Paris.—Bourse traders paid more attention to the Mannerheim Line battle today than stock trading and prices drifted narrowly. Most foreign issues slipped down a notch but domestic equities put up a show of resistance. Rentes ended 5 centimes higher to 60 lower.

Liverpool.—Cotton futures rallied after early losses to close 1 point higher to 2 lower. Steadier Bombay cables near the finish offset the influence of yesterday's decline in New York.

Weir Assails Political Rule Over Business

Gov't. Relationship With Private Enterprise Debated With Ickes

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 14.—Secretary Ickes declared tonight, in a debate with Ernest T. Weir, that "millions of people who no longer have faith in the profit system" would follow President Roosevelt "in the protection of that system, as well as of individual liberty and political democracy."

The Cabinet officer and the industrialist discussed, before the Economic Club of New York, the present relationship of Government to business.

The chairman of the National Steel Corporation argued that the Roosevelt Administration was attempting not regulation but "definitely Government control" of business.

"What," he asked, "does enterprise ask of Government? It does not ask Government to 'let it alone.' It does not deny the right and necessity of Government to police and referee business activity. It asks Government to stop trying to run business—it asks Government to stop its competition, its restrictions and its threats—it asks understanding of the economic necessities of business—it asks administration that has respect for commonplace legal safeguards.

"Enterprise says to the country that progress can come again only with these changes in government attitude."

Businessmen Sought Regulation

Businessmen themselves, Ickes asserted, orginally persuaded Congress to set up such regulatory bodies as the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Securities Commission.

"In other words," he went on, "one set of businessmen, in the name of preserving the system of private enterprise, is always invoking against other businessmen the power of the people, i. e., Government.

"When, therefore, a businessman is mad because Government is 'interfering' with business, what he's really sputtering about is another businessman—because Government, acting as a referee between the two of them, has decided that the second businessman is right in his idea of what promotes the American system of free private enterprise."

No Room for Both

Weir, saying the government was trying to "operate enterprises through a multitude of controls administered by political appointees," declared:

"Free enterprise and a government of men cannot exist in the same country at the same time."

Recently, he said at another point, "some branches of business reached 1929 levels and lots of people shouted 'hurrah.' Yet if we were really coming out of depression, activity would have gone away beyond previous high levels as it did following every other depression. Why hasn't it?

"In my opinion here are the principal reasons. There are two groups of people who must be spark plugs in any movement that can generate and sustain momentum. They are the enterprisers—the people who must make the decisions to expand existing and start new enterprises, and the investors—the people who venture their savings in expanded and new enterprises.

"Government control has made it impossible for these groups to function."

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Edwin McArthur conducts the National Symphony Orchestra, with Kirsten Flagstad as soloist, in Constitution Hall Wednesday night. Program: Overture to "Rosamunde" (Schubert), Leise, leise, fromme Weise" from "Der Freischuetz" (Weber), "Prelude a L'Apres-midi d'un Faune" and "Fetes" (Debussy), "La Valse" (Ravel), "Fra Monte Pincio," "En Svane" and "En Drom" (Grieg), Overture to "Der fliegende Hollaender" and "Charfreitagszauber" from "Parsifal" (Wagner), "Bruennhildes Schlussgesang" from "Die Goetterdaemmerung" (Wagner).

Auditors who filled Constitution Hall last evening for the appearance of Kirsten Flagstad as soloist with the National Symphony Orchestra will long cherish memories of the occasion, for singing of such suerty and splendor will not often come their way again. Many of those present still had in mind Madame Flagstad's recent recital in the same hall, but that remembrance had to pale before her accomplishment with the stimulant of an orchestra. Not even when she sang here with the Philadelphia Orchestra last season did she make so profound an impression of her vocal mastery and artistic sincerity.

The probable reason for that was two-fold. In the first place she had last night as conductor Edwin McArthur, whose association with her as accompanist gave him the special advantage of knowing precisely how to treat the orchestra in relation to her readings with every adjustment of phrasing and stress. Secondly, the National Symphony Orchestra was alert to the importance of the event and played with a responsiveness that left nothing to be desired. Their performance was another remarkable proof that this young organization has reached an artistic maturity of which Washington may be justly proud.

A stormy night of wind and snow inevitably delayed the assemblage of the audience, and a tardy start, together with the length of the program and the time consumed in recalls of the singer and conductor, prolonged the concert to an unusually late hour. Because of these circumstances, comment on the excellencies of the performance must be curtailed.

Mme. Flagstad disclosed in her selections both the dramatic power and the lyric tenderness of her magnificent voice. In Agathe's aria from "Der Freischuetz," the two aspects of vocal eloquence were admirably combined. Her incomparable readings of three songs by Grieg, "Fra Monte Pincio," "En Svane" and "En Drom," plus the ecstatic utterance of "Yeg elsker Dig" as an extra number, made one feel that one never wants to hear those songs again, lest the charm be destroyed. And in the finale from "Die Goetterdaemmerung" she reached a height of nobility that few artists ever have or ever will attain.

Edwin McArthur, whom we have long admired as an accompanist of discrimination and subtlety, increased our respect for his sound musicianship by proving himself a conductor with precisely the same qualities. His podium manner is authoritative and assured and his knowledge of the scores he directed was obviously thorough both as to structural form and instrumental detail. This knowledge was particularly evident in his handling of Ravel's "La Valse," that evocation of the spirit of the waltz through a haze which is full of pitfalls for an unwary conductor. It is one of the most exasperating compositions for both performers and listeners, because it mingles reality with illusion as in an uneasy dream.

Groff Rolls 151 and 404 At Queen Pin

Leads as Miller Team Wins Three; Cones Star Of Automotive Battles

Bill Groff, Miller Furniture bowler, registered a brilliant individual game of 151 and set of 404 last night at Queen Pin to pace his team to a three-game sweep over Lord Baltimore in the Temple Minor League. High team game of the night went to Boveglio Club, a 588, despite its odd-game loss to Frank's Tavern.

Sweeps were also registered by I. C. E. over Lloyds and Bennings Service Station over Standard Brands.

Attention of dubs who plan to compete in the Charlie Olive Super-Dub Sweepstakes on Saturday at Queen Pin were reminded that the event will be rolled in two sections, at 2 p. m. and 7 p. m. Fifty-two prospective winners of the $100 first prize are already on the line.

Ice Palace

Furman Cones, of Emerson-Orme Service, rolled record high game of 171 last night thte Ice Palace, but his team dropped two games to the Arcade Pontiac five in the Washington Automotive League. The Service men had a high team game of 647.

Ed Duryee, secretary of the league, rolling for Pohanka Service, tallied a high individual set of 383. Paul Brothers marked up high team set of 1,705 in beating Call Carl two games.

Arcadia

Red Circle made a clean sweep of its games against Arcade-Pontiac in the Ladies District League. Vivian Nolan and Julia Young, of Red Circle, had high individual game and set, with 129 and 326, respectively. In the same league but rolled at Lucky Strike, the Ice Palace girls defeated Lucky Strike in three games. Lucille Young of the winners rolled high game of 153, and high set of 357. Arcadia Team received three games on forfeit from Rosslyn.

In the men's Dynamite League, Dan Reichgut of the Sleuths, rolled high game of 146 and high set of 380. The Duds had a 565 high team set. Sleuths marked a team high set of 1,670.

LUCKY STRIKE

Edith Meredith and Gertrude Rasch rolled games of 126 in the Lucky Strike Ladies League. Lavonne Taylor had high set with 333. Social Security topped in team efforts with 557 and 1,518 while winning from FAA.

In the Eastern Star Ladies League, Alma Dorsey, Ann Wheeler and Ursula Davenport turned in games of 119. Minnie Brown had a 320 set for the Martha team which had high game of 504. Washington Centennial had a set of 1,405.

In the Commissioners and Miscellaneous Ladies League, Gladys Willis' 119 and Maude Cunningham's 312 were the best individual efforts. Personnel had a 467 game and a 1,381 set.

Labrot Yawl Triumphs in Nassau Race

By the Associated Press

Nassau British West Indies, Feb. 14.—Stormy Weather, 54-foot yawl owned by William Labrot, of Annapolis, Md., today was declared the winner of the seventh annual 184-mile Miami-to-Nassau sailing race for the fourth consecutive year. Her corrected time was 18 hours, 24 minutes and 57 seconds.

Stormy Weather's total elapsed time was 22 hours, 6 minutes and 28 seconds in the race which saw a new course record of 19 hours, 36 minutes and 30 seconds for both elapsed and corrected time hung up by the 72-foot ketch Tioga, which was first across the finish line.

Tioga, owned by Harry E. Noyes, of Marblehead, Mass., was scratch boat and therefore was forced to give time handicaps to all 12 other entries in the race.

The previous course record was 20 hours, 19 minutes and 40 seconds for both elapsed and corrected time established by the scratch boat Vamarie in 1936.

asked. "Don't you take a lot of punishment there?"

"Yes," Strang admitted, "but in football you get a lot of rest periods. By the time a play is over and the players pick themselves off the ground and line up again, you can recover your energy. Somebody told me there's only 12 actual minutes of play in a football game. Twelve out of 60, think of that! In boxing, there's no chance to rest during a round unless you take a seat on the canvas and that one-minute respite never seems enough."

Strang at present is busily engaged in training for Saturday night's bouts with Penn State Teachers. It was feared that Gerry would be unable to participate because of an injured right side but X-rays have shown no rib fracture and Strang was told he would be able to participate in the Cardinals' final boxing match.

Dodgers Announce 17 Players Signed

Clearwater, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP).—The Brokolyn Dodgers, who all winter have withheld any information on the singning of contracts by their players, announced tonight the names of 17 players who have signed.

The batterymen will open the club's spring training here tomorrow, and, with two exceptions, every player on hand will already have signed. Pitchers Luke Hamlin, a 20-game winner last year, and Tex Carleton have been invited to camp to discuss terms. Three other pitchers, unsigned and uninvited, were Al Hollingsworth, Vito Tamulis and Tot Pressnell.

The signed players include Pitchers Mungo, Wyatt, Casey, Crouch, Doyle, Ferrell, Fitzsimmons, Kimball, Macon, Nahen and Rachunok; Catchers Phelps, Mancuso, Hartje and Franks; Infielder Rees and Outfielder Gilbert.

Cornell Wins, 57-41, Over Yale Five

4th Intercollegiate Triumph in 6 Games Taken With Spurt

By the Associated Press

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Cornell passed the half-hundred mark in scoring for the second consecutive game in defeating Yale, 57 to 41, in its Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League meeting tonight.

The victory was Cornell's fourth in six league games, as Jim Bennett and Howie Dunbar turned in 17 and 15 points.

Cornell broke a 6-to-6 deadlock after five minutes of play, to run a string of 13 points and coast in despite occasional Yale rallies. Cornell led, 28 to 18, at the half, and midway in the second period held a 23-point margin after Dunbar had put together a string of four goals.

Meyerholz Paces Tiger Victory

Princeton, N. J., Feb. 14 (AP).—Princeton's basketball team, sparked by the 20-point scoring of Johnny Meyerholz, retained undisputed possession of second place in the Eastern Intercollegiate League tonight by trouncing Harvard, 44 to 24.

The Tigers drew steadily away at the start and at the half enjoyed a 20-to-8 advantage. Although the Crimson switched from a zone to a man-to-man defense in the second half it was unable to hold back the Tiger.

Capt. Charley Lutz topped the Harvard scorers with 8 points.

Faris Leads FBI As Marvin's Bows

Bob Faris, formerly an All-American basketer at George Washington University, hit his hottest stride of the season last night as Federal Bureau of Investigation rolled over Marvin's Credit in a Heurich Amateur Basketball League game at Heurich Gymnasium, 66 to 48.

Faris contributed 23 points to the G-Men by virture of 11 field goals and a foul and was aided materially by Dean, who scored 20 points, and Noone, who was credited with 17.

In another attarction the Jewish Community Center's Big Five defeated the Petworth A. C., 52 to 43. Sid Karp scored 16 points for the J. C. C. and Joe Howard 14 for for Petworth.

De Chard, Four Others Stop Gloves Foes

2,000 Watch Finals; Landis Wins as Rival Breaks Hand at Arena

clever for the St. Mary's Boys Club entry and took a close decision.

Johns broke his right hand late in the fight and was on the verge of a knockout from the punishing left hooks of Phil Furr's protege.

Charles Schneider, of Colmar Manor, took the trophy as the outstanding novice fighter after he set the precedent for first round knockouts in the 126-pound fight with John Ellis, of Olympic A. C.

Pete's A. C. Wins

The novice team trophy, given by Tru-Blu, went to the Pete's Athletic Club, which had 25 points to St. Mary's 20. The senior team trophy was taken by the National Guard, with 30 points. Metropolitan Police Boys Club No. 5 was runner-up for senior team honors. The outstanding senior fighter will not be chosen until the outcome of the postponed 126-pound championship bout between Gilbert Mayo, of Alexandria, and Willie Tapp, unattached. They will fight on an amateur card early next month.

But about that Maimone-Rogers incident—it was a battle which saw Charley, of No. 5, come from behind an early lead and launch a third round attack which had Rogers, of the National Guard, stumbling around the ring with his mouth hanging open and a perfect target for a knockout.

Maimone, sensing victory, became overanxious, and almost got knocked out himself by Rogers' straight rights to the head. The Guard middleweight rallied, and both boys were in the center of the ring swinging wildly when the bell rang. When the judges awarded the decision to Rogers, the verdict was greeted by a round of jeers and boos.

Petro Beats Davis

Danny Petro, of No. 5, upset Defending Champion Grover Davis in the 112-pound class with a 17-second knockout in the first round. The punch, a left hook to the stomach, looked low.

Jack Wadsworth, 118-pounder, Leo Marcopulos, lightweight, and Jim Brady, 175-pounder, were other winners of a trip to the New York gloves tourney in March.

John Mancini, 145-pounder, was forced to forfeit to Billy Kekeris, defending welter champion, because of an injury.

Schneider's performance, which gave him the Dr. J. Albert Bonnette Trophy, saw less than half a dozen real blows thrown. Abandoning his usual around-the-mulberry-bush tactics, Charley stepped in, flung a lightning left hook to the jaw of John Ellis, of Olympic A. C., and followed it with a right that sent John to the canvas for the count in just 1 minute of the first round.

Ellis hardly moved a muscle as Referee Charley Reynolds counted him out.

Allen Shreves Wins

Allen Shreve, of Pete's A. C., provided an upset first round knockout in the 147-pound class over Jim Frady, also of Pete's, in 1 minute 10 seconds. A right exploded on Frady's jaw, and at the same time a photographer's flash bulb went off with a bang at the ring side.

Wilbur Mason, of Merrick Boys Club, came through with the third knockout in 1 minute 9 seconds of the second round by pumping a terrific right to the head of Harry Watson, of Olympic, in the 175-pound battle.

The 160-pound bout was a wild affair which saw Ray Mason, of Merrick, come off the floor twice in the third round, to decision Carl Ercoli, unattached.

SENIOR DIVISION

122 pounds—Danny Petie (No. 5) knocked over Grover Davis (Pete's), 17 seconds, first round.

118 pounds—Jack Wadsworth (Pete's) outpointed Francis Smith (St. Mary's), 3 rounds.

135 pounds—Leo Marcopulos (No. 5) outpointed Carl Steele (St. Mary's), 3 rounds.

160 pounds—John Rogers (National Guard) outpointed Charley Maimone (No. 5), 3 rounds.

175 pounds—Jim Brady (unattached) outpointed Bill Nolan (National Guard), 3 rounds.

Heavyweight—Jimmy De Chard (unattached) defeated Don Stetson (National Guard), 2 minutes 35 seconds, first round.

NOVICE DIVISION

112 pounds—Al Horton (St. Mary's) outpointed Cliff Rhodes (St. Mary's), 3 rounds.

118 pounds—Paul Coakley (Pete's) outpointed Joe Morgan (No. 5), 3 rounds.

126 pounds—Charles Schneider (Colmar Manor) knocked out John Ellis (Olympic), 1 minute, first round.

135 pounds—Ray Landis (unattached) outpointed Tommy Johns (St. Mary's), 3 rounds.

147 pounds—Allen Shreve (Pete's A. C.) knocked out Jim Frady (Pete's), 1:10, first round.

160 pounds—Ray Mason (Merrick) outpointed Carl Ercoli (unattached), 3 rounds.

175 pounds—Wilbur Mason (Merrick) knocked out Harris Watson (Olympic), 1 minute 59 seconds, second round.

Heavyweight—Al Spiegel (unattached) won on forfeit from Larry Paris (St. Mary's).

Library, Standards FivesClashTonight

Basketball of the "do or die" type will be the order tonight in the Government "Y" League. Library of Congress and Bureau of Standards clash head-on in a battle that will decide the first half championship. The game, scheduled for 9:50 p. m., tops a three-ply program at the men's Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. National Archives battles Farm Credit at 7:30 and REA tackles Interstate Commerce Commission at 8:40. In five clashes of these foes last year Standards won three. This season Library of Congress has won 10 in the league and lost none. Standards has dropped only one game in ten. Admisison for the triple-header is 10 cents.

Eagles Acquire Two Tackles

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (AP).—Bert Bell, president of the Philadelphia Eagles pro football club, announced today he had acquired tackles Russell Thompson and Milton Trost from the Chicago Bears in exchange for negotiation rights to Joe Mihal, former Purdue tackle and George Macfee of Duke University.

Thompson, former Nebraska University star, has had four years experience in the National Pro League. Trost, former Marquette gridder, was a Bear reserve.

Mihal was drawn by the Eagles in December of 1938, Macfee in the '39 draft.

Weather Conditions

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Washington, Wednesday, Feb. 14, 7:30 p.m.

Forecast for the District of Columbia—Fair with slowly rising temperature in afternoon Thursday; Friday increasing cloudiness and warmer; rain Friday night; diminishing northwest winds Thursday, becoming southeast and south Friday.

For Maryland—Generally fair Thursday, slowly rising temperature Thursday afternoon; Friday increasing cloudiness and warmer; rain Friday night.

For Virginia—Fair with slowly rising temperature Thursday; Friday increasing cloudiness and warmer, followed by rain Friday night and in southwest portion Friday afternoon.

Conditions

The disturbance that was over the southern Appalachian region Tuesday night moved east-northeastward, with rapidly increasing intensity, and it is centered tonight as a storm of great intensity about 100 miles south of Rhode Island coast, with lowest pressure about 965 millibars (28.50 inches). This storm has been attended by moderate to heavy precipitation, mostly in the form of snow, from the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region, and eastern Tennessee, eastward to the Atlantic Coast, by rain in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States, and by shifting gales over a wide area. Another disturbance, which is advancing eastward over the Plateau and Rocky Mountain regions with lowest pressure 999.7 millibars (29.52 inches), at Pocatello, Idaho, has caused rain in the Pacific States and snow in the Plateau region. An area of high pressure that extends from Lake Superior southward to the Gulf of Mexico is moving rapidly eastward, Port Eads, La., 1,021.3 millibars (30.16 inches), and Marquette, Mich., 1,020.3 millibars (30.13 inches). Pressure is relatively high over California, Eureka, 1,013.5 millibars (29.93 inches). The temperature has fallen in the Atlantic and East Gulf States, the Appalachian region, and the upper Ohio Valley, while the weather has become warmer from the Rocky Mountain region eastward to the Mississippi River.

BE A SUCCESS LIKE
The Leaders Of Swing

Most of our popular band leaders had humble beginnings. Most of them, at one time of their lives, had nothing more than a musical instrument and the will to learn. Today they are the idols of thousands and thousands who love the new technique of music, and their incomes are definitely in the higher brackets. You can learn to be a star, too! To make it easier, we're offering an outstanding value in trombone—an instrument you always find in modern bands.

How an "ACC" Auto Loan Cut My Payments $24 a Month

I WAS PAYING $55 a month on a lot of bills I owed around town. There was $26 on the car, $7.50 on the refrigerator, $11 on our furniture, $5 on a doctor bill, and $5.50 on several small bills."

ALL IN ALL I OWED $270 and those payments were getting me down. I didn't have enough left to LIVE on."

THEN I HEARD about "ACC" Auto Loans. Talked it over with their manager and got a $270 loan on my car and paid off all those bills. On their 12-month plan my payments are now only $30.75 a month, and that leaves me $24 to spend on other things. Matter of fact, I'm putting part of that $24 in the bank!"

YOU, TOO, CAN get an "ACC" Auto Loan, on any make car and any model from 1932 to 1940, whether paid for or not. We will cut your payments and advance you the extra cash you need, in 15 minutes.

Opening lead: 3 ♡.

Robert K. Clifton, Philadelphia writer, cites today's hand, played in the recent Philadelphia pair championship, as a typical example of luck.

Seven pairs bid and made six notrump, some of them receiving a helpful opening lead which gave declarer his twelfth trick. But at least one pair was not so favored, and this declarer had to rely on his "guesser" to match the score. He was Johnny Gessler, who with his partner, Irv Hall, reached six notrump, using the Blackwood convention, as shown in today's box.

With a heart instead of a spade lead, which some of the declarers received, Mr. Gessler was faced with a possible ruinous choice. With the club suit breaking, he had eleven tricks—five clubs, two hearts, two diamonds and two spades.

To win the twelfth trick he must take the jack of diamonds or spades. Without resorting to tossing a coin or saying "eeny, meeny, miney, mo," Mr. Gessler led a low diamond toward the jack, North jumped up with the king, and three diamond tricks and six notrump were assured. Had he led a low spade to the jack instead, he would have lost to North's queen, and his score of 12 match points would have dropped to ½ a match point for that deal.

After many months of hard work and not a few disappointments WJSV is about to unveil its beautiful new transmitter at Wheaton, Md. This transmitter, without any doubt the most modern in the world today, is currently undergoing a series of stringent tests and passing them all nicely, so it won't be long before Columbia's station for the Nation's Capital begins telling its story on 50,000 instead of 10,000 watts.

We dragged our unworthy carcass out of Washington's bright light belt and traveled out to the peace and calm of Wheaton to inspect the new gadget the other day. Accompanied by Andy Massey, one of the WJSV engineers who has been working on the job, we wandered through the almost complete plant and inspected the three 340 feet towers.

Massey speaks of the new transmitter with a glow in his eyes. One minute he is unwinding a breathtaking set of statistics telling of the transmitter's tremendous power, the next minute he's ecstatic about the beautiful picture the blue of the sky makes against the blue of the building.

We spent a couple of hours wandering around with Massey while he explained the unbelievably intricate setup. When we left we knew just about as much as when we arrived. Back at the studios we told a couple of engineers about our trip with Andy. "You ought to be an expert on the transmitter, now," one of them explained: "Massey is personally acquainted with every nut and bolt in the building."

So it all sums up to the obvious, and discouraging fact that nothing but our natural stupidity prevents us from telling you all about the new transmitter, except that it's awfully pretty. And that seems little enough to say about a tiny house and three steel towers that cost more than $250,000.

May we try again later?

THE DRAGON'S TEETH

By ELLERY QUEEN

Conclusion

THEY TOOK a cab to the Queen apartment. Mr. Queen was not out. Mr. Queen was at the office of Ellery Queen, Inc.

"Office?" exclaimed Beau. "He must be sick!"

But they found Mr. Queen ensconced in his swivel-chair the veritable mirror of health and spirits.

"Ah, the newlyweds," said Mr. Queen, hastening to bestow a partner's kiss on the bride. "How's married life?"

"Never mind that," snapped Beau. "Where you been keeping yourself? You ducked out after the wedding—"

"I've been sitting here in this lonely tomb," murmured Mr. Queen, "reflecting. On life's little ironies. By the way, why aren't you two in a nice, expensive place for your honeymoon?"

"Because we can't afford it," said Kerrie. "And Atlantic City was so lovely."

"Yeah, I'm still getting that taffy out of my teeth," said Beau. "I'd have been around sooner, El, only you know how it is. Just married, have to scout around for a flat—"

"Atlantic City—flat!" Mr. Queen looked horrified. "What are you thinking of?"

"The old budget," said Beau. He wore the faintly hang-dog look of the hopelessly married man. "I can't afford to kid around, Ellery. As soon as we get settled, I'll come back to the office and start peddling the old personality again. You know. Confidential Matters Handled Confidentially? Give Us a Try—We Never Fail. The old grind—"

"Not a bit of it," said Mr. Queen firmly. "I'm scouting around myself. For a new partner."

"WHAT?" yelled Beau. "Hey, what is this? What's the matter with me?"

"My good man, you're through—fini."

Beau looked stricken. "But Ellery . . . for the love of Mike . . . I've got to make a living, don't I?"

"Not at all."

"And besides," said Beau angrily, "what d'ye mean I'm through! Whose dough is it, anyway, in this dump You're one hell of a guy. I never thought you'd—"

Kerrie patted her husband's swelling biceps gently. "Can't you see the gentleman has something up his sleeve? Be quiet and listen, Beau!"

"You see," said Mr. Queen dreamily, while Beau gawped at him, "I sat here after your wedding in a perfect dither of thought, and the main thought ran: What can I give those two idiots for a wedding present?"

Kerrie laughed. Beau blushed.

"Shall it be," continued Mr. Queen, "a First Folio, or the 1856 British Guiana number 13, or one of the crown jewels of some illustrious potentate, or a ten-room house completely furnished, with interior murals by Rivera? No, I said to myself, too common, too mundane. My gift to Mr. and Mrs. Rummell must be of the essence, gargantuan, creme de la creme, epical. And, do you know, I've hit it?"

Kerrie clapped her hands. "What is it? I know I'll just love it!"

"I believe," murmured Mr. Queen, "you will."

"Come on, give, you exasperating stand-in for Madam Chairman!" roared Beau.

"I have decided," said Mr. Queen, beaming, "to present you with a gift worthy of myself. I have decided to give you," said Mr. Queen, and then he darted off into one of those conversational bypaths he was so fond of treading, "—I haven't ascertained the exact figure, of course; you'll have to be patient with me, chickadees, but I should say it will come to—oh, let's be conservative. Let's say almost fourteen million dollars."

"Fourteen—" Kerrie blinked.

Beau said hoarsely: "Come again?"

"Don't hold me to that figure," said Mr. Queen hastily. "It may come to no more than a paltry thirteen millions."

"Oh, he's joking," groaned Kerrie.

"Listen, you ape-" bellowed Beau. "What is this?"

MR. QUEEN chuckled. "My talents have been chiefly engaged, since your nuptials, in trying to dope out a way to break old man Cole's will. You two would be married, and that meant, under the will, that Kerrie lost a very helpful five thousand a week for life . . . now that Margo Cole's death has been established."

"You mean you've—broken it?" asked Beau in an awed voice.

"We're getting there, getting there. It revolves about a delicate point, but the best legal authority seems to be on our side. You're a lawyer, or you were. What is the law's purpose in requiring that a testator's signature to a will be attested by witnesses?"

"Why," said Beau, scratching his newly-shaven cheeks, "to make sure there's no fraud, I suppose. To have proof that the signature of the testator was his legal signature, and was set down on a specific will at a specific date. Same idea as lies behind the notarization of contracts—proof of signature."

"Well, the legal technicality on which the will is probably going to be broken involves the attestation of the witnesses.

"According to Capt. Angus' story he and the radio operator signed in attestation of the testator's signature before the testator's signature was put down on the will. As a matter of fact, the radio operator, in not signing in Cole's presence, not only attested a signature which still did not exist, but he can't even say truthfully that what he signed was a will; or if it was a will, the specific will the testator intended. And then even Capt. Angus left the cabin before De Carlos wrote down Cole's name, so he can't testify honestly when that signature was written.

"There are other points, but I fancy those will suffice. The Surrogate will probably be only too happy to grasp at the legal technicality and declare the will invalid—it's an awfully screwy and unfair testament. At any rate, with the will broken. Cole will be considered, as you know, to have died intestate. And since Margo Cole died leaving no issue, and Miss Kerrie Shawn, now Mrs. Beau Rummell, is the only living heiress of the testator—well, you can imagine!

"What do you think of my modest little wedding present, Mrs. Rummell?"

But Mrs. Rummell only began to sniffle, and Beau stood there alternately scowling and grinning like a lunatic.

IN THE COURSE of time Mr. Queen received letters from Paris, Monte Carlo, Cairo, Bali — very obese letters they were, written on the lush stationery of disgustingly wealthy people, and designed to bring a beam to the sourest countenance. There were even letters from a certain Miss Violet Day who, it appeared, had been re-engaged by Mrs. Rummell to act as secretary companion and spent most of her time beating the pants off Mr. Rummell at ping-pong, a fact which kept Mr. Rummell in a state of constant rage.

But Mr. Queen only smiled vaguely and proceeded about his business, which was to worry himself to a shadow over another case.

Which case?

Well, that's another story.

Dairy's Suit Challenges Milk Order

Marketing Agreement Called Ruinous By Holbrook Farms

The Holbrook Farms Dairy challenged constitutionality of the new Washington milk marketing agreement in a suit filed yesterday in the District Court. The dairy claimed the agreement would cost it $69,350 a year.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts directed Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace and Administrator Charles I. Dunn to show cause on February 26 why a temporary order should not be issued to restrain enforcement of the agreement.

The marketing order was promulgated January 29, to regulate production and distribution in the Washington milkshed. The order sets up a 1-cent-a-quart differential on the price paid farmers for milk shipped to dairies in the Maryland suburban area which lack a Health Department permit to sell in the District.

The order requires the Holbrook Farms Dairy and other concerns affected to file elaborate reports on the grade and quantity of milk handled, the names of farmers from whom milk is bought and the pay roll to milk producers. The order estbalishes prices to be paid and directs that the marketing administrator be allowed access to the books and the plant for auditing and inspection purposes. Fines of $50 to $500 are fixed for violations.

Attorneys Sefton Darr, Linwood E. Lagerson and James O'D. Moran filed the complaint which contended that the Secretary of Agriculture was authorized by Congress to regulate interstate commerce by marketing orders, but that he has no right to interfere with intrastate business.

The Holbrook Dairy asserted that it was thus beyond the power of the Secretary of Agriculture, because of its average daily consumption of 2,500 gallons of milk, all but 20 gallons, from a West Virginia farm, was produced in Maryland. The dairy said that all its milk was sold in Maryland.

The price differential imposed on suburban dairies will be ruinous to its business, the dairy asserted.

Bates Cites District Loss On Income Tax

Federal employes who live in Washington the year-round and enjoy all the municipal advantages of living in the National Capital have "a moral obligation" to pay the District income tax, regardless of legal residence, Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, said sterday.

A member of the House sub-comee on District fiscal affairs and hor of the income tax passed by e House, Bates said he has no ars that Congress will supplant e present levy by a sales tax.

Bates said he hoped that no one uld lose the right to vote back me by paying the District tax.

"As for the tax that Federal employes living in Washington might pay the thirty-six States which have income tax laws," he said, "that is insignificant. The money would be so scattered that it would amount to very little for any one State. However, the aggregate loss to the District might be substantial."

Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, said that he believes Federal employes should pay the District tax, but he added that credit should be allowed for taxes they pay the states.

Greenbelt Pianist Tackles Chopin—on His Fifth Birthday

Greenbelt's piano prodigy, Charles Yukl, jr., 5 and his brother, Franz, 19 months

Charles W. Yukl, Jr., Whose Father Is With the National Symphony, Has Been Studying Under Mother 3 Months

Greenbelt, where concert music is preferred to "swing," boasts a piano prodigy.

He is Charles W. Yukl, jr., who celebrated his fifth birthday yesterday by trying to master Chopin's second "Etude," a difficult accomplishment for the best of concert pianists.

Such celebrated compositions as the first prelude in Bach's "Well-Tempered Clavichord" and Clementi's "C Major Sonatina," he plays by ear.

The child is growing up in a musical atmosphere. His father plays the trumpet with the National Symphony Orchestra, and his mother also is an accomplished musician.

It has been under her tutelage that he has astounded Greenbelt musical circles—and Greenbelt boasts a discriminating host of critics. Among the Government town's musical elite are Ralph Hirsch, Dan Hanlon and Leslie Atkins, all with the National Symphony Orchestra.

The Yukl home at 6-G, Ridge road, is the scene of frequent chamber music sessions. One is scheduled for this Sunday evening. Charles' proudest moment, his mother said, was at a recent gathering at their home when he gave a recital.

Mrs. Yukl first began giving her son instructions less than three months ago. One day she heard him picking out tunes for himself and decided it was time for some lessons. The youngster, she says, is eager to practice and spends more than an hour and a half a day at the piano.

Mrs. Yukl is teaching her son to read simple music and is also trying to acquaint him with musical terms and names of composers. "Mr. Clementi and Mr. Bach," as Charles calls them, have come to be quite familiar characters.

Charles' brother, Franz, 19 months, also is beginning to show a flare for music.

"He has developed a fancy for the horn his father plays in the orchestra," Mrs. Yukl said. "He can get a surprising amount of volume from it too, when he can be persuaded not to pull the mouthpiece out."

Committee Backs $350,000,000 Farm Tenant Fund

The House Agriculture Committee approved legislation yesterday to create a $350,000,000 fund to insure farm tenant mortgages.

The measure, similar to the Federal Housing Authority program, was approved by the Senate last year in a slightly different form.

The committee also approved a bill making permanent the 3½ per cent interest rate on Federal Land Bank Commissioner loans.

The Senate Appropriations Committee favorably reported the $1,032,835,315 Treasury and Postoffice departments appropriations bill, $11,000,000 under President Roosevelt's budget estimate.

The committee increased by $400,000 an item providing for one more trip per week on the transatlantic air mail route, making a total of three trips weekly.

Mrs. Crandall, D. C. Naturalist, Dies at Her Home

Mrs. Annie R. Crandall, Washington naturalist, died Monday at her home, 3624 Connecticut avenue northwest, after a long illness.

A native of Cazenovia, N. Y., Mrs. Crandall came here in 1901 after the death of her husband, E. Bowen Crandall. She was active in the nature section of the Twentieth Century Club and the local branch of the American Audubon Society.

She leaves a son, Eugene Crandall, Interior Department employe, and a daughter, Mrs. George H. Taylor, of Detroit.

U. S. Indcits 17 Persons and Firms In Chicago Probe

Chicago, Feb. 14 (AP).—A Federal Government turned its antitrust guns upon a fourth branch of the Chicago building industry today, obtaining indictments against 17 firms and individuals in the electrical supplies industry.

The indictment, returned before Federal Judge Barnes, accused five companies, the International Brotherhood of Eelectrical Workers, Local 134, and five company heads and six representatives of the union of conspiring to restrain "trade and commerce in electrical fixtures among the several States in violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act."

As a result, the indictment added, "the cost of installing electrical fixtures in homes, schools and buildings in the Chicago area has been substantially increased." All defendants are of Chicago.

H. A. Dodge, 72, Attorney, Dies In Chevy Chase

Lifelong Resident of Washington Succumbs In Maryland Home

Horace A. Dodge, 72, prominent local attorney, and member of an old Washington family, died yesterday at his home, 27 Quincy street, Chevy Chase, Md.

A lifelong resident of Washington and Chevy Chase, Mr. Dodge was the son of William C. Dodge and Elizabeth A. Dodge, both also natives of the District.

Mr. Dodge graduated from Central High School in 1887 and National University Law School in 1891. Following his admission to the bar, he joined Dodge & Sons, patent law firm established by his father in 1864.

A former president of the District Patent Law Association, Mr. Dodge was a member of the old Capital Bicycle Club, as well as the Cosmos and Columbia Country clubs.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mary L. Dodge, member of the Lovejoy family, among the original residents of Georgetown, and his daughter, Mrs. F. C. McCord, widow of the late Commander Frank C. McCord, U. S. N., who was killed in the crackup of the dirigible Akron, which he commanded in 1933. Other survivors are his sisters, Mrs. T. J. Johnston, of New York; Mrs. C. R. Hillyer, of Evanston, Ill.; Mrs. James W. Murphy, of this city, and a brother, William W. Dodge, also of Washington.

Valentine's Day Is Jinx to Her

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

LOUISE ROLFE WIEERECHT had no romantic interlude yesterday on St. Valentine's Day. Instead, she appeared in felony court in Chicago on a disorderly conduct charge. Twice before February 14 brought her trouble. She has been known as the "Blonde Alibi" since she supplied the story which freed "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn after the "Moran Massacre" on St. Valentine's Day in 1929. Shortly after midnight of February 14, 1936, McGurn, then her husband, was killed

Byrd Reports Pole Has Shifted

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd reported from the Antarctic yesterday that observations made by his expedition indicate the south magnetic pole has shifted.

He said in a radio report received by the Navy that observations made February 7 in the vicinity of Drygalski Peninsula in Queen Victoria Land lead to a belief the pole has moved in a westerly direction from at least three of the four positions reported since 1909.

Eminent scientists, Byrd noted, are in virtual agreement that the pole covers an arear of 10 or more miles and appears to shift from year to year. The observations made did not definitely establish a new position for the pole, it was said.

Government Trys Interneship Plan To Train Student Attorneys for U. S. Jobs

By Alfred Friendly.

Several Federal general counsellors, convinced that "internships" are as valuable for future Government lawyers as they are for future doctors, have launched a legal interneship "experimental project" in the Interior Department that may develop into a permanent, large-scale program.

The project places the Government in the role played long ago by the local lawyer's office, where would-be barristers "read law."

The idea is to have exceptional young law students who wish to go into the Federal legal service come to Washington for a three to six-month period and kibitz on the legal work of the bureau.

At present, the experimental project is operating on a modest scale, with only one guinea pig. He is Tucker Dean, 24-year-old University of Chicago law school senior.

Dean is working on the general field of administrative and constitutional law and trade regulation, and has been placed in the office of the general counsel of Interior's coal ditision. He will receive credit at the law school for the work done, but no compensation from the Government.

Actually, Dean is doing no work for the Government or the division, serving only as student and observer. His "faculty," to whom he must report and who report in turn on his work to the university, consist of Abe Fortas, the division's general counsel, and other lawyers in that office and in other Federal agencies who are interested in the project and in Dean.

Next year, it is anticipated, almost a dozen young law students will come to Washington, to be located in other Federal departments on an interne basis. So far, only the University of Chicago has shown major interest in the project and has indicated a willingness to grant credit for the work done here. It is expected, however, that other law schools may follow suit.

Among the leaders in promoting the plan in Washington, besides Fortas, are Thurman Arnold, Assisant Attorney General, and Jerome Frank, Securities and Exchange Commissioner. Frank proposed a similar project to private law firms more than 10 years ago.

The philosophy behind the project is that law school graduates often come to a Government job having only read upper court decisions and with no experience in looking at legislation hot off the griddle, and in translating it into administrative action. By working on current legal problems with other lawyers and Administrative officials, it is believed, the would-be Federal attorney can equip himself much more successfully.
